

HEAVY REGISTRATION

WOMEN IN FORCE

Flock to City Hall to Get Names on Voting List

The interest attending the registration of women at city hall has all other interests faded to the merest shadow. The office of the registrars of voters has more callers in a single hour than all other offices at city hall combined.

The voting spirit has caught on wonderfully. There isn't any new fall style that is in it for a moment. There are young girls, old girls, young women and old women and one of the things that tickles the registrars of voters is to inquire a girl's age. Many of the girls are wise to the fact that all they have to say is that they are over twenty-one, but others of them give their right age and even John King who has lived here all his life and for a great many years, is surprised to learn that girls whom he considered eligible to the Old Maid's club are under 20.

"They may have fished about their age," suggested a reporter, and that said Mr. King.

"No gentleman," he said, "should even insinuate that a woman would fabricate. Personally I have explicit confidence in them."

Registered at Age of 81

The number of women to register yesterday was 638 and that is nearly 100 more than were registered before the beginning of the present week.

The oldest woman to register, thus far, was Adeline R. Emerson, 358 East Merrimack street. She gave her age as 81.

The registration by wards, yesterday, was as follows:

Wards	Females	Males
2	42	3
3	56	3
4	56	3
5	56	3
6	56	3
7	56	3
8	56	3
9	56	3
10	56	3
11	56	3
Totals	637	27

This was to have been the last for registration for the preliminary election, but owing to the great demand for a continuance the registrars decided to keep open today from 1 to 3 p. m. and the registrars of voters this forenoon. They were of the opinion that they could register any old time and were sorely disappointed when told that they could not register before one o'clock. Five or six of them were wheeling baby carriages and they assured the registrars that they would return again during the afternoon.

All scenes and all records have been broken at the office of the board of registrars, and it only goes to show that when women get interested in anybody or anything they show an earnestness that night, to advantage, be multiplied by the number. The total number of women registered up to date is 1038.

PALMER INDICTMENT AUDIENCE FROZEN OUT

Witnesses Say That a Vote Was Taken on it Local Picture Show Promoter Sues Landlord

The hearing of the testimony relative to the motions to quash court proceedings against Jackson Palmer on the allegation that the indictment was illegally brought, was resumed this morning before Judge John D. McLaughlin, at the court house at East Cambridge.

Several witnesses were heard at the morning session, including two grand jurors, Dr. Henry B. Perkins, father-in-law of Jackson Palmer, and Lawrence F. Smith of Jamaica Plain, whose business is that of making investigations for lawyers, and who did considerable work in connection with the present proceedings.

Another Judge Assigned

Prior to the opening of court District Attorney Higgins received a communication from Chief Justice John A. Alden, stating that another judge would be assigned to clear up other criminal business which is being delayed by the Palmer proceedings.

Opening of Court

Court opened shortly after 10 o'clock and the first question asked of George H. Sweetnam, foreman of the grand jury, who took the stand the day before yesterday, was as to whether during the past few weeks he had ridden in the cars to Boston with District Attorney Higgins. The witness answered in the negative, stating that he used the electric cars going between his home and the court house.

The question of admitting evidence relative to what transpired at the sittings of the grand jury was raised by the district attorney as a result of a question asked by Mr. Whipple. District Attorney Higgins objected to the proceedings of the grand jury being made public, but the court allowed the witness to answer certain questions.

"Was it customary for either you or the district attorney to announce 'this is the case of the commonwealth of so and so'?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"I would announce it," answered Mr. Higgins.

"Would you announce whether it came up on appeal from the lower court or how it came before you?"

"No, sir."

"Then you would say, 'We will hear the evidence'?"

"No; Mr. Higgins would say that."

"Do you mean to say that the jury first sent in a proposed report to Judge Stevens for him to read and that on his recommendation certain parts were struck out?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did you mean by saying that you were a supporter of mine?" asked the district attorney.

"I don't remember saying that."

"Were you a supporter of mine during the campaign for nomination?"

"No, sir."

Arthur J. Travers Called

Arthur J. Travers, a druggist of So. Framingham and also a member of the grand jury, was the next witness called. He said he was present at most of the hearings during the year.

"On July 15 was the grand jury vote in regard to matter affecting Jackson Palmer?" asked Mr. Higgins.

"Yes, sir."

District Attorney Higgins then asked a question which was objected to by Mr. Whipple, but Mr. Higgins said that he wanted to show that more than 12 men voted for an indictment and he felt that the court had a right to find out who voted; how they voted and what they said.

"That was the vote?"

"Yes, was for indictment of Jackson Palmer."

Mr. Whipple objected to answer, and exceptions were saved.

"Do you remember whether more than 12 grand jurors voted in favor of that vote?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you heard the foreman testify?" asked Mr. Whipple on cross-examination.

"Yes, sir."

"When you heard his statement on that vote, and how it was put, did you find any error or mistake in his statement?"

Mr. Higgins objected and the court sustained the district attorney.

"His statement agreed with your memory?"

"Yes, sir."

"You remember that the vote was put by the foreman as he said?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now wasn't this the way that the form of vote was put: 'Voted that the district attorney be instructed to draw up indictments against Jackson Palmer and three others'?"

"Yes, sir."

Dr. Henry B. Perkins, of West Newton, father-in-law of Jackson Palmer, was the next witness called. After answering the usual preliminary questions the witness said he attended the trial of Jackson Palmer on the charge of perjury. On the last day of the trial he heard that Palmer was not legally indicted, but he could not recall who gave him the information. He said he had absolutely forgotten the name of the person who had given him the information. He then told Mr. Palmer and saw L. H. Smith and made arrangements to see Juror Drummey.

"When did you hear that the grand jurors had taken no vote on the matter of indictment of Jackson Palmer?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"While the jury deciding the case against Mr. Palmer was out," answered the witness.

"And that was before a verdict was rendered?"

"Yes."

"And at that time Jackson Palmer also knew it?"

"I couldn't say; I spoke to him about it some time during the day."

"Did you see Mr. Drummey?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"At his home."

"How did you get there?"

"In my automobile."

"When did you first go to see him?"

"The Sunday following the trial."

"Did you see any other member of the grand jury?"

"No, sir."

"How many times did you see him?"

"Six or eight times."

"Where?"

"At his home, the Boston City club, Algonquin club, and at my house."

"When was he at your house?"

"A week or ten days ago."

"Did you furnish the dinner at the City club?"

"I did."

"Are you a member of the City club?"

"No, sir."

"Were you a guest of some member of the City club?"

"I was."

"What member were you the guest of?"

"Melvin M. Johnson."

"You saw the eight jurors there?"

"Yes."

"Was Mr. Barry there?"

"Yes."

"Was Mr. Johnson there?"

"No."

"How much money have you spent in the conduct of your investigation as to whether the grand jury voted to indict Jackson Palmer?"

"I was not."

The trials and tribulations of a moving picture show promoter were acted before Judge Morton in the superior court, this morning when the case of Adolphus Hebert of Walpole, painter, musician and moving picture show promoter, against Jacques Boisvert, the well known Centralville real estate owner, was heard.

Mr. Hebert who for a short time conducted a moving picture show in a hall owned by the defendant at the corner of West Sixth and Canal streets, sued Mr. Boisvert for an action of contract, the ad damnum being $5000.

Edward J. Tierney, counsel for the plaintiff, in his remarks before the jury explained that there were three concurrent claims for damages by the plaintiff: the first for the return of $100 given the defendant by the plaintiff for a lease which the plaintiff never received; secondly, remuneration for the expense he went to in fitting up the place for a picture show and the thirdly, remuneration for the loss of the profits that would have accrued to the plaintiff had the defendant lived up to his contract relative to the lease of the hall. H. V. Charbonneau appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Hebert claims that on or about January 11, 1911, he entered into a contract with the defendant for the lease of Boisvert hall for a term of 35 weeks, at $18 per week, paying the defendant $100 in consideration of which he was to receive the lease within 10 days.

Under the terms of the proposed lease the plaintiff claims the defendant agreed to heat the hall until the expiration of the 35 weeks and then the plaintiff had the privilege of renewing the lease but would have to heat the place himself.

Mr. Hebert claims he then fitted up the hall, secured his picture films, and employed and opened up for business. He claims that the defendant agreed to heat the hall but failed to do so despite his complaints. The hall was so cold, he said, that even the water in a can that he used for lettering was frozen every morning and he was obliged to thaw it out. On account of the cold he could not get any audiences and he claims his business was ruined. He then left the hall and never received the lease.

In his answer to the plaintiff, the defendant, Mr. Boisvert, claims that the plaintiff owes him $300.

The plaintiff claims that he gave away 11 performances and although there were 12 radiators in the hall, three being put in after he complained there was not sufficient heat. He gave shows only at night except on Saturday, but he had to work in the hall during the day.

"In the evening the radiators were warm, wasn't they?" asked Lawyer Charbonneau.

"Not unless you sat on them," replied the witness.

On cross-examination witness denied that he told Mr. Boisvert that the people of Centralville wouldn't support a good show.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hebert's testimony court suspended until one o'clock as certain witnesses for the plaintiff were not present.

At the reopening of court local picture show men were put on to testify as experts as to the value of such a lease.

THREE COURT SESSIONS

Judge Irwin Makes First Appearance on Monday

Three sessions of the superior court will sit simultaneously in Lowell on Monday while on Tuesday all local court records will be broken by the presence of five sessions of court sitting at the same time.

On Monday Judge Irwin, recently elevated to the bench by Governor Eugene N. Foss, will make his first appearance on the bench, opening the divorce court in this city.

Generally the court, equity and divorce cases are presided over by one justice and for this session Judge Fessenden has been assigned. On account of the volume of business, however, it has been decided to split the session without juries. Judge Fessenden taking the court and equity cases and Judge Irwin, the divorce lists.

On Tuesday in addition to the superior civil sessions Judges Taft and McIntire will preside over two sessions of the probate court.

Monday's Court List

The list of court cases includes 32 cases; the uncontested divorce list, 75; contested list, 59; equity list, 12.

The Lowell cases on the docket are as follows:

Court cases: Jean vs. Cawley, F. W. and S. E. Qua for the plaintiff; John J. Devine for the defendant.

Blair, adm. vs. Bates, ad. Burke & Corbett, and D. J. Donahue.

Moffett vs. Moffett; E. J. Carver & Carver and J. F. Owens.

Connors Bros. Co. vs. Sullivan et al.; Messrs. Qua and H. N. Allen.

Putnam vs. Nelson; McIntire & Wilson and P. E. Dunbar and J. J. Rogers.

Stahl vs. Gray; W. H. Bent and J. J. Gray.

Siskind vs. Gross et al.; J. J. Harvey and M. Caro.

Lowell Trust Co. vs. Smith; Messrs. Hogan and McIntire & Wilson.

Lowell Trust Co. vs. Ingham; Messrs. Hogan and J. F. Owens.

Lowell Trust Co. vs. Samuels; Messrs. Hogan and McIntire & Wilson.

Lowell Trust Co. vs. Horne Coal Co. (demurrer); Messrs. Hogan and T. G. Robbins.

Greene, adm. vs. Hendry; McIntire & Wilson and E. V. Grabbli.

Boullester vs. Ziskind; Messrs. Hogan and B. Silverblatt.

Moffett vs. Moffett; E. J. Murphy and Pickman & Harvey.

SUIT FOR $15,000

Against James Horsfall for Death of Mrs. Kittredge

In addition to the criminal charge of manslaughter brought against James H. Horsfall of this city for the alleged killing of Mrs. Ruth M. Kittredge, of Tewksbury, in an automobile accident last Saturday night, Melvin F. Rogers, counsel for Lizzie R. Tagley of Tewksbury, administratrix of the estate of Mrs. Kittredge, has brought suit against Mr. Horsfall in an action of tort claiming $15,000 civil damages for the death of Mrs. Kittredge, and has attached the defendant's accounts in the Lowell Trust company and Old Lowell National bank.

Another Suit for $15,000

J. Frank Seaver, doing business under the name of the J. Frank Seaver Lumber company of Dover, N. H., has entered suit against Charles Dargatz of this city in an action of contract in the sum of $15,000.

"I cannot say absolutely. All of my bills are not in."

"How much have you spent up to the present time?"

"In the neighborhood of $500."

Cross Examination

On cross-examination Dr. Perkins said he had spent time and money in order to ascertain the truth. He said he had done everything possible to get at the bottom of the matter, but he did not go to Mr. Higgins, because he felt that he had a personal hostility against his son-in-law.

Lawrence F. Smith Called

Lawrence F. Smith of Jamaica Plain was called and in answer to questions asked by the district attorney said his business was that of making investigations for lawyers.

"Have you ever been called a detective?" asked Mr. Higgins.

"By some of my enemies."

"I ask to have that answer stricken from the records," said the district attorney.

"I protest," said Lawyer Whipple. "It is responsive."

The question and answer were stricken out.

"You did some investigation in the Glover case?"

"Yes for a couple of nights."

He said he had used the offices of Jesse A. Gore, Edward Barry and M. M. Johnson in which to meet people. Asked when was the last time he used Mr. Johnson's office to meet people he answered "this morning."

"What people in connection with the Jackson Palmer case have you met in Mr. Johnson's office?"

"Dr. Perkins and Mr. Barry and Mr. Palmer to the best of my recollection."

"Where did you get acquainted with Mr. Drummey?"

"At his home."

"Why did you go out there?"

"As a result of information that I received."

"What members of the grand jury did you see?"

"Messrs. Drummey, McCarthy, Bradley, Powers, Daniels, Finn, Davidson, Haggatt and Rafferty."

"Were you asked to go and see any other jurors?"

"I was not."

Censures Taft for Pardoning Banker

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Attorney General Wickham was not very much disturbed by the statement issued by Gov. James H. Hawley of Idaho criticizing the president and the department of justice on account of the action of the president in granting a pardon to Clarence W. Robnett, bookkeeper in the Lewiston National bank of Lewiston, Idaho. Robnett was convicted of embezzling the funds of the bank and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, but he has not served any of his sentence. The governor denounced the pardon as likely to bring justice into disrepute and weaken the courts in the estimation of our people." The attorney general explained that the pardon was arranged by telegraph between Washington and Idaho. In all such cases, he said, it was necessary to rely on someone implicated in the affair to furnish the testimony necessary to convict the others. The government was not anxious to enter into such negotiations, but it thought it better to make terms with one of the participants in the crime and convict the others than to allow all to escape for want of evidence on which to convict. It was also stated that the evidence tended to show that Robnett was the tool of other men in the affair, that he did not benefit financially by his crime and that the greater responsibility for the crime lay with others.

BAY STATE TROOPS

Will Lose Services of Captain Hanna

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Massachusetts militia will be without the services of its special instructor, Capt. M. E. Hanna, of the general staff of the United States army, during the coming year.

Much of the progress made by the militia during the past year was due to the work done by Capt. Hanna. He carried on a correspondence course of instruction for several months and made frequent trips to Boston last winter and spring.

Capt. Hanna is one of Gen. Wood's right hand men on the general staff and has a great deal of work to do. It taxed him heavily last year to do the extra work of instructing the Massachusetts militia.

Since then his work on the general staff has increased and he has so much ahead of him that he will probably be tied to his desk in the war department throughout the entire winter.

The chances are that if special instruction is needed from a regular army officer the Massachusetts guardsmen will turn to Lieut. Gen. C. Marshall of the 24th United States infantry, who is now stationed at Boston, as instructor for the Massachusetts troops. Capt. Hanna feels that Lieut. Marshall is thoroughly capable to carry on the work he began and is sure the Massachusetts troops will lose nothing by his absence.

HEAVENLY TWINS

WERE FOUND DEAD IN THEIR GRANDNEPHEW'S HOME

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Word was received here last night that Mrs. Ada L. Sanford and Miss Eva Eng, aged 84 years, known as the "Heavenly Twins," were found dead this morning at the home of their grandnephew, John Humason, 142 Wilson street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Gas was turned on.

They left here last week for a visit. They were born in Bloomfield, Conn., Feb. 14, 1827. Last year they took a trip to Egypt and the Holy Land, and met ex-President Roosevelt at Cairo, where they were greeted by him.

They leave a sister, Mrs. E. M. Humason of New Britain, and a nephew, W. L. Humason, president of Humason & Beckley company.

MANY CANDIDATES

Are Out for Office in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Nov. 17.—Ex-Mayor Cornelius F. Lynch, John Shea, the hay and grain dealer, and Owen Kenefick, the Essex street photographer, announced their candidacies for aldermen Thursday. Mr. Kenefick took out nomination papers during the morning.

Ex-Mayor Lynch's friends importuned him to run for mayor, but, believing that the sentiment of the people was in favor of a new man for that office, he declined and consented to be a candidate for alderman for two years.

The names of Building Inspector James W. Flanagan and Albert S. Long, the contracting builder, have been mentioned as possible aldermanic candidates and their friends, together with a number of prominent citizens, are urging them to run.

Frank Burns, formerly of the city treasurer's office, took out nomination papers for alderman during the morning, as did Jas. L. Fox, a newsdealer. Those who have filed their nomination papers to date include the following:

For aldermen, for two years: William Daly of 96 Willow street;

Councilman Joseph A. Hurley, Rodolphus W. Walker of 323 Broadway; Geo. W. Cutler, ex-Councilman Alvin L. Hoffmann, Patrick J. Coan, ex-Councilman M. J. Dooly, Thomas J. Herlihy, Michael H. Colony of 141 P. Beaverhill street, and Edward Kelley of 15 Centre street.

For aldermen for one year: Ex-Councilman Joseph A. Kennedy, Asst. Fire Engineer John J. Evans, Mark Mahlan of 183 Shien street, James C. Crombie of 141 P. Beaverhill street, Joseph F. Adams of 62 Woodland street, Patrick F. Ryan of 158 Lawrence street.

For the school committee, for two years: Clinton O. Andrews, W. E. Rashforth and M. J. Mahoney.

GOVERNOR FOSS

Cannot be Removed, Says Sec'y Langtry

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Gov. Foss cannot be removed from office for failure to fully itemize his list of election expenditures, as required by statute, according to Sec. of State Langtry, who said yesterday:

"The constitution provides the manner in which a governor or a secretary of state can be disposed of and the constitution isn't controlled by provisions of statute law."

The corrupt practices act was supposed to be legislation rather in the interests of the poor man, Sec. Langtry observed. "It said that a man couldn't spend more than $5000, apart from personal expenses, in furthering his primary or election interests. If John Jones is running for governor he can't put an advertisement in the newspapers. He must do it through a committee. The law says he can't give more than $5000 to the committee. But John Smith can give that committee $50,000 to be used in the interests of John Jones if he sees fit."

There is a widespread feeling among officials, shared by the secretary of state, that the corrupt practices law should be and will be amended by the next legislature, and there is much sympathy for those who say its provisions defy comprehension at present.

Gov. Foss has intimated he may amend his rejected returns, but it is regarded as certain that there will be no legal proceedings against him in the matter.

MORE CHALLENGES

Of Talesmen at the Mc-Namara Trial

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Six permanent jurors, possibly seven, were in sight today when counsel gathered to purge a full jury box by peremptory challenges of those talesmen whom they considered prejudiced or otherwise unfit to try James B. McNamara, indicted for murder in connection with the Los Angeles Times building explosion.

District Attorney Fredericks announced today that he had assigned G.

Ray Horton, chief trial deputy, to try the case of A. B. Maple, P. I. Bender, and L. H. Connors, indicted for an alleged attempt to dynamite the Hall of Records here a month before the Los Angeles Times building was destroyed in the fall of 1910. Counsel for the McNamaras likewise were defending three men.

Lowell People Helped

MANY INTERESTING FACTS REVEALED

"There is one question that is put to us more often than any other," said one of the specialists who are at the Hall & Lyon drug store, for the purpose of introducing to Lowell a remarkable new tonic called "Tona Vita," "and which strangely enough I find it most difficult to answer. That is: Why is there so much suffering here in Lowell when most of it can be cured by the use of proper medicine?"

"The only answer I can give to this question," continued the specialist, "is that most people do not know the nature of their ailments and therefore do not select the proper cure. They fail to recognize the indisputable fact that the very lowest average twenty-five per cent. of the sufferers in Lowell have nothing more or less than nervous debility. They, or their doctors, may call it something else, but as soon as they treat themselves for that trouble they improve."

"Nervous debility," says the specialist, "is that condition of the body or any of its organs, in which the vital functions are discharged with less than normal vigor, the amount of power and activity displayed being reduced. It simply means that the body is dispossessed of its characteristic properties, and, combined with high state of nervousness, the modern plague, nervous debility is produced. The body is then in a state of languor and decline."

"The following symptoms are characteristic of this trouble: Lassitude, nervousness, sleeplessness, timidity, depression of spirits, little vitality, cold feet, poor circulation, weak back, headache, poor digestion, stomach and bowel troubles, depression and despondency."

"These are unmistakable indications of nervous debility, and there are thousands here in Lowell, like all large cities, who suffer with this trouble in its most distressing form."

"Tona Vita" will act in such cases like a true specific. From the moment the medicine is taken, improvement is rapid."

"The 'Tona Vita' introductory sale is now being conducted at the store of Hall & Lyon, where the specialists can be seen any day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m."

"While we are meeting callers each day now and hundreds of debilitated people are regaining their health through our medicine there are thousands more whom we want to reach before we leave Lowell. If all the men and women who are struggling along, depressed in mind and body by nervous debility, unable to get any real enjoyment out of living, would only take the time to come in and talk to us, we would bring a tremendous amount of happiness to the people of this city. There is little real pleasure in life for an individual who does continually worry out. Positively the very first dose of our tonic benefits a man or woman in this condition."

Mullin refused to run for another term and Joseph Fahey was the choice of both committees for the office. Mr. Fahey was president before and was the main factor in building up the division. On the night of the election, fifty candidates will be initiated and there will be a smoke talk.

A REAL STABBING

In a Scene Between Jealous Women

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 17.—A real stabbing in a scene between jealous women broke up a vaudeville act and threw the female portion of the audience into hysterics at a local theatre last night. Mme Yuki Yamakura forgot a table knife had been substituted for the usual property dagger and when she attacked Mme. Anna Kremisa at the climax of a heated quarrel, the latter fell to the stage with blood oozing from a wound in her left breast. When the excitement had quieted down it was discovered that Mme. Anna was not dangerously hurt. The women are the best of friends in real life.

BANK DOORS CLOSED

WASHINGTON, N. J., Nov. 17.—The doors of the Washington National bank of this place did not open this morning for business. A notice was tacked on the door stating that the bank was closed and that its affairs were in charge of the controller of the currency. The National bank examiner, Robert Goodheart, was at the bank yesterday examining the books. After a conference yesterday with the officials he decided not to allow the bank to open its doors today. Some of the loans were not satisfactory. The bank has a capital stock of $50,000, and there is about $150,000 on deposit.

AMERICAN MAKERS

EXTENDING SALE OF SHOES IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The American shoe manufacturer is extending his sales in all parts of the world. In the fiscal year 1906 we exported less than 400,000 pairs of boots and shoes; in 1909, 600,000 pairs; in 1910, over 7 million pairs; in 1911, over 7 million pairs, and in the calendar year which ends with next month the number will exceed 8 million pairs, to say nothing of the 1 million pairs going to Porto Rico and Hawaii. These figures relate to boots and shoes of leather; while if to this we add those of India rubber, we get an additional 3 million, bringing the total number of American made boots and shoes passing out of continental United States in 1911 up to an average of a million pairs per month, against about a half million per annum 20 years ago.

This increase, it should be remembered, has come in the face of a large manufacture in foreign countries of boots and shoes called "American" manufactured by foreign workmen and of foreign material but upon American patterns and following American methods of manufacture. It is a well known fact that large quantities of shoes sold in various parts of the world under the title of "American" are, in fact, made in European countries upon patterns and forms and methods of manufacture developed in the great manufacturing establishments of the United States; and it is thus probable that the number of boots and shoes of American type and thus American in the sense of form and method of manufacture sold in foreign countries is very much greater than that indicated by the mere figures of exportation. In actual exports of boots and shoes manufactured in the United States, the total for the year which ends with next month will, as above indicated, aggregate more than 12 million pairs, including in this figure those of India rubber and those sent to our own non-contiguous territory.

Where do they go? Everywhere, apparently, that man wears boots and shoes: Japan, Korea, Siam, the Dutch East Indies, Egypt, Portuguese Africa, Liberia, the Belgian Congo, Asiatic Russia, Aden, German Oceania, Brazil, Cuba, Ecuador, Salvador, Costa Rica, Roumania, Turkey in Asia, China, British South Africa, Paraguay, the Straits Settlements, Spanish Africa, Bulgaria, Honduras, the Dutch West Indies, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Serbia, and the Azores and Madeira Islands, to say nothing of the larger importers of boots and shoes—Cuba, Mexico, England, Canada, Germany and France.

All these and many other interesting facts about the exportation of boots and shoes and numerous other articles of American manufacture are to be found in that interesting volume of the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, entitled "Commerce and Navigation of the United States" which may be had on application to that bureau. It shows boots and shoes exported from the United States to no less than 55 countries and colonies of the world and in last year the value of boots and shoes exported, which had never reached as much as a million dollars per annum prior to 1896, now exceeds 12 million dollars per annum and will in the current year amount to about 15 million dollars in value, including those sent to the non-contiguous territory of the United States; and if to this we add the value of India rubber boots and shoes, exported, we should have a total of about 17 million dollars for boots and shoes of all kinds passing out of continental United States in the year which ends with next month.

The United Kingdom is the chief rival of the United States in supplying boots and shoes to the world. Her exports of boots and shoes are still greater both in total number of pairs and total value than those of the United States, but the larger importers of boots and shoes of this country. The number of pairs exported from the United Kingdom in 1895 was 8,005,410; and in 1910, 13,029,556; the percentage of gain in the case of the United Kingdom being 61 per cent, and in the case of the United States, nearly 19 per cent. The value of leather boots and shoes exported from the United States, however, is more nearly identical with that of like exports from the United Kingdom, having been in the calendar year 1910, $13,216,237, against $14,714,969 for the United Kingdom, the average price per pair of those exported from the United States having been $1.69, against $1.13 for those exported from the United Kingdom.

BACKWARD PUPIL

NEW WAY OF HELPING THE "DUNCE" AT SCHOOL

During your schooldays, whether those be ten, twenty or fifty years ago, you, no doubt, knew some boy or girl who had the ill fortune to be known as a "dunce." Neither arithmetic, geography, nor history, nor grammar, nor any other study was that child able to master. When called upon by the teacher to give the possessive case of the pronoun "he," to tell where was located the Bay of Bengal, that unfortunate young one would rise, look about in a bewildered manner, and after making a pitiful stab at the correct answer, would sit down with a lump in the throat, exclaiming the smiles of derision which the other pupils would make but little effort to conceal. In nine cases out of ten this pupil would cease attending school at the earliest opportunity; not because little value had been set upon an education but because he could not bear to be a perpetual object of ridicule.

In these days, however, the backward pupil in most cases is receiving intelligent instruction that has been mapped out by scientific minds, while in many of the schools in our larger cities special classes have been established for the purpose of giving a course of instruction suited to the needs of these particular pupils. Educators who have studied the subject assert that in the majority of cases "dunces" are the logical result of faulty environment. Some, it is stated, are handicapped with poorly nourished bodies; some are those so unfortunate as to have been started wrongly at the beginning of their school career; some, again, are sound enough in body but hysterically inclined.

In France there has recently been put in operation a system that by measuring the intelligence of every pupil, weeds out the "dunces" and shows their different grades of mental capacity. This result was attained through a board of examiners who visited the public schools of the large cities and began investigating the exact intelligence of the children. Beginning with pupils of four years of age, the examiners put a series of questions to thousands of the little ones and finally ascertained just what questions the majority of children of that age could answer correctly. Thus the examiners obtained an exact knowledge of those things which a normal minded child of four years should know. For instance, such a child was found able to touch his eyes, mouth, nose and pictures of these as directed, to repeat without error easy sentences of six syllables, to name familiar objects in pictures, and to give his own family name. Naturally, the normal minded child of five years could answer a specified list of questions that were a little more difficult, the child of six questions of still greater difficulty, and so on throughout the various ages.

With these facts compiled, it is an easy matter to measure the intelligence of a backward pupil, judging that such a pupil is a boy of twelve years. The first is examined on the "four years old list of questions. These being answered without difficulty, he is questioned on the "five year old" list, and so on until he reaches a list that he is unable to answer correctly. In this case, the "ten year old" list. Consequently, the preceding list, that is, the last one through which he successfully passed indicates his mental age, nine years. So the 12-year-old backward pupil, who is mentally only nine years of age, is placed in a class where he properly belongs and where, with his fellow "backwards," he will be given instruction suitable to his particular needs.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The opera house was literally filled last night and there was a reason, for "The Chocolate Soldier" was in town and he it said in the beginning that the troupe of artists who presented this opera was well received by the large and appreciative audience. The performance is in three acts and based on Shaw's "Arms and the Man," with music by Oscar Straus, and it is one masterpiece for the lovers of good music.

The chorus composed of two scores of good voices, rendered some very fine selections, and the solos, duets, etc., were given in a very pleasing manner, and each selection struck its mark.

The cast of the opera was as follows:

Nadina Popoff, daughter of Col. Popoff, of the Bulgarian army.
Aurelia Popoff, her mother. Lotta Gale Mascha, Aurelia's cousin.

Emma Loomis, "The Chocolate Soldier."
Lieut. Bumerli, "The Chocolate Soldier."
Capt. Massakroff, of the Bulgarian army.
Louka, Popoff's servant.

Oliver Randolph, Stephen, Popoff's servant, George Oglo, Colonel Kasimir Popoff, of the Bulgarian army.
Nelson Riley, Maj. Alexis Spiridoff, of the Bulgarian army.
J. P. McDonough, "The Letter Song." Final.

It may be well also for the benefit of those who were not present, to publish the musical program.

Act 1—"What Can We Do Without a Man?" Introduction and Trio. "My Hero," aria. "Sympathy," duet. Ensemble. Final—"The Hero" (Roman).

Act 2—"Our Heroes Come." "Alexis the Heroic." "Never Was There Such a Lover." "The Chocolate Soldier," duet. "The Tail of a Coat." "That Would Be Lovely," duet. Final.

Act 3—"Intermezzo and Chorus." "Falling in Love," song. "The Letter Song," duet. Scene and Melodrama. "The Letter Song." Final.

The headliner in this musical comedy is Frances Hewitt as "Nadina Popoff," who possesses a well trained soprano voice. Her acting as well as her singing is of the most refined kind and her beautiful singing was the cause of her responding to many encores. Miss Hewitt, although a stranger here, captured her audience at the very beginning. Another favorite last night was Lieut. Bumerli, "The Chocolate Soldier." Roy Purviance, who mastered his part to the highest degree. This character is a rather difficult one to present especially by Mr. Purviance, for his voice although pleasing is somewhat weak. However, the young man made a favorable impression.

In the part of "Mascha" Emma Loomis cannot be excelled. Her voice, gestures and stage facilities are there and the part could not be better fulfilled. J. P. McDonough as "Alexis" with his cold steel voice was rich. His part is a rather brusk one, but it was well handled. Mr. McDonough's voice is pure and charming. A word of praise may also be given in favor of Nelson Riley as the colonel, for his playing was grand. Possessed of a powerful baritone voice, Mr. Riley knows how to handle it to please. And J. Russell Powell as "Captain Massakroff," the Bulgarian terror, with his deep bass voice was all that was wanted in his part. The chorus was large and sang well. The costumes were rich and handsome. All in all it was a delightful performance of a thoroughly good light opera.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

Of all the American plays "Uncle Tom's Cabin" seems to have the strongest hold on the people. What is said to be one of the best productions that this American classic has ever had will be given at the Opera House on Saturday, matinee and night, under the management of Leon W. Washburn. Watch for the big street parade with two brass bands, "Eva" in her golden chariot, "Mastor" and his family, a pack of real Cuban bloodhounds, beautiful Shetland ponies, tableaux, floats, jugglers, and a host of new sensations.

GERTRUDE RENNYSON

The Boston Advertiser writes as follows about the Orstein recital last Thursday:

"It was a taxing program of wide scope and unlimited possibility. Played by a second rate artist it would have been unbearable. Brilliance and fire held away. He has the strength of seven men in his muscles of steel, and were he older he might be called as a 'pupil of Liszt.' The piano wince and smart under his hands, his climaxes have an orchestral sonority, and his technique is well high perfection. The old Abbe Liszt could write music descriptive of the infernal regions better than anyone else. His 'Mephisto' waltz is a stunner—a horribly cacophonous and hideous mass of sounds, which Lucifer himself would have difficulty in making intelligible. In this work Mr. Orstein seemed to be possessed of his satanic majesty and he gave us a performance that was marvellous in its mastery of the impossible technical problems involved, and in the force of its fiendish splendor."

Chopin, master of miniature and grace, stands inevitably upon the programs of the recitalists. The sentimental Chopin, the consumptive Chopin, the heroic Chopin, the amorous Chopin, and very seldom the poetic Chopin—are all presented to us by various artists. Yesterday it was a mixture of these, but never did the Polish bard sing more delightfully than in the G Flat Etude. It was tossed off with wonderful transparency and iridescence. The piece was conceived in a happy style and played faultlessly."

Mr. Orstein will give a second recital in Boston in January in Jordan Hall and will also appear as soloist at one of the Sunday night concerts of the Boston Opera House. It is to be expected that after his appearance as assisting artist of the Rennyson concert.

Reputation-Price Making

Give me Customers Enough at Low Prices for a Few Weeks, and I'll Build a Reputation In These Days of Fleeting Memory to Last at Least Through the Dullness of the Coming Holidays . . . . .

Listen to me. My trouble today is to get you to believe that low price clothing is possible. Every merchant's trouble is to get the people to believe in low priced merchandise. You come to the merchants and demand high prices one day and the next day you go out and yell about the high cost of living.

Now don't come to me looking for $30 or $40 suits or overcoats. Come to me and say, "let me see those $12.50 suits and overcoats." If I can get enough of you to buy $12.50 garments, if I can get enough of you to tell your friends in the streets and shops that you paid $12.50 at Mitchell, the Tailor's for your suit or overcoat, I'll make more customers than any $30 or $40 house can make in Lowell with the qualities that I see them giving the people these days.

I have the goods. Suits and overcoats—in qualities that mark the highest perfection of America's most skilled and accomplished workmanship—in qualities that rival the supposed or boasted superiority of anything that Europe produces—in qualities that eminently entitle New England and its productive hills to its far-famed reputation of being the origin and ultimate destiny of this western hemisphere's textile industry.

Now where can you buy better at any price? Now why throw your salary away in quest of unattainable desires? You can't get better goods than I sell because this country doesn't know how to make better than I carry.

cert the people of Lowell will be anxious to hear him again and he may appear here in his own recital later in the season.

As Miss Rennyson sings a very taxing program her New York managers have arranged for assisting artists to give her chances to rest between the numbers so as to be able to always give the best of her glorious art. It is only in rare cases that Mr. Orstein consents to appear as assisting artist but as he is filling engagements at Boston, Providence and Springfield the management was able to arrange for his taking part in the Rennyson concert.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Bert Melrose is the only man in the vaudeville business who daily and nightly defies the laws of gravity and gets away with it. Bert is considered the world's funniest clown. He is certainly the world's greatest equilibrist, for he does stunts that threaten his neck every moment and yet he comes out of his act right side up and all sound. His falls off the piled up tables are marvelous. He will continue to fall at Keith's for the remainder of the week. "The Five Musical Necesses" are the musical bit of the season in vaudeville. Their act possesses irresistible charm and one does not have to be an expert on music to appreciate them. Their music goes to the heart and well demonstrates the truth of the old adage, that music hath charms to soothe the savage beast.

McCormick and Wallace have no equals in the art of ventriloquism and in the performance of their act they introduce a number of figures which by their skill of tongue and hand are made to appear almost human and alive. Miss Wallace also entertains with singing and dancing.

The Belden-Capelle company presents a roaring farce, entitled "Oh, Doctor!" depicting the ludicrous but ingenious scheme of two stranded actors to raise some money. Arthur Whitman, the Irish-American, hands out a budget of Marxey and then concludes his act with a sweetly sentimental recitation, entitled "The Top of the Morning." Les Montforts are premier performers on the horizontal bars and their act has a novel feature of their own, entitled "Looping the Loop." Al and Mattie Barlow give a charming pianola including some new and catchy songs. Lewis and Dolly make you laugh with their parodies and funny stuff. Then there are the pictures; in all the greatest bill presented this season. Telephone for seats in advance, 28.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

"A Knight for a Night," Henry Rousseau's side-splitting farce comedy, is not only full of fun but crowded with it, for there isn't a serious moment in the entire play unless one excepts a sort time in the third act when Mr. William Walsh sings "Maid of My Dreams" with fine effect, accompanied by Miss Lucille Spinney, on the piano, and even then the occasion of the singing causes a laugh for the singer is about to do a quiet disappearing act when he is held up by his mother-in-law, who is always on the job. As

"Junius Cushman Brags," actor-manager and producer, Donald Meek has never appeared in a more laugh-provoking part. He has a make-up that is fearfully and wonderfully made and which leaves no doubt as to the nature of the character he portrays, while his gesticulations and carriage enhance the fun of his dialogue. Mr. Meek is positively a scream in the part and he gets the laughs in legitimate manner, not resorting to horseplay to bring out the fun. The other members of the company are all cast in congenial roles, all of a humorous nature, and the play abounds in funny situations. "A Knight for a Night" is excellently staged, great care having been given to this important feature.

Next week the Donald Meek company will present the beautiful play, "The Struggle," a comedy drama similar in nature to the famous "Music Master."

The advance sale of seats for the concluding performances of "A Knight for a Night" has been large and those who intend witnessing the play are advised to order their seats at once. The box office telephone is 811.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

If you are partial to a good one-act melodrama, if you like good singing, if a wild west entertainment hits your fancy, if you care for an excellent animal act, or if the very best of photo-plays are to your particular liking, you'll find it at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Consider the quantity and quality of the attractions at this popular playhouse, then give a thought to the prices asked and if they can be duplicated hereabouts then let's know it. John J. Quigley, singer, well known in all of the big cities of the east as the original newsboy tenor, in a series of his latest and best song successes, is only one of the several good things contained in this week's bill. Mr. Quigley still retains all the charm as a vocalist that made him a general favorite in the past, and his songs this week are among his favored selections. Our stock company in Al E. Watts' one-act play, "By the Midnight Train," is a clever short story play that has pleased many audiences. Nebraska Bill & Co. give a novel wild west entertainment, and Reed's Acrobatic Bull Terriers are especially amusing in their varied program of wonderful feats. A pair of comedians provide good entertainment, and the photo-plays for the last three days of the week are now. Tonight the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the opera "Norma." Next week's bill promises many good things. "The Base Ball Fans" and "Ah-Line Foo" will appear on next week's bill.

49 DELEGATES

ATTENDED MEETING OF TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Forty-nine delegates, representing 21 unions, answered the roll call at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council held at 32 Middle street last night. A communication from the commission on compensation for industrial accidents, offering to send a speaker to explain the new law, was read and it was voted to ask the commission to send a speaker to the next regular meeting, Dec. 7.

The legislative committee made a report of its doings during the last two weeks and the report was accepted.

CHAMPIONSHIP FOOTBALL GAME

The Palmers and Indians, two of the strongest football teams of the city, will meet at Washington park, Saturday afternoon, at 2.30, to battle for the championship of the city. The game will be interesting and lively as both teams have a good following of rooters and are playing fast football. The game was scheduled for the Textile campus but the place was changed as the high school team does not play on that date and Washington park is more convenient.

The line-ups:
Palmers—Connors, Donoghue, Lyons, Boland, Healey, Kivlan, Sullivan, Dowd, Fahy, Fawcett, McMahon, Cassidy, Mooney, Corcoran, Brennan.

Indians—McHugh, Ross, Moran, Conlon, Murphy, Quinn, Mahon, O'Halloran, Donnellan, Perna, Toy, Roarko, Ogden, Laurin and Varnum.

BIG TIMBER LAND

Bought by the New Haven Road

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—With a view to bringing about closer relations with the New England farmer and for the encouragement of agriculture, the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. Co. through its industrial bureau has recently secured a favorable option on 36,000 acres of farm and timber land in Maine, a part of which the Maine Central Railroad Co. will use for an experimental farm under the supervision of the bureau with the idea of colonizing the property at a later date. The New Haven company also has erected a large warehouse at its Harlem river terminal for the express purpose of providing storage and giving New England farmers opportunity to reach the Harlem and Bronx markets with their farm produce.

The 135 pound weight tonight is a concession to Hogan, who frankly confessed that he could not make the 125 pound lightweight limit and retain his strength. A victory to either boy means probably a match with Ad Wolgast for the world's championship.

RICE INDUSTRY

THIS COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Cultivation of rice in the United States has increased so rapidly in recent years that this country now is growing practically all the rice it consumes, according to the department of agriculture. Some special varieties of rice, however, are still being imported for the use of Orientals, who do not take the product of this country. The Philippines and the islands of the Caribbean sea now get their supply of rice from the United States. Reports received by the department of agriculture show that the acreage of Louisiana and Arkansas has increased approximately 700,000 in the last two years, although the majority of farmers in this section know little about the irrigation of their land.

THE CHINESE CABINET

Will Have a Brief Existence,
It is Believed

PEKING, Nov. 17.—7:48 p. m. China's first experiment with a constitutional cabinet dominated by Chinese does not promise much except as a stepping stone to something more permanent. The local newspapers express the opinion that the administration of Premier Yuan Shi Kai will be brief. Some of those selected ministers have already declined to serve. It is believed that a few of the members were even consulted before their names were announced in the imperial edict yesterday. The membership is a strange mixture of Manchus and Chinese, supporters of the throne and out and out reformers. The ostensible purpose was to reconcile all factions but the suspicion exists in some quarters that Yuan deliberately constituted a government a continuation of which he knew to be impossible.

Anty Drudge—"Let him fix it, Dearie; and don't fear the grease. Fels-Naptha will take out all the grease spots and stains. It's as good for 'dry cleaning' garments as it is for washing clothes."

Where there's a will there's a way.

But, usually, only one way.

Fels-Naptha is the way through which you can free yourself from the drudgery of the old-fashioned washday—if you will.

What is that drudgery?

Boiling clothes, making fires, hard rubbing.

Fels-Naptha lops it all off, takes it out of your washday program.

Fels-Naptha itself does all the work that you yourself would have to do in the roundabout way, summer or winter.

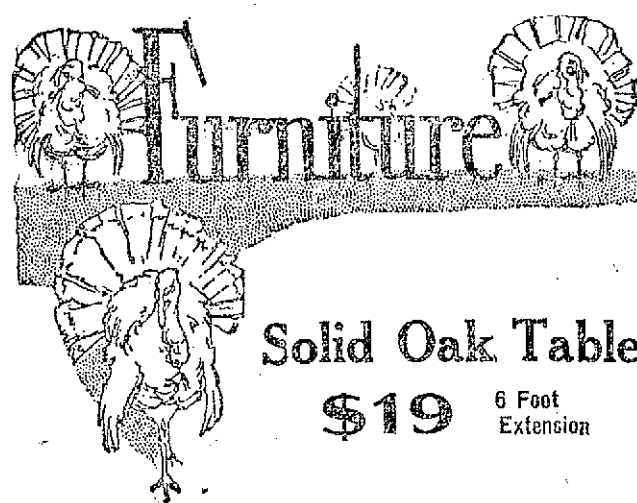

And it does it in cool or lukewarm water, without hot fire, without nauseous suds or steam in the house, without hard rubbing.

Have you the will to cut loose from the old ways—to free yourself from this drudgery?

Follow the easy directions on the back of the red and green wrapper.

THE BOYS' COUNCIL

Held Opening Banquet at Paige Street Baptist Church

The Paige Street Baptist church was the scene last evening of the opening banquet of the Boys' Council of the men and religion forward movement of Lowell.

John Jacob Rogers was toastmaster and introduced the speakers of the evening. Mr. Rogers regretted that the framers of the program had not included him among the speech makers and he wanted the boys to know that he was thoroughly interested in the movement.

After a baritone solo by Frank L. Laprise the toastmaster introduced

Rev. B. R. Harris, pastor of the Paige Street Baptist church, in the course of his remarks. Mr. Harris said that a church without boys was a dying church. "I wish I could congratulate you all," he said, "on what you are bringing into the churches."

In introducing the speaker of the evening, H. W. Gibson, secretary for the boys of Massachusetts and Rhode Island Y. M. C. A.'s, Mr. Rogers referred to him as "the man of many titles." Mr. Gibson said in part:

"In speaking to you tonight I feel a great responsibility, as well as a great pleasure. In this boys' forward movement there are already enrolled over 1,000,000 boys."

Speaking of the necessary requisites to make any movement a success, Mr. Gibson said that energy was an important one. "A boy," he said, "is just one bundle of energy, almost ceaseless energy. We can forgive and rejoice in the noise and dirt of the average healthy boy. When a boy sits around and doesn't get noisy, we immediately conclude that the boy is sick. As for the dirt, I guess that all you boys remember the circular motion with which you applied the washcloth to your faces with one full swoop, dabbed a little of the moisture on the back of your necks, and in reply to your mother's questioning on this subject, held out the towel to her as evidence. We want boys who are noisy because those boys are energetic. Have you ever noticed how lustily boys can sing a song that they like? I remember reading a little story of a boy who was in Sunday school who were singing the hymn, 'I Want to Be an Angel,' at least all the boys were singing with the exception of one. The teacher asked him why he didn't sing as the others were, and he replied, 'Cause, I don't want to be an angel.' I have always had a lot of respect for that boy. When boys sing songs they ought to mean every word of those songs just as much as any spoken word."

"And another thing is rightness, mainly rightness. Now I was glad to see that you men had men to serve you tonight, and had not asked a band of tired-out mothers to come down here and prepare and serve a dinner for you. You did it in a manly way. You hired men to do it for you. I have been to 11 banquets in the last 15 days in the interest of this movement, and I am glad to say that all but three were served by men."

"Vigor is another thing which we need. I have always held the porous plaster in high esteem because, even though everybody turns his back to it, it sticks there and can't be separated from its job until it is finished. Now it will take vigor for us to stick to our jobs, but it is well worth while. There is little place in this world for quitters."

"And in closing I want to tell you that Christianity is a man's religion. When some big, strapping fellow walks up to you and asks, 'If a big boy like you still goes to Sunday school, just tell him that that is a man's job and tell him to try it and find out.' It took courage for the early Christians to stick to their religion and allow themselves to be used as torches at Nero's garden parties. So I hope that every one of you boys will go out and work and make this great movement mean what it ought to mean right in your own church."

Mr. Henry A. Smith was next introduced and made a short speech. The following are the officers of the organization: President, Jas. A. Grant; vice president, Harlan Foster; secretary, George Wilkins; treasurer, Philip E. Thissell.

The committee chairmen are as follows: Boys' work, Mr. R. W. MacAllister; social service, Nelson C. Chase; Bible study, Frank W. Callahan; mission, Howard A. Hands; evangelism, Chester Chase; finance committee, Philip E. Thissell; Ian Leggett, A. R. Barrow, Wesley Brown, Harlan Foster, banquet and program committee, Mr. Fred Timmins, Leander P. ## INTERESTING BOOK

PUBLISHED BY NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE S. A. R.

The National society of the Sons of the American revolution recently published a very interesting book entitled the "National Year Book." This book has 368 pages and contains the list of the general officers and of national committees for 1911, national charter, constitutional and by-laws, officers of state societies and local chapters, proceedings of Louisville congress, May 1 to 3, 1911, records of members enrolled from May 1, 1910, to April 30, 1911.

The frontispiece of this book is a beautiful engraving of the president general, Moses Greeley Parker of this city, with several other pictures of interest are also printed in this souvenir book, among them being a large picture of the delegates at the Louisville congress, the said picture having been taken at the country club of the latter place.

The general officers of the society are: President general, Moses Greeley Parker, M. D., Lowell, Mass., vice presidents, Joseph G. Butler, Jr., Youngstown, Ohio; Gen. Irving Hale, Denver, Col.; R. C. Ballard, Thurston, Louisville, Ky.; George O. Dix, Terra Haute, Ind.; Commander John H. Moore, U. S. N., 1755 P. St. N. W., Washington, D. C.; secretary general and ex-officio general, A. Howard Clark, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.; treasurer general, John H. Burroughs, New York; historian general, David L. Pierson, East Orange, N. J.; chaplain general, Rev. Timothy Stone, D. D., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Parker was escorted to the president general's office by Mr. Crandall, president of the Massachusetts society of the Sons of the American revolution, who when he made the presentation delivered the following speech:

"Mr. President General I arise to nominate a compatriot who has served faithfully in his local chapter, and built it from a membership of 25 to nearly a hundred in his two years' administration; a man whose love of history, whose natural feeling of affection for the traditions of his commonwealth and native town, made him see in our society an opportunity for useful work—a man who saw nothing in the dry accident of ancestry comparable with the opportunities to serve his state, and his brethren, by his efforts in their behalf. The tablets and monuments which he began, and to which his genius and zeal largely contributed, attest the enthusiasm which our compatriot has shown in the cause we love so well. Our state society, marking well with zeal, placed him on its board of managers, and elevated him through the vice-presidential chair to the presidential chair of our state society of the Sons of the American revolution, and he gave us a splendid administration. You know him well, compatriots, you have met him. He is familiar to you all. If elevated to the national presidency, he will give to you the same heart and talent and zeal, the same quiet, modest, telling, enthusiastic work that he gave to us, that know him and love him for his work. He is the unanimous choice of 1625 out of the 1626 members who compose the Massachusetts society, he being the other member. He has built into the warp and woof of our country. He is a true Massachusetts man, and that means a true American. It needs no word of eulogy from me to prove his high character and his worth, for his fidelity and willingness to serve, as shown by his own history in the Massachusetts society, are his ample testimonial. And he will justify your confidence, if you will but call on him, as the exponent of the commonwealth he represents, to gain yet higher honor by yet more service—the only way in which men realize on earth their dream of heaven. Mr. President: 'We learn from him that rugged truth and zeal.

Win for a man true word. That's even in midst of selfishness. Biting the world, such good lives bless.

And to our hearts reveal. True manhood's noble crown and God's approving seal. I place in nomination, Mr. President General, as a tribute from the heart of Massachusetts, Moses Greeley Parker, M. D.

COURT DAZED

DEFENDANT WAS WOMAN'S STEPSON AND SON-IN-LAW

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The clerk of the court handed the papers to the presiding justice who noted that the family name of the defendant was the same as that of the defendant. "Are you any relation?" queried Justice Hoyt of Mrs. Alice Conney of 231 West 120th street, who in the papers declared that William J. Conney of 2984 Eighth avenue had assaulted her. "Sure," said Mrs. Conney. "I'm his stepmother and his mother-in-law."

"What?" said the three justices. "I said, 'Sure!'" nodded Mrs. Conney. "You see, his father is my husband, but before his father married me he had been previously married and by that marriage his father became father of a son, being him—William."

As it were. Now, you see, I had also been previously married and being married had a daughter by my first husband. And as a widow I married this boy's father, my husband, and about the same time his son married my daughter. And then—"

"Help!" gasped Justice Hoyt, raising his arms gently toward the ceiling. "Anyway," said Mrs. Conney's lawyer, "it's but a family quarrel, and both sides are very, very sorry for it all."

"I am, anyway," breathed Justice Hoyt, pressing his temples. And so it came to pass that William J. Conney, son-in-law stepson of Mrs. Alice Conney, was discharged and warned never again to molest his parent of two relations.

PRESIDENT MELLEN

Tells About the Railroad Conditions in New Hampshire

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 17.—Great a burden it may become a necessity to reduce the rentals paid, if not by negotiation with the owners in last resort through the medium of the courts and a receivership.

"Nothing but the support given the Boston & Maine in the present crisis is responsible for which conditions are being so severely on the Boston & Maine at the present time it must save every dollar it can to preserve its solvency and must postpone improvements and refuse aid to much needed development or at least expend such little energy as remains to it in other communities where what it does will be better appreciated and there is such promise of return as will mitigate, in some measure the losses it is bound to incur in the state of New Hampshire."

The proposition laid before the Suncoke Valley stockholders was that President Mellen was willing to recommend to the Boston & Maine directors to request the Concord & Montreal to offer to exchange Concord & Montreal class A stock for Suncoke Valley stock on the basis of one of the former for three of the latter. The Concord & Montreal stock pays seven per cent. under the Boston & Maine lease, thus making 2 1-3 per cent. for the Suncoke stock. It received 6 per cent. under the lease about to expire. It was stated the stockholders had asked for a renewal of the lease at 5 per cent., which had been declined. It was stated that this means the road hereafter will be operated independently, the Boston & Maine declining to lease on any terms and the Suncoke Valley to sell at any price offered.

The stockholders instructed their committee to ascertain if a satisfactory arrangement could be made with the Boston & Maine for the joint operation of the entire line and, if not, to devise some other plan for the operation of the road at the expiration of the lease on Jan. 1. The Suncoke stockholders will meet again in this city, Nov. 21.

PENNY LUNCHEONS

WILL BE A FIXTURE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Penny lunches, which the school board, as an experiment, began to serve a few months ago, have developed into a part of the curriculum in several of the public schools here. They have been found to be of great value in making the children more plump and the brains more active. Before the lunches were instituted many of the children seemed backward in their studies. It was found that nearly all of these came from families in straitened circumstances. Then the school board began the lunches to see if it was food that was needed. Within a short time it was found that there was a remarkable improvement.

At a school in the north side Italian district yesterday 202 children were fed. They disposed of 17 loaves of bread, generously spread with butter and molasses, and six gallons of milk. In addition to being fed the children are being taught table etiquette.

NAVY DEPARTMENT

To Try a New Main Battery Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Three 14-inch guns will appear in each of two turrets on the giant battleships Oklahoma and Nevada, bids for the construction of which are to be received by the navy department next month. This innovation in the design of new vessels is exciting considerable interest in naval circles. No ship now afloat has more than two big guns in a turret and while Italy and Russia are building several vessels designed for them they will use 12-inch rifles.

It is explained that the primary purpose of concentrating guns in fewer turrets is to reduce tonnage. On the Oklahoma and Nevada the weight of one great turret will be eliminated, as with the new arrangement only four turrets will be required for the main battery of 19 14-inch rifles. The New York and Texas, now under construction and which, when commissioned, will be the only craft in the world with 14-inch main batteries, are designed along the old lines with their big guns placed two in each of five turrets.

With the completion of the New York and Texas the United States will wrest from Great Britain the distinction of having the world's heaviest armed warship. At present England's 13.5-inch gun ships hold this place, the American dreadnaughts in commission carrying only 12-inch rifles.

Peculiar interest attaches to the result of the three-gun turret experiment because of the bearing it may have upon the size of main batteries in the future. Heretofore it has been held that the 14-inch rifle used in coast defense batteries never would be practicable aboard a battleship because of its tremendous recoil. It is now believed, however, that a turret platform that would stand the strain from the recoil of three 14-inch guns certainly would hold up under the firing of two 16-inchers.

Kilpatrick, and manager of Kilpatrick's Spa in Merrimack square since its establishment in the Sun building, has leased the store known as the Outlet at the corner of Bridge and Paige streets, where on Nov. 25 he will open a first class fruit and confectionery establishment at which he will be pleased to meet his many friends.

ACTRESS ACCUSED

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO CONCEAL A CHILD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed with Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday, Grace Carlyle, the actress, was accused of conspiring with Mrs. Rosalie Sawyer to conceal the latter's 4-year-old daughter Ruth, from her husband, Harry S. Sawyer, and his mother, Sarah Sawyer, of Salem, Mass. The petitioners asked that the court give them custody of the child under a decree of the probate court of Suffolk county, Mass.

In reply to the petition, Mrs. Rosalie Sawyer said that she is a stenographer, employed by the Selwyn company, play brokers, and abundantly able to care for her child. She is sharing an apartment with her friend, Miss Carlyle, at 181 W. Fifty-fourth street, but denies that Miss Carlyle is in any way interested in keeping the little girl from her father.

Mrs. Sawyer said she was married to Harry S. Sawyer in 1905 in this city. She says that while she was abroad her husband and his mother had themselves declared guardians of the child through fraud and for that reason she asks that the courts of this state ignore the Massachusetts order. Justice Bischoff appointed Peter B. Olney referee to determine the case.

LIFE OF BISHOP DELANY

One of the latest books out is the "Life and Writings of the Rev. John D. Delany, D. D., second bishop of Manchester, N. H. by 'G. C. D.' published by the Lawler Printing company of this city which has been published at the earnest request of many of the clergy and laity who were friends and admirers of the late bishop. The book, as the author states is not a formal biography but a compilation from various sources from the bishop's diaries, his home letters, editorials which appeared in The Guidon, public speeches and occasional articles. The various chapters deal with his family history, his early life, seminary life, priestly life, his work as editor of The Guidon, his episcopacy and finally his poems.

The ordinary reader will find the book well worth reading on account of the picture it paints of one of God's noble priests who was ever willing to spend and be spent for the cause of truth. The friends of Bishop Delany, and they were legion, will find a word of a book which tells of a life which had so much to commend it to those who knew him and loved him.

An interesting preface is written by Bishop Anderson of Boston, a lifelong friend of the deceased, while it also contains the following from the pen of Cardinal O'Connell:

"He worked all his life as he had seen men work in the busy city where his youth sped by. There in the early morn bells sounded to labor and again at night to rest. His brain was too active, his mind too vigorous, his heart too happy to ever know what idleness meant."

"As a student he still studied when his task was finished. As a priest he still found or invented new duties when these allotted to him were completed. As a bishop he planned new labors when the end came."

"Would the calm, the inactivity, the inertia of age have attracted him? God knows best, and forever silenced at questioning. He was laborer in the vineyard, and he died laboring. Others will reap what he has sown, but the best seed he ever sowed was love of joyful work in the cause of God and His church."

A glance at the contents shows that Bishop Delany wrote considerable poetry all of a moral or didactic nature, showing his piety and purity of soul, his aspirations to serve his Master worthily and help the weak, the fallen and wayward with loving sympathy and Christian charity. Those who have known Bishop Delany will have a higher opinion of his literary ability and even of his saintly character after reading this book.

The book is neatly gotten up and will make a gift worth while for the Catholic home.

SALISBURY BEACH

Owners of Cottages May Appeal to Court

HAVERHILL, Nov. 17.—Owners of cottages at Salisbury beach whose land leases expire April 30, 1912, are fighting mad over the latest step taken by the Salisbury Beach Associates, which affects between 40 and 50 cottagers, a number of whom reside in this city and Lawrence, and several threaten to bring the matter into the equity court and making the alleged owners of the beach prove their claim.

What the cottage owners consider the latest indignity on the part of the new owners comes to one of the cottage owners in the form of a letter, dated Nov. 13, from Walter Coulson, a

Lawrence attorney and one of the Salisbury Beach Associates. The man receiving this letter owns two cottages which he considers worth $1500 as they stand, but they would not be worth $300 to move. The letter reads: "I have an offer of twelve hundred and fifty dollars ($1250) for your lot without the buildings, at Salisbury beach. If you desire it at that price you have a preference under our rules. If you will advise me this week, otherwise, it will be sold subject to the lease which expires April 30, 1912.

"If you desire the lot you could either pay cash, or pay 20 per cent down, and we will take back a mortgage at 5 per cent for the balance."

In answer to the above the cottage owners declare that the new owners are holding them up for a big price for the land upon which their cottages now stand. There is no offer to renew the lease. The owner must either buy the land or move his buildings off or tear them down, otherwise they will be sold subject to the terms of the present lease. This leaves no alternative. There is no place to which a cottage may be moved, provided an owner should desire to move, although one man, it is said, has moved his cottage from Salisbury to Hampton beach to escape the clutch of the new owners. Furthermore, the man who received the above letter is given less than a week to reach a decision.

Importance of Accessories to the Woman Who Would Be Well Dressed

SHOES OF THE MOMENT.
LONG EARRINGS ARE VERY FASHIONABLE.

"SMART" accessories are the salvation of the woman whose dress account is limited. It is through them that a woman saves her costume from being monotonous and by them that she presents an appearance of smartness at any and at all times even though she possess but two gowns to her name. If she is clever in the selection of boots and slippers, veils and ties, jabots and frills, she can face the world with the assurance that she is well dressed. She must always remember, first, that they must be fresh; second, that they must be as odd as she pleases and, third, that the law of harmony does not exist concerning accessories.

So says Mme. Simone, the famous French actress, who recently made her American debut in New York. And as this famous lady has the reputation of being the best dressed woman on the French stage she speaks as one with authority.

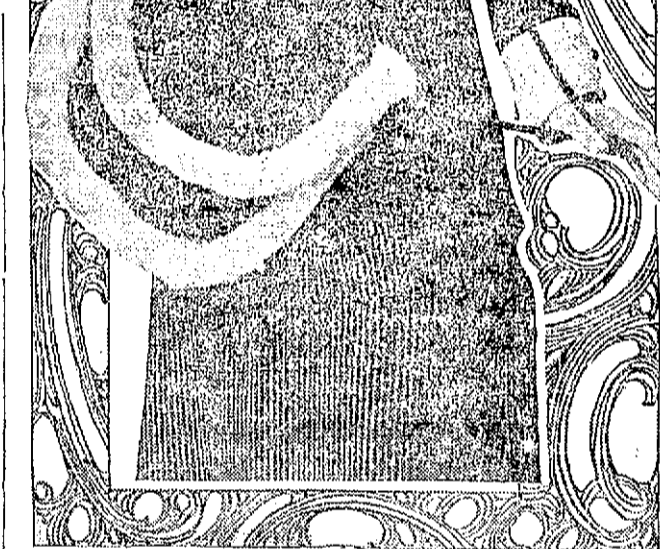

If one were asked to name the most important costume accessory of the season the answer would come without hesitation—footwear. Street skirts are so short and scant that they display the foot to an alarming extent. Therefore it behooves the woman who would be smartly gowned to spend on her new shoes all she can afford.

The woman with conventional dress notions will not like the idea of wearing high white boots with her navy blue, dark green or gray walking suit, yet these white boots are the "last cry" in Paris. She may, however, compromise on white or elephant gray spats worn over patent leather pumps and be quite as much in the fashion picture nowadays.

Striped walking costumes are the rage this season, and the bootmakers' very latest models have striped tops. Button boots this winter are more fashionable than laced ones, and when of black leather they have stitchelements and trimmings of white or of a color to harmonize with the costume with which they are worn.

The side button boot that Paris is daff over has been brought out in a variety of chic combinations by one of the shoe houses. The boots are twelve button high, and real pearl buttons extend on the outside of the foot clear to the sole.

In most of the boots these buttons are not sewed through, to prevent their shanks from hurting the foot. The boots have very short rumps of patent leather, while all the rest is of cloth or leather kid. The cloth tops come in purple, gray or black, and the kid in dull black or white. The Cuban heels, about an inch and three-quarters high, are of leather. The eighteen button kind at $5.50, which boots are $7, a rather high price. Another distinctly smart style is the leather, patent leather with cloth or kid tops and patent leather with white tops and black buttons. These boots are about nine inches high.

Stripes, stripes everywhere, is the Paris cry. Hats have striped trimmings, and even the reticule swinging from its long cord is striped. The bag illustrated is of black and white striped taffeta with a lining of brilliant red moire. A convenient little change purse fitting into the bag is fashioned of the striped taffeta.

Other necessities that smarten up the costume wonderfully are the hat and collar and bag en suite trimmed with swansdown. Such a charming combination is to be seen in one of the pictures. The hat is of black velvet with a swansdown brim. It is the very latest trimming notion from the City of Light. To match the hat there are a velvet and swansdown collar and reticule. This is very chic.

And in connection with neckwear—

have you seen the new high stock? This novelty in neckwear is boned from the shoulder and is flaring at the top. Such stocks have been seen on French gowns with a double ruching of that gaudy hand finishing them. Another of the neckwear daintinesses is the soft turnover collar of fine linen embroidered in color and accompanied by a wide side jabot or frill that has embroidered linen, making a front piece that is most attractive.

Now about earrings. You may consider yourself sartorially unknown if you don't own a pair of long dangling earrings. There are many styles, some large round loops, others which lie close to the lobe of the ear, but most striking are those which almost touch the shoulder of the wearer. The earrings illustrated are all combinations of jet and pearls with the exception of the loops, which are of coral.

As a parting suggestion let me say, if you want to be in the know, don't wear your watch on a gold or jeweled chain. The black satin ribbon of not quite half inch width decorated with small silks is preferred to the watch chain. The ribbon is not only used with tailored suits, where it is much smarter than an ornamental chain, but it is also used with the elaborate afternoon gowns. Where the watch is worn as a pendant.

CATHERINE TALEOT.

RATINE ONE OF THE SMARTEST OF FABRICS

RATINE velours is one of the most exclusive suit materials of the winter. This velours ratine looks like plush, but is not in the least unwieldy, although it is very thick and wears forever.

It comes in plum purple, the deep red black tone, in dull green, in gun metal and gray stripes and, that most fashionable of all shades, elephant gray.

A French maker has sent over a coat suit of ratine in elephant gray. The skirt is tight, with a seam down the middle of the front and a tunic effect over the hips, running up to the high waist line and ending in a point at the back. The coat is an empire affair with two shoulder capes that run to the waist. The sleeves are long and fasten with gun metal buttons, which also hold the coat together in front.

These ratine suits are wonderfully smart if made with raw edges, button-holed by hand. This work adds to the expense of the suit, but it is smart and novel.

PLATINUM JEWELRY.

PLATINUM jewelry is being shown this season in most attractive designs, and it is being made more durable by the addition of iridium. This alloy makes the platinum much harder and makes it possible to use it in the finest of spider web designs. A mounting for diamonds which is meeting with approval is called technically the "glass setting." In this the platinum can barely be seen at all. Just the jewel, with the merest line of metal to hold it, is seen. In the pearl dog collars a new setting separates the pearls and holds them in a chain work of platinum, which adds to the strength of the collar and is very effective in appearance.

A CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

TREES FOR MILADY'S SLIPPERS

HERE is just the thing to give the girl who has a lot of dance slippers to keep in good condition—ribbon trimmed trees to keep the pretty little shoes from losing their shape.

Oddities and Originalities In Furs

THE very first thought of frost that provided a good excuse for ailing the new muff and scarf sets revealed such a stunning lot of novelties as has not been seen for many a year. There is no end of oddities, to say nothing of the simple and less conspicuous models.

A woman with a piece of fur of any size at all can make or have it made up into a scarf and muff with the main part of a handsome fabric, and she will be among the sartorially elect. If she adds a hat to the set then indeed she will be of the chosen. If she has not a glint of fur for such a purpose she can get taffeta enough for the entire set. With the addition of a little fur, some gauze to veil it and perhaps a handsome ornament for the muff and another for the hat, if she is to have a hat of the kind, she can own one of the very newest of these sets, for the satin or taffeta scarf and muff veiled with chiffon or tulle—chiffon will wear better—and then trimmed round and round with fringe or pinked ruching is the "height of the fashion."

A delightful set displayed at an opening recently had a big flat muff which was all of thirty inches wide at the top. It was made of emerald green satin laid in wide side plaits and veiled with black tulle. The muff narrowed at the bottom and was finished there with a handsome passementerie ornament falling in tassels over a kind of jabot of tulle. The scarf was of the same character, and the hat matched them. A taffeta muff, scarf and hat in the same display were all trimmed round and round with pinked box plaited cuffs. The hat was a bonnet shaped brimless affair like an actual length of stovepipe than anything else, and it was covered with the taffeta, which was drawn tightly over it and then trimmed with six rows of ruches used at intervals around it. From one side there went up two long ostrich feathers put on with the underside of the feather outside, and the birds very tightly curled and the ends towering above the crown in a whirl. An odd cabochon with drops finished the hat at the side where the feathers went on.

Beautiful brocades are used for these scarf and muff sets whether the hat matches or not. The velvet and the satin brocades are both employed for the purpose, but in many cases the hard effect of such materials is softened with a veiling of chiffon. Hand-some gold lace trim many such sets of brocade and fur.

Speaking of pelts, a furrier recently threw out some hints about cutting fur to a woman who has a knack of doing things. He said: "Never cut fur with scissors. Lay it fur down on a board, mark with a pencil on the skin where you need to cut and then use a sharp knife." It's astonishing what wonderful things can be done with a few odds and ends of left over peltry.

The new velvet ribbon sashes are other oddities of the season that the young girls are "just crazy" over and wear with their afternoon and evening frocks.

It Is Truly Oriental

THE SAVORY SANDWICH AND OTHER Dainties

CHEESE Toast Sandwiches.—Cut slices of white bread rather thicker than is customary for sandwiches. Pass together through a meat chopper a half pound of cheese and two green peppers with the seeds removed. Season to taste with salt and pepper and work together so as to form a paste. Butter one slice of bread and spread the other slice with the filling. Press firmly together, remove the crust and toast both sides. Serve very hot as an accompaniment to a cup of coffee.

Lobster Savory.—Two cups of shredded lobster, two tablespoons of butter, seasoning, the juice of one lemon. Pick the lobster over carefully, removing all particles of shell, divide into convenient sized pieces and saute in the butter for ten minutes. Add the lemon juice, heat thoroughly and serve either on toast or with a salted cracker. This can be used either as a luncheon dish or as an after dinner snack.

SALAD MAKING.

Dressing For Fruit Salad.—The juice of two oranges and one lemon, one-half cup of sugar, the whites of one very lightly beaten egg and a little salt, two tablespoons of sherry or other white wine. Put all the ingredients except the wine into the inner vessel of a double boiler. Bring to the boiling point and cook for two minutes. Strain and set aside until cold, then pour over the fruit salad, which is made by blending together two oranges, three bananas, the latter peeled and with the soft brown substance scraped off. When serving garnish with crisp lettuce leaves and sprinkle one-half cup of chopped nuts over the whole. This can be used either as a plain salad or as a dessert.

Mayonnaise Dressing.—Into a dry cold bowl put the yolk of one egg and add to it, drop by drop, half a pint of olive oil, stirring all the time the oil is being added. Either lemon juice or vinegar can be used for the acid ingredient, vinegar making the thicker dressing and lemon juice affording the more delicate flavor. About four tablespoons of either of these will be the correct proportions to the above amount of oil. The salt should never be added to the dressing until after it is made. Adding it sooner is one of the most frequent causes of curdling. If, in spite of all precaution, the dressing should curdle, put another yolk of egg into another bowl and add to it the spoiled dressing very gradually, continuing and finishing with more oil. The dressing should be made in a cold place to secure the best results. This dressing is delicious used over olive salad. Take one cup of olives, one cup of fried cubes of ham, a very little grated onion, a cup of celery seasoned according to taste. Mix at least half of the dressing into the salad ingredients and use the remainder to mask the top.

THE HADEE TUNIC.

THIS graceful little garment, named after the lovely Greek girl in the "Count of Monte Cristo," is a fetching addition to a simple afternoon frock of any material. This Hadee tunic is of dull green chiffon embroidered in gold, with a gold cord girdle and yellow ball fringe trimming.

Peace and the Bath

SOME wise person has said: "There are two kinds of people in this world—those who take a bath every day and those who do not take a bath every day. The two classes should not intermarry, for they are fundamentally uncongenial."

"The sage might have gone considerably further," observed the woman who thinks, "He ought to have divided the bath-every-day-people according to temperature, those who take it hot and those who take it cold, for these two subdivisions are as remote as the north pole from the south. Perched on a peak of superiority the cold water advocate looks down on the person who takes the chill off the water. It proffeth thee nothing to explain the merit you have on your side. It is of no use. If your water is warm you simply 'don't belong.'"

"I speak feelingly, though, quite without venom, because I chance to be one of the pariahs. I do not flop wall-rus-like into a tank of freezing water, pretending that it is the one thing to brace me up for the day—not if I see it first. And while I advocate fresh air at all times of the day and night—as for sleeping with the windows so wide open that the young blizzard raging without deposits before dawn a well developed snowdrift upon my counterpane—I would just a little rather not."

The chief argument against the health crank lies in the fact that he is seldom, if ever, willing to allow other persons to do as they see fit. The individual who thinks he has found the panacea to every ill insists that all mankind follow in his, perhaps, misguided footsteps, whether his hobby be cold baths, hot baths or no baths at all, a glass of cold water on rising, one of hot milk when retiring, swinging dumbbells before and Indian clubs after every meal, massage or new thought, eschewing all food except peanuts, which are to be chewed at least a hundred times. You and I, my learned friend, who refuse to conform to one of these stringent and arbitrary tests are sure to be weighed in the balance and found grievously wanting.

"But cheer up, for, after all, this little republic is still a free country. So let us be as happy and unhygienic as we like."

Styles For the Waitress

NEW YORK women of the smart set have decided this season to dress their waitresses as are the maids in France who are detailed to show visitors through the famous chateaux. They are picturesque in black moire silk aprons, with black velvet ribbon bows at belt and a velvet band at the hem. These aprons are worn with lustrous black alpaca gowns made severely plain and close fitting.

There is also a reaction in favor of fine hemstitched bands for collars and cuffs, because these never offend the house, as did the Byron collars so popular for the properly dressed maids of last year.

THE NEW WHITE VEIL AND HOW TO WEAR IT

WHITE SILK VEIL IN FLORAL DESIGN.

SILK veils absolutely without dressing are now the fad, and a beautiful example of these white silk veils is illustrated. This fine meshed "beautifier" is draped around the brim of a rather small hat and is allowed to fall over the shoulders and far down the back. The effect is very graceful.

This Year's Corset Lines

LOWER in the bust than ever are the stays of the present season, and the sloping kimono sleeves and the graceful draped fichu are but the tendencies which point the way for the new figure.

Some of the newest French corsets are merely girdles above the waist line, frequently not reaching to the bust. The idea is to give one long line from shoulder to waist—a gently sloping line with the bust as low as possible, which is becoming.

But not below the waist are corsets growing shorter. Far from it. Longer and still longer they grow until one wonders how women are going to wear them—that is, sit down in them with comfort. But they can, for many of the corsets are not heavily boned, but beautifully shaped and so arranged that the figure may be kept slim and youthful below the waist line. And not below the waist line alone is this youthfulness apparent, but above it as well. The high, lifted waist line, the low bust, the slim sloping shoulders—all these are calculated to keep madam from showing the ravages of time.

Very comfortable indeed are these new corsets, for if they hold the body trim and tight below the waist line they keep it supple and free above the waist, allowing ease and freedom of movement and perfect ease.

Why Not Give a Candy Pull?

WHERE is nothing in the way of informal entertaining more thoroughly enjoyed than an old fashioned candy pulling. Age cannot apparently alter its popularity. In fact, the danger is rather to forget how picturesque it has been in the past.

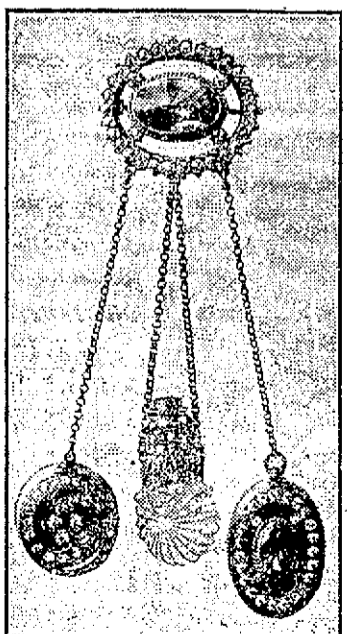

Arrange a pulling bee the next time an informal frolic is in order and see how well it is appreciated.

Get the girls to wear quaint chintz frocks with ruffled aprons and have some aprons of larger growth for the men, as all the guests will take part in the toll.

Let each girl wear a knot of ribbon, and as the men enter let them select similar knots from a basket, matching knots giving partners.

One pair of partners is detailed to crack nuts, another to pop corn, another to read up recipes, measure ingredients, etc. Then comes the pulling—sticky, but sweet.

LATEST TRIFLE IN VANITY BELONGINGS

THE NEW GIRDLE BROOCH.

DESIGNED for use with milady's evening toilets are these frivolous belongings, which include jeweled powder box, smelling bottle and mirror, swinging on gold chains from a girdle brooch of rhinestones with a tassel in the center.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS IN CAMP AT TRIPOLI

TRIPOLI, Nov. 17.—The Italian commanders here begin to realize that they have a long campaign ahead of them. The Turks are getting reinforcements from various Arab tribes and seem to be preparing for a determined attack on the city. The Arabs are being drilled by Turkish officers and have been supplied with uniforms and modern rifles. The Italian troops are kept at a high state of efficiency, their camps are models of army life, and every possible precaution is being taken to preserve the health of the soldiers.

A LIVELY BATTLE

Three Men Charged With Stealing Coal

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 17.—The appearance in court today of John Long of New York, captain of the coal barge Balloon, his mate, John Holland of Brooklyn, and John Darn of this city, to answer to charges of theft of coal from the barge was the sequel to a lively fight which occurred on board the Balloon last night in which State Senator Archibald McNeil, Jr., to whom the coal was consigned, the police and bargeemen took part. Mr. McNeil received word last night that coal was being taken from the barge, which had just arrived from Perth Amboy, and together with the police went down the harbor in a powerboat. They found a sloop lying alongside the barge and loading with coal. Boarding the Balloon, the officers placed the mate under arrest. They then went to the captain's cabin, where, after a stiff fight, Long was also made a prisoner. While the officers were struggling with the captain a member of the crew knocked the senator down and picked him up as if to throw him overboard, but on the latter's threats of shooting, released him. Darn, the owner of the sloop, stated that he had purchased the coal found aboard his sloop at 20 cents a bag.

SCHOONER LOST

Was Wrecked by Northwest Gale

NANTUCKET, Nov. 17.—The north-west gale that swept Nantucket Shoals during the past two days totally wrecked the three masted Bath, Mo. schooner Charles Wolsten on Great Point Rip early today, just misad destroying the two masted schooner Ella Clifton, five miles away and caused another coaster off Chatham to call for help from passing fishermen. The crew of the Wolsten were saved through the hardest kind of rowing and seamanship of the Eskata lifesaving crew, the Clifton was towed to Bass river by the revenue cutter Acushnet.

AN ATTENDANT

WAS ATTACKED BY A DELIRIOUS PATIENT

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—A delirious patient at the Carney hospital severely injured William Dower, an attendant, who was trying to subdue him yesterday, and the latter is now, according to his friends, in a serious condition. The report yesterday afternoon was that Dower, who is 22, is liable to die, but at the hospital last night it was stated that he is about and will attend to his duties in a few days.

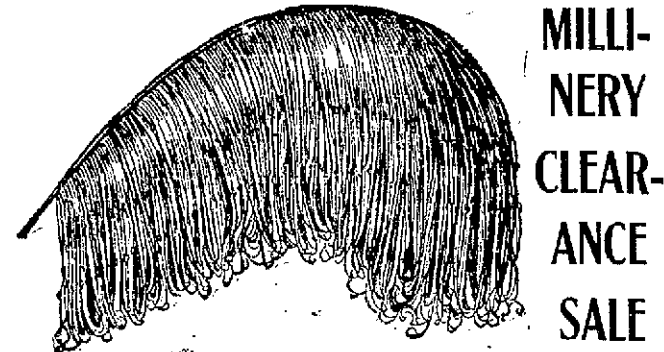

The patient, whose name the hospital authorities refuse to give, is a powerful man and in his frenzied struggles he kicked young Dower, causing the injury. Dower heard a woman nurse shrieking and rushed to the hospital yard, where the patient was.

When he attempted to put a straight-jacket on the man they rolled over on the ground together and Dower received his injury. The patient was finally overcome by several attendants and placed in a private ward under guard. The patient was suffering from spinal trouble and traumatic delirium. Dower is a son of William Dower of the Boston fire department and lives at 293 Main street, Charlestown.

FUNERALS

WATERHOUSE—The funeral of Mrs. Betty Waterhouse took place Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of her son, Herbert Waterhouse, Princeton street, North Chelmsford. The services were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moore, pastor of the Congregational church at North Chelmsford. The bearers were Ernest Chippendale, Herbert Dudley, Arthur Short, Sumner Queen, Fred Wilson and John Whitworth. Burial was in the Riverside cemetery at North Chelmsford. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Joseph Dillery, under the direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CLARK—The funeral of Dorothy R. Clark took place Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home of her parents, Harry D. and Ethel M. Clark, Highland avenue, North Chelmsford. The services were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moore, pastor of the Congregational church at North Chelmsford. Burial took place in the Elmwood cemetery, Methuen. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CURRIER—The funeral of Mrs. E. Currier took place from her residence, 35 Ludlum street on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and was largely attended. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Martin of Lexington, formerly of the Kirk Street Congregational church of this city and there were appropriate selections sung by Mrs. George Burns. The bearers were Messrs. Charles C. Swan, Louis Alexander, Ernest H. Thompson and Silas R. Cady. Burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery in charge of Undertaker J. B. Currier Co.

CONLON—The funeral of the late Cornelia Conlon took place from her late home in Chapel street this morning and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends of the deceased.

The funeral cortege left the house of mourning at 8:30 and proceeded to St. Peter's church, where a high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Fr. O'Brien.

The choir, under the direction of James E. Donnelly, sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Gertrude Kitcher. Mrs. John W. McKenney presided at the organ.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends, among them being a large standing cross on base from employees of M. Steinert & Sons; large wreath of gaily leaves and chrysanthemums, inscribed "Godfather," from Mrs. Marie Carroll; large spray, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Campbell, and spray from a friend.

The ushers at the house and church were Messrs. Martin D. Carroll, Joseph D. Carroll and John A. Quinn.

The bearers were Messrs. Jeremiah Doyle, Thomas Coleman, Brian Cavanagh, James J. O'Donnell, John Hall and Patrick Kennedy.

The long line of carriages wound its way to St. Patrick's cemetery, where Rev. John O'Brien read the committal prayers.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Daniel P. Carroll, and interment was under the direction of Thomas J. McDermott.

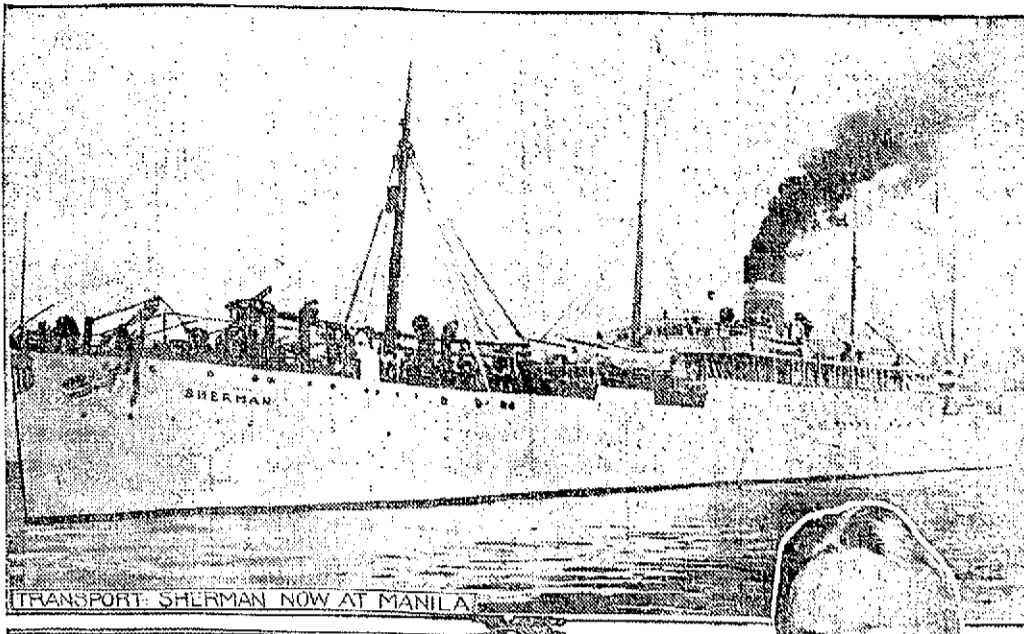

The deceased was a lifelong resident of St. Peter's parish. He was of a retiring disposition but made many friends. His demise will be felt keenly by his friends and family.

MACHADO—The funeral of Manuel Machado, beloved son of Manuel and Mary Machado, took place this morning at 10:30 from the home of the bereaved parents, 20 Chapel street, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The long cortege wound its way to St. Anthony's church, where prayers were said by Rev. Fr. Percut at 11 o'clock. There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. The funeral proceeded to St. Patrick's cemetery, where burial took place under the direction of Undertaker Thomas J. McDermott.

KEEFE—The funeral of the late Mrs. Jessie Keefe took place today from her late home, 25 Seventh street, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends of the deceased. The funeral left the house of mourning at 8:30 o'clock and proceeded to St. Michael's church where a high mass of requiem was sung at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr. Murphy officiating. The choir, under the direction of Thomas P. Boulger sang the Gregorian mass. Miss Margaret Griffin sustaining the solos. Miss Carolyn White presided at the organ. Seated in the sanctuary was Rev. Mr. Shaw.

There was a profusion of varied and beautiful floral offerings, the following being the most prominent: Large pillow from family; pillow inscribed "Grandma," from Cox family; cross on

TRANSPORT SHERMAN HELD AT MANILA TO TAKE TROOPS TO CHINA IF NECESSARY

TRANSPORT SHERMAN NOW AT MANILA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—General J. Franklin Bell, commander of the American forces in the Philippines, has been ordered to select such regiments as he may deem proper for service in China should it become necessary for foreign governments to interfere to preserve order there. The transport Sherman is being held at Manila to take the troops to China—wrecked from which port they would have but eighty miles to go to reach Peking. The Sherman is a vessel of 5600 tons and was formerly the Moltke of the Atlantic transport line. Under the protocol settling the Boxer uprising the powers have the right to land troops whenever necessary to protect the railroad and telegraph lines for the purpose of maintaining communication with the respective embassies and legations. When the present revolution began to spread northward toward Peking the foreign governments began consideration of protecting this railroad by an international force. Each government will send a small body of troops for the purpose. The troops will act in the capacity of an international police force and will only be used to protect the integrity of the railroad and telegraph.

The art exhibition at the Green-halge school on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week undoubtedly will be a pleasant and instructive occasion. Each evening there will be a short lecture in explanation of the collection, which gives an excellent idea of the history of art and includes reproductions of the best pictures of all time. On Wednesday evening Mr. Philip S. Marden will speak of Greek sculpture, and on Thursday evening Rev. Charles T. Billings will talk on "The Enjoyment of Pictures." The following ladies, with the teachers of the school, will serve as patronesses: Mrs. Frederic T. Greenhalge, Mrs. John E. Burr, Miss Agnes Bailey, Mrs. Charles T. Billings, Mrs. Harry A. Brown, Miss Addie E. Edwards, Miss Mabel W. Bwings, Mrs. Frederic A. Father, Miss Mabel Hill, Mrs. Francisco J. Monique, Mrs. Philip S. Marden, Miss Edith C. Merchant, Mrs. Jo-

AT THE GREENHALGE SCHOOL
NEXT WEEK

The art exhibition at the Green-halge school on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week undoubtedly will be a pleasant and instructive occasion. Each evening there will be a short lecture in explanation of the collection, which gives an excellent idea of the history of art and includes reproductions of the best pictures of all time.

DEATHS

DEVINE—Peter P. Devine, aged 23 years, a very well known young man of this city, died last night at the home of his father, Michael Devine, 11 Valley avenue. Besides his father, he leaves one brother, Charles Lee, and an aunt, Mrs. Mary Coleman. He will be mourned by all with whom he came in contact as he was of a friendly disposition, kind and good. Mr. Devine was a prominent member of the Local council, 72, Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name society of St. Michael's church, and the sanctuary choir of St. Michael's church.

BROSAN—Mary Brosan, daughter of Capt. James H. Brosan of the local police department, died last night at the home of her parents, 505 High street, aged 19 years and 7 months. She is survived by her parents and two brothers, Augustus and James Brosan, also one sister, Catherine Brosan.

HARWOOD—Lease Harwood, an old resident of this city, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 30 Race street, aged 85 years, 3 months and 5 days. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Leira Davis and Miss Cora J. Harwood. Mr. Harwood was a member of Grand Union lodge of Odd Fellows and leaves a host of friends in this city, where he has resided for a number of years.

The strike of the New York street cleaners cost the city nearly $150,000 and 2000 employees their jobs. Which suffered most, the city or the strikers? What has been accomplished by the strike in addition to the loss on both sides?

THE NO SCHOOL SIGNAL

The superintendent of schools of Boston has been criticized for ringing the no school signal on Wednesday morning. The signal was sounded in this city also, and we do not see that there is any ground for criticism, because it was the first real snow storm of the season and there was a good deal of slush on the ground in the morning with the appearance of more snow or cold rain. As a rule at the beginning of winter the children are not all provided with rubbers or with the clothing necessary to enable them to venture out in the storm with safety. The fact that the sun came out in the forenoon and that the snow quickly disappeared could scarcely have been foretold by the best weather prophet, so that on the whole, we see but little ground for complaint in this particular case.

FOR WHOM YOU SHOULD VOTE

The list of candidates for mayor, aldermen and school committee is now so large that we believe the voters can easily select good material from any of the three tickets. As we have repeatedly stated this can be done only by picking out the men who are best equipped for the places to be filled. If the total vote be divided among the array of candidates on the aldermanic ballot there is no telling what may be the result in such a contest. It should be plain to every voter that fully more than one-half the candidates should be dismissed as out of the running. It would certainly be useless to waste a single vote upon these candidates. This cannot be impressed too fully upon the voters inasmuch as a vote for a weak candidate is simply thrown away. Give your vote to a man who should go on the ballot on election day. Of course opinions will differ as to the men who should be chosen, but the chief trouble is that men will vote for candidates because of acquaintance or other considerations than fitness for the office to be filled.

SMALL VOTE AT HAVERHILL PRIMARIES

We notice that the primary elections in Haverhill on Tuesday were very poorly attended, less than one-fifth of the total vote of the city having registered at the polls. It appears that the candidates up for nomination did not have sufficient influence with the voters to bring a large representation to the polls. We surmise that nothing of the kind will happen at the primaries in this city on November 28th, if we are to judge from the long list of candidates. It is important that the voters come out in such a case in order to select the best possible candidates as otherwise there will be criticism afterwards, although the voters themselves will be to blame. There should be as large a vote at the primaries as at the final election because a mistake at the primaries is fundamental and cannot be corrected at the polls. Unless the very best candidates are selected for the ballot on election day they cannot possibly be elected. That is why it is highly important that every citizen should feel it incumbent upon himself to attend the primaries and vote for the candidates he would prefer for mayor, aldermen and school committee. It is thus alone we can nominate candidates who will accurately represent the popular will.

TENEMENT HOUSE REFORM

The proposition to adopt a code of laws for tenement house reform is one well worthy of the most serious consideration. We are very glad that the board of trade has taken up this matter for there is need of reform in the tenement houses of Lowell. Anybody who makes a tour of the thickly settled districts can readily see that in regard to the size of the tenements, the lighting, the ventilation and the sanitary conditions, there is urgent need of improvement. Even the regulations of the health board can be so improved as to cause the occupants to be far more careful in regard to sanitation. Without going into detail as to real tenement house reform, it may be stated that an important provision should be made in the matter of overcrowding and the minimum air space provided for each occupant in sleeping and living rooms. During the hot spell of last summer it will be remembered that many deaths occurred from sleeping in small and close rooms. There is great need of improvement in this respect and there is need too of better conditions in sanitation so as to secure more light and air and avoid the darkness and the foul gases which seem to be so favorable to the culture of tuberculosis germs. A movement for better tenements is a movement against the white plague and against diseases of all kinds.

Some years ago Ireland had a high percentage of tuberculosis cases; but there has been a very material reduction as a result of the improved housing of the people. The neat, airy and commodious cottages which dot the country at the present time, have effected the change. These houses have taken the places of the tumble down dwellings that prevailed while the landlords had the power to extort such high rents that the people could not afford to improve their homes.

In New York and other cities of the country much attention has been given to the matter of tenement house reform and there is no reason why we cannot accomplish a great deal in this city by adopting somewhat similar methods. There are some tenement blocks that should be torn down or completely remodeled and others that by slight changes could be vastly improved. It is to be hoped that the board of trade will push this movement for tenement house reform. It has great possibilities in aiding the onward movement to give us a cleaner, better and more beautiful Lowell.

SEEN AND HEARD

It was 8.30 and the theatre was crowded. What have you left? the treasurer was asked.

"I have two left in the 12th row," the treasurer said, taking the tickets from the rack. "They're the last two seats I have in the house."

"How much?" the other asked cautiously.

"Two dollars," was the reply.

"Two dollars!" the patron repeated. "I won't stand for that."

"Well, will you stand for a dollar?" the ticket dispenser inquired.

"Gladly," the other cried, sending a bargain and laying a dollar on the ledge.

The treasurer replaced the two tickets in his rack and handed out two others after placing the bill in his cash drawer.

"There they are, sir," he said. "First door to your right."

The man hurried inside and "stood" for a dollar. The wily treasurer, taking him at his word, had sold him two admission tickets.

KITTEN AND THE LEAVES

See the kitten on the wall, Sporting with the leaves that fall, Withered leaves — one — two — and three —

From the lofty elder tree! Through the calm and frosty air Of the morning bright and fair.

Boddy round and round they sink Softly, slowly, one might think From the motions that are made, Every little leaf conveyed Slyph or fairy hither tending, To the lower world descending, Each invisible and mute, In his wondrous parachute.

But the kitten, how she starts, Crouches, stretches, paws and darts! First at one and then its fellow, Just as light and just as yellow;

There are many now — not one — Now they stop and there are none:

Now she works with three or four, Like an Indian conjuror; Quick as he in feats of art, Far beyond in joy of heart.

Were her antics played in the eye Of a thousand standers by, Clapping hands with shouts and stare, What would the rabbit care?

For the plaudits of the crowd Over happy to me proud, Over wealthy in the treasure Of her own exceeding pleasure.

—William Wordsworth.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Shortly before sailing for this country, Amedeo Bassi was made an officer of the crown of Italy, a much valued order.

Signor Bassi's first appearance this season in Philadelphia is today as Ashton with Miss Terenzi, in Lucia di Lammermoor, a role which he sang without a rehearsal in Madrid, six years ago, but which he has not before sung in this country. He will repeat it on the 21st in Cleveland, O.

William J. Riley, formerly in the banking business in Boston, has given to Harvard the sum of $25,000, to be designated as the Clement Harlow Conwell scholarship for deserving young men. This is in memory of his nephew, Clement H. Conwell, class of 1907.

Percy Parsons, sub-master of the Meriden, Conn. high school, has accepted a position as teacher of Latin in the Salem high school, and it is understood will also be given charge of the athletics of the school. He is a native of Somerville and a graduate of Harvard '08.

Mrs. Edward H. Harriman during the last year has been in control of her late husband's business. She has managed a street railway and lighting plant, a hotel, a gold mine, an iron mine, a dairy farm, a bank, a road building company, a blast furnace and several other enterprises scattered throughout the country.

Miss Sophronia P. Breckinridge, one of the newly elected vice-presidents of the National American Woman Suffrage association, was graduated from Wellesley in 1888, and is now associate professor in the social economy department of household administration in the University of Chicago and director of the department of social investigation of the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy.

Miss Violet Asquith has been occupied for the last year in training herself for public speaking and recently in Fifehire she made her debut as a political orator, delivering an effective speech in favor of the liberal candidate. On the other hand, her stepmother, Mrs. Asquith, though a brilliant, clever conversationalist, has never been able to speak in public to any extent. She immediately becomes nervous and continues when she attempts a speech; even if she writes out her speech beforehand she has difficulty in delivering it. So is a very able writer, however, and there is much interest to the contents of the diary she is keeping of events political and social. No one but herself has ever perused the volumes of this life work, and they are not to be published till many years after her death, and whether or not they will be given to the reading world then will be left to the discretion of her descendants. Mrs. Asquith has known all the greatest men and women of her time in English and French life, and she has been in touch with all the important events of her country.

The court train subscribed for by Irish ladies as a coronation gift to Queen Mary has been on exhibition in Belfast. The train, which is said to be the finest piece of point needlework ever made, has occupied 10 seamstresses in Belfast ever since the order was given six months ago. It is four yards long and nearly two yards wide at the bottom, tapering to the width of the shoulders at the top. It is worked in a colorful design of tulips and roses, and contains more than five and a quarter million stitches and 20,000 yards of thread. The ladies who made the presentation intended that the train should be ready for the durbar, and probably Queen Mary has taken it with her for the festivities in India.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Brooklyn Times: If Lynn has the success with her proposed municipal market that has attended similar plans in a number of cities in the midwest it is quite likely that other New England cities will follow her example. The fact that food prices are higher than they should be cannot be denied, though there is much difference of opinion as to the cause of this condition. The producer-to-consumer idea is taking hold. There is a general protest against paying the tribute now demanded of us, and the Lynn plan, if put into operation, will relieve the situation in that city.

LEADERS REVERSING POSITIONS Portland Press: Among the interesting developments of the past week have been the statement by President Taft that he stood a good show of being defeated for the presidency for another term and the statement by Mr. Bryan that the republicans have a good show of winning. Which only goes to show that the Nebraska rage can be depended on to disagree with the titular head of the republican party no matter what position he may take.

Worse than bribery New Bedford Mercury: "Worse than the bribe giver," said Senator Jones, of Washington, in addressing the students of the John Marshall Law school at Chicago, Saturday night. "Is the congressman or senator who promises an office in return for a vote, because the bribe-giver, secures his own money, while the man who promises an office gives what does not belong to him individually, but a thing he holds in trust for the people."

Note buying is not always a money transaction. The promise of office, if used to influence voters, is as vicious a method of corrupting the franchise as any other. The thousand dollar offer for evidence to convict a vote buyer should be made sufficiently broad to cover all forms of vote bribery.

HOME MARKET SCHEMES Fall River Globe: The wise men of the Home Market club profess to find in the result of the recent elections about the country much to encourage the standpatists. They are more frank than the republican politicians and do not hesitate to declare that the G. O. P. was making this fight to head off any change whatever in the present tariff and that all this talk about a "scientific revision" was mere bluff and buncombe.

BIG BALANCE $203,000,000 ON RIGHT SIDE OF LEDGER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—There was a balance of $203,000,000 on the right side of the ledger in the government's account during the fiscal year of its imports and exports of farm and forest products. While it imported $63,000,000 worth of these products, it exported $266,000,000 worth.

The value of the farm products imported during the year was greater by $73,000,000 than the average for the five years, 1906 to 1910. The value of imported forest products exceeded those of any previous year, totaling $179,000,000, an increase of $35,000,000 over the preceding year. $35,000,000 of this increase was due to india rubber.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED

House Left in Road in Nahant

NAHANT, Nov. 17.—Because of the refusal of the selectmen to permit the removal of any more limbs from the trees along Nahant road and because of the refusal of Daniel G. Finnerty to agree to the removal of two gables from a dwelling house which was located until Tuesday on the site of the new town hall, the work of removing the structure has been halted, and in consequence Nahant road, opposite the Catholic church, is completely blocked. Pedestrians can use the thoroughfare, but vehicles cannot get by the obstruction.

Efforts have been made to settle the difficulty, but Mr. Finnerty is determined to land the house alongside the old Tremont hotel. He refused yesterday to accept an offer made by the selectmen to pay him $610, the purchase price of the house, and he asserted that he would not take $900 for the structure.

The house was sold at auction to Mr. Finnerty, who represented Mrs. Georgiana Carron, owner of the Hotel Tremont. The selectmen claim that among the terms of the sale was the stipulation that no tree or shrub along Nahant road should be damaged by the removal of the house. Mr. Finnerty insists that he purchased the house with the understanding that he could remove it intact.

The veranda, however, was removed and Town Forester Roland obligingly clipped off several limbs which halted the house's progress, but when he saw that many more limbs would have to be destroyed he ordered the moving operations halted until he appealed to the selectmen.

The selectmen instructed Mr. Finnerty to cut off a couple of gables. Mr. Finnerty flatly refused. When it was evident that the argument could not be satisfactorily adjusted the building mover cleared away his apparatus and left the house in a position where it shut off all traffic.

BY A SPECIALIST

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair growth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you. 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Salicylic Acid, 1 ounce Boric Acid, 1 ounce Alcohol. Mix thoroughly, and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger-tips. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of Toilet Soap, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Caution: Do not apply where hair is not desired and be sure to avoid the eyes. Contains no poisonous wood alcohol.

Before publication we presented this prescription at Riker-Jones' drug store, this city, and they state that they have filled it many times for their patrons who report most astonishing results from its use.

TOOK A GIRL BRIDE

Young Man of 17 Married to 16 Year Old Girl

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor, 16 years old, one of the prettiest members of the sophomore class of the Plainfield, N. J. high school, was at her studies Wednesday when a reporter asked to see Miss Grete Anna Trembley. The request brought Mrs. Taylor hurrying to the principal's room.

"What do you want with me?" she inquired.

"I want you to tell me about your elopement and marriage to Richard Dana Taylor on Oct. 22," was the reply.

"So that is out at last, is it?" the school wife laughed. "If you'll tell me how it was made public I'll tell you the truth. Don't you dare tell me, though, that Dick Taylor went and blabbed."

"No, it was the vital statistics in New York that blabbed," was explained.

"Well, then, I'll tell the truth and I'll

NEW FACTS ABOUT ECZEMA

For years eczema was thought to be incurable, and it is so considered today by many people. But since the compounding of Cadum, eczema is now a curable disease. Cadum has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from distressing, stubborn and disfiguring skin diseases. It is soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin. It stops the itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. It is anti-septic, and when applied to an open sore or wound prevents infection from disease germs. Cadum quickly acts upon eczema, pimples, sores, blotches, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, chafings, healing pimples, etc. At all druggists, 10c and 25c.

blab, too. No use of trying to dodge behind lies any longer. I am Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor. I wanted to get through school and Dick hoped to get a great, big job. You know he is with Lord & Taylor, in New York, and Dick is smart and hard-working.

"Since we eloped and married I've been living with my mother and Dick has lived with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Taylor. We expect to have our own home later on.

"Now, if you haven't anything more to ask me I'll have to hurry back to the class room. The teacher will be asking me embarrassing questions if I am out too long. I don't want her to know I'm Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor—yet. At this time I'm just plain Grete. Then I'm Grete Anna Trembley. Sorry I can't tell you more," and the school girl bride raced up the stairs and entered the classroom.

News of the elopement of Miss Trembley and Taylor has caused a sensation in Plainfield, Taylor's father, who is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, is one of the most prominent men in the Jersey town. Richard is 17 years old and until a few weeks ago was at school. His brother Ralph ten days ago started Plainfield society by eloping with Miss Helen Smalley, daughter of Newton Smalley, mayor of North Plainfield.

"My wife and I will continue to live with our parents until I am ready to start housekeeping," said Taylor last night. "Then we will go to New York."

"How did you get your marriage license?" was asked.

"Oh, that was easy. I wore a long overcoat and looked the part, and we just fled about our age. It isn't hard to get a license in New York."

ABOUT SYNCOPE

OR FAINTING, AS EXPLAINED BY A PHYSICIAN

Syncope, or fainting, is almost exclusively confined to young adults, being rare in children or in fully matured persons. The real cause of fainting in nearly every case is an ebbing away of the circulation of blood from the brain. During normal sleep the brain is pale and anemic; and during waking hours any one of many circumstances may so decrease the flow of blood through the brain as to cause one to lose consciousness and topple over. The color of the face affords us an index to the accompanying pallor of the brain.

Among the circumstances that may drive blood from the brain to the extent of syncope is sudden emotion of any sort. Thus a young girl suffering from nervous prostration when abruptly told that a friend has smallpox; a measurably old lady faints upon sudden proposal of marriage; or a middle-aged gentleman "syncope" if the Glanis win. The emotional shock causes the nerves which control the caliber of the blood vessels in the brain to contract these vessels, thus depriving the conscious center of the blood necessary for their action.

A predisposing cause to fainting is inactivity, because the circulation of the blood becomes sluggish when the brain and body have been for some time at rest. A never faint while actively engaged in any physical or mental work.

Fasting is also conducive to fainting, and we are all more likely to faint before breakfast than at other times. Another predisposing cause is insufficient fresh air.

Persons who feel a fainting spell coming on may sometimes ward it off by sitting with head bent forward between the knees. This helps in two ways to get blood into the brain. First, the lowering of the head enlists the aid of gravity; and the bending of the body compresses the abdomen and forces some blood from it to the head. After one has actually fainted, three things should be done. First, the patient should be placed in a horizontal position (on the floor, if necessary) with the feet slightly elevated so that the blood will gravitate into the brain second, the clothing about the chest and throat should be loosened to aid free breathing, while all windows are opened to admit fresh air; third, cold water should be dashed upon the face and behind the ears to act as a stimulant measure and bring about a reaction.

Pending the improvements on St. John's hall, the Tubernacle society of St. John's church will meet in the firehouse in Mt. Pleasant street, through the courtesy of Selectman D. Frank Small.

Mr. Thomas Connors of Boston delivered an interesting address before the Knights of the Sacred Heart in St. John's hall, Wednesday evening. Frank Haggerty presided. A musical concert has been arranged by Rev. Michael E. Loherty to be held in the town hall on Sunday evening, Nov. 26, to help the finances of the new boys' club.

PRESIDENT HARRIS

Resigns as Head of Amherst College

AMHERST, Nov. 17.—After being president of Amherst college nearly 13 years, Geo. Harris, D. D., LL. D., tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of the college yesterday. While expressing deep regret, the trustees voted to accept the resignation, which is to become effective not later than the next commencement. Advancing years were given by the president as his reason for resigning.

President Harris' letter of resignation follows:

"To the Trustees of Amherst College: In 1899 I assumed the presidency of the college, and am now, therefore, in the 13th year of service. These passing years, drawing pleasantly and rapidly on, have brought me from middle life to the age when one should retire from active leadership. Before next commencement I shall be 65 years old.

Does Not Feel Old

"Although a particular limit as 70 or 65 years cannot be arbitrarily fixed for all men as precisely the time when they cease to have the effectiveness and initiative of young and middle life, yet it is inevitable that as the seventh decade nears completion there cannot be the impulse, the zeal, the momentum of early years.

"And although for myself I am not conscious of any impairment of physical health, nor, if I may say it, of any dulling of intellectual perception and do not feel old, yet I am aware that the passage of time has brought me towards or even to the end of the period when one man can render the most efficient service.

"I, therefore, offer you my resignation of the presidential office, entangling it to take effect not later than the next commencement.

"I seize this occasion to express my appreciation both of the unfailing support and cordial friendship of every trustee. The board has harmoniously worked to promote the best interests of the college. There have been healthy growth, higher standard of scholarship and improved morale of students, and substantial strengthening of equipment. The faculty have taught faithfully with the object of educating thoroughly and in all important matters have been in accord with me in advancing the intellectual and moral welfare of the students.

President Harris was born in East Machias, Me., on April 1, 1844.

THE LOWELL HIGH

PLAYED NASHUA HIGH AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON

The Nashua High school team played a return game with Lowell High at Washington park this afternoon. Lowell defeated Nashua 10 to 0 in the first game of the season but the Nashua team is said to have improved greatly since and is most desirous to wipe out the defeat.

In Lawrence and Haverhill a movement is on foot to bring the Lawrence and Haverhill high schools together again and it is expected to be successful.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Harold Jewett and Miss Mary Campbell was solemnized last night by Rev. James M. Craig at the latter's home. The young couple were unattended and they are now enjoying a short honeymoon trip. They will make their home at 10 West Fifth street.

ITCHING ECZEMA

ON BOTH HANDS

Treated for Months but Grew Worse. Came on Face. Physician Advised Cuticura Remedies. Began Improving after First Treatment, and Owes Cure to Cuticura Remedies.

"Eczema began on the second joint of my thumb on my left hand. Several blisters came which soon broke and water oozed from them. Then the terrible itching began, and the eczema came in blotches on both hands. Sometimes the skin would seem to heat, and I gave the appearance of being cut. It was very bad when I consulted a physician. I was treated for several months, but grew worse all the time.

"Then it came in my face. I suffered more than I could describe from the itching and burning. I became nearly a wreck physically. These caused another physician and was treated by him for some time when he finally advised the Cuticura Remedies. I began improving after the first treatment and was cured after taking the Resolvent and using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. That was fifteen years ago, and I have never been troubled with it since.

"I owe my cure to the Cuticura Remedies and would be thankful to impart any help to others. I have just advised a lady friend who is suffering with eczema on her face and neck, to try the Cuticura Remedies. She has been treated by a physician for some time without relief." (Signed) Mrs. L. C. Warner, Lincoln, Del., Dec. 15, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the skin and hair, will be sent, post-free, on application to Pottery Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 153, Boston.

MYSTERIOUS BLAZE

Students Turned Out to Fight Fire

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Harvard students turned out almost to the last man last night to fight a fire of mysterious origin which destroyed two sheds, a stable and dwelling house on Dunster street, Cambridge, the property of the Bay State Fuel company, with a loss of $7000.

When the first alarm sounded at 9:40 p. m., the Union was filled with undergraduates, practicing cheers and songs for the Harvard-Dartmouth football game. This alarm was followed by a third alarm.

The mass meeting was adjourned and the great crowd of students raced down Dunster street to the fire. They swarmed into the thick of things, manning hose, rescuing horses and practicing cheers on the firemen.

The blaze started in a shed of the Bay State Fuel company, adjoining the stadium garage. It is thought that the fire was preceded by a gasoline explosion.

In an instant the flames enveloped this one and one-half story shed, in which were stored the pigs and teams of the company. From this shed it leaped to another and thence to the two and one-half story stable, in which were 25 horses.

Directly opposite the stable, at 55 Dunster street, an employee of the fuel company, Frank Lamont, was asleep with his wife and two children. In the house also was a boarder, Luigi Morino. They escaped as the fire caught the building.

Meanwhile students rushed into the stable from the rear, Mill street, accompanied by firemen of the crews of Engines 1 and 2, and led the horses through the smoke, while the upper part of the stable was ablaze. All the horses were rescued.

The Lamont family lost all, though Lamont managed to drag a trunk along with him, in which were some old clothes.

The coal company lost about five wagons, nearly 20 pigs and the harnesses and equipment of the stable, which was gutted.

The band of students which found the rear door of the stable and rescued the horses was led by Nelson Morris of Chicago, of the family of packers of that name, and Douglas Lawson.

THE BACHELOR MAIDS

The Bachelor Maids entertained several of their bachelor friends at the house of Miss Anna Haggart on Wednesday evening. The entertainment consisted of vocal and piano solos and readings by Messrs. Scott and Maxwell. The evening was agreeably spent in singing, dancing and games. Miss Joslin was the accompanist of the affair, who were Mrs. Haggart, Mrs. Jodolin and Mrs. Staples served dainty refreshments. A short business session was held and it was voted that the two clubs should attend the drama and entertainment at the First Congregational church on next Wednesday evening.

Miss Vera Hazeltine, has charge of the affair. Having spent a very pleasant evening the company sang "Auld Lang Syne" and departed.

BRIDEGROOM ASLEEP

WHEN THE HOUR FOR HIS MARRIAGE ARRIVED

WINSTED, Conn., Nov. 17.—Michael J. Coffey, always a late sleeper, overslept yesterday, his wedding morning. He was a half hour late in arriving at St. Joseph's church and missed the honeymoon train.

He and Miss Mary O'Brien had to steal a march on their friends, Father Andrew and Harry Barreuther, organist.

Let, were to be in the church at 6 o'clock, so the ceremony might be finished in time for the couple to catch the 7 o'clock express. The friends had been told the marriage hour would be 7.

But because Coffey overslept the train got away and the couple had to wait an hour for the next one. Their friends rushed to the railway station and scolded them with, "Did you ever get left?" and, "Who's fooled now?"

The Hours of Drudgery Will Go

The day you put Persil to work for you the hours of wash-day drudgery will go. Along with them will go the wash-board and machine.

To have the life of your clothes eaten out by strong soaps will give place to a whiteness impossible before.

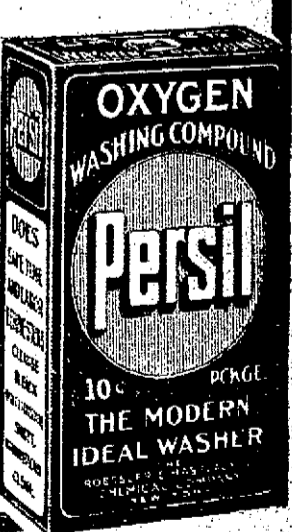

Persil is an Oxygen Washing Compound—the only one in America—yet it costs but 10 cents.

Persil has been tried and found good. Thirty million pounds were used by German women alone last year. German women have known Persil only three years.

Think, though, of the labor saved in Germany, already, by this wonderful compound.

Just Ten Cents spent for Persil will show you that wash-day dread belongs to past ages.

FACTORY INSPECTION

Boston Chamber of Commerce to Urge Its Improvement

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—At an important meeting of the directors of the Boston chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon, the subjects to be acted upon by the chamber as a whole at the meeting of all members, called for next Tuesday, were discussed.

The chamber will be asked to vote in favor of the reorganization of the system of factory inspection in Massachusetts. The directors have accepted a report submitted by the committee on industrial relations, recommending that the chamber support legislation which will create a well organized, well administered and efficient system of industrial inspection for this state.

The committee in its report says that the present situation is very unsatisfactory, the jurisdiction being divided between the state board of health and the district police; that these departments do not co-operate; that there is an improper distribution of functions; that the number of inspectors is inadequate; that the departments are in some cases inefficient.

The directors also decided that at the meeting Tuesday Charles S. Hamilton and D. O. Ives, manager of the

HERBERT M. MERRILL
FIRST SOCIALIST NEW YORK LAWMAKER SAYS HE WILL HELP WORKING CLASSES

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Herbert M. Merrill, the first socialist to be elected to the New York assembly, says that when he enters that body he will devote his attention to furthering bills in the interests of workers and will pay particular attention to measures offered by labor unions. Mr. Merrill was born in Compton, N. H., Sept. 13, 1871. He has lived in Schenectady for twenty years and is an armature winder in the shops of the General Electric company. He says he became interested in socialism through reading Betty's "Looking Backward." He is a good public speaker. He admits that his election was a surprise to him, as it was to politicians here.

STRONG ARM SQUAD

Make a Raid on a Gambling House

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Just as the alarm was being given, the officers of the "strong arm squad" swooped down in autos on an alleged gambling house at 106 West Thirty-eighth street.

Armed with axes and crowbars, the officers began to batter down the doors of the place. The noise drew the attention of the neighbors. Traffic on that street, as well as on West Thirty-eighth street, was tied up by the mass of humanity that eagerly watched for the police to gain an entrance to the four-story brown-stone front house.

After nearly a half hour's work the police broke down the outer doors. They piled into the vestibule only to face a second set of stoutly barred doors. The panels in these were battered in quickly. Lieut. Becker climbed inside, unbarred the doors and admitted his men.

Nobody was found in the finely furnished parlors on the first floor. On the second floor the police found a beautiful suite of reception rooms. Costly paintings hung from the walls. Finding no persons in the reception rooms Lieut. Becker ordered his men to the third floor. An iron door at the head of the stairs stopped progress. But Becker ordered his men to break away the wooden framework and the walls. When they started to comply the door was opened.

Twenty-five men in evening dress confronted the officers when they tumbled in. The room held roulette wheels, a faro layout and poker tables. The twenty-five men had to give names and addresses. Then twenty-two were freed.

One of the three men placed under arrest was said to be John Freeman, proprietor of the place. The others were taken on warrants calling for "Jake Dealer" and "Poker Joe."

NEURASTHENIA

Another Name for Nervous Exhaustion.

How It is Caused and How It Can Be Cured Without Leaving Your Home.

Neurasthenia is the physician's name for a condition of weakness or exhaustion of the nervous system. The patient finds difficulty in keeping his mind on his work, is inclined to worry over trifles, is often depressed and irritable, is subject to headaches or a feeling of pressure on the head, is sleepless and sometimes the digestion is disturbed. Overwork or worry is often the cause.

The treatment consists largely in rest, recreation and the use of a tonic, the discontinuance of any practice that may have caused the trouble and abstinence from tea, coffee and stimulants. As the nervous system receives its nourishment through the blood the latter must be built up and made rich and pure. Especially if there is loss of weight and a pallor indicating a weakness of the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the tonic best adapted to effect a cure.

Mrs. James H. Dyer, of No. 818 Princeton street, Lowell, Mass., says: "I was a sufferer from nervous debility for years. I felt weak all of the time and could not stand any physical strain. I had frequent sick headaches and often fainted away. I was worried all of the time and was very much discouraged.

"The doctors said I had neurasthenia, or nervous debility, and advised a complete rest and change but I was unable to take them because of my children. For years I was under treatment and had given up hope of a cure. A friend who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People urged me to try them. I was much stronger after a short trial of the pills and resolved to keep on with them. My health is now much better than it has been in years and I recommend the pills very highly."

Every person who is interested in the home treatment of nervous disorders should send for the new edition of our booklet entitled, "Diseases of the Nervous System, Their Nature, Symptoms and Treatment." Address the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain no harmful or habit-forming drugs, and the sufferer who gives them a trial will avoid the danger so common in taking drugs that only lead to pain.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

SUPREME COURT

TO SETTLE THE PITTSFIELD CHARTER TANGLE

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 17.—Pittsfield is in a tangle over the interpretation of the new city charter as regards the election of councilmen.

The city clerk maintains that the charter provides for the election of but seven this year, one from each ward, and the aldermen that the entire council, made up of 14 men, is retired this year and must be replaced.

The supreme court will be asked to settle the controversy before election day, Dec. 12.

In order to bring the matter to a head, the board of aldermen last night, after drafting the warrant for the election with provisions for the filling of 14 vacancies, voted to petition the supreme court to compel City Clerk A. C. Daniels to serve the warrant.

The supreme court has agreed to give the matter immediate attention and it is expected it will be taken up next Tuesday, either at Worcester or Boston.

WATER BOARD

VOTES EXTENSION OF PIPES IN MANSFIELD STREET

The water board at its regular meeting last night voted an extension of pipes in Mansfield street, a distance of about 250 feet, and awarded a contract for plumbing a bathroom in the reservoir keeper's house to E. A. Lynde, the lowest bidder. His bid was $114.

The contract with F. A. Barbour, engineering expert employed by the water department on the reservoir job, was formally approved and will be sent to the mayor for his approval. It calls for five per cent. of the total cost of construction for the engineer.

FIGHT IN CHAPEL

CO-EDS ENGAGED IN HAIR PULLING CONTEST

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 17.—An hour's reign of terror in which hatpins, hair pulling and fists figured freely, was precipitated at Macalester College yesterday when the freshmen appeared at chapel wearing little blue caps emblazoned with "15" in bright gold letters.

The trouble started immediately after chapel, when the sophomores waylaid the freshmen in the halls and took away several of the caps. For half an

LOWELL NEST OF OWLS

There was the usual large attendance at the business meeting of the Lowell Nest of Owls in Elks hall last night. President Bowers presiding. The scouting or class initiating committee made a very creditable report of progress and the new class promises to be the largest in the Lowell Nest history.

Every member is doing his best to secure candidates for membership who are young, strong and active.

The canvass will be thorough and none but men of sterling character will be admitted. The Nest physicians will be most searching in their examination of all applicants.

President Bowers spoke for the good and welfare of the order.

The next meeting of the Lowell Owls will be held Thursday evening, Dec. 7th and the nominations for the officers for the coming year will be made at this meeting.

The degree-stuff will also give an exhibition drill under Warden Hartnett. Invitations to attend the class initiation have been sent to many of the New England Nests, and many guests are expected.

Every member of the Lowell Nest wishes to express his sincere thanks to the gentlemen who so kindly remembered the society by their donation at the recent outing of the nest. They were J. L. ## THE TROLLEY EXPRESS

Hearing on Petition Will be Held in Boston, Nov. 22

A hearing on the trolley express petition will be held before the railroad commissioners in Boston at 10.30 a. m., Nov. 22. The petition calls for rights for the Boston Elevated railroad to conduct an express business in Boston.

The local board of trade is deeply interested in the matter and they are sending an appeal to the local merchants to attend this hearing and approve the petition, for it this matter is passed it means a lot for Lowell and vicinity, for the Bay State Railway company is prepared to conduct an express business throughout its district. With the new express in Lowell it means better traffic and more facilities. Communications have been sent by the local board of trade to the Chelmsford, Westford and Billerica boards of trade, urging their members to attend the hearing.

ACCIDENT CASES

OPERATIVES TREATED AT THE EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

Margaret O'Connor, an employee of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., got a finger caught and badly crushed in a machine while at her work this morning. The ambulance was called and the woman was removed to the Lowell hospital.

Birdie Ross, aged 26 years and living at 105 Shaw street, got a finger caught between two rolls while at her work at the Massachusetts' Boshair Plush Co., this morning, and she was treated at the Emergency hospital.

Henry Kerzner, aged 22 years and living at 174 Lowell street, Lawrence, an employee at Max Cohen's butcher shop in Methuen, received a bad cut on the right wrist this morning while working. He was treated at the Emergency hospital.

CERCLE QUI VIVE

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Roussel entertained the members of Cercle Qui Vive last night at their home, 77 Ludlam street. Whist was played and a musical program was given, followed by a buffet luncheon. Two more members, Mr. and Mrs. George Dion, were initiated. The members of this club meet weekly at the home of the members and their delight is whist.

FEW OFFENDERS

Appeared Before Judge Hadley This Morning

The police sessions are of rather short duration of late. This morning Judge Hadley disposed of his usual business in about 15 minutes. There were four drunken offenders, two of whom were fined $2 each, while the others, who made their second bow before the court, were fined $6 each. They were John Cote and William Buckley.

Non-Support Case
Peter Frazer was brought in on a capias for non-support of his children. He was given a chance to find work and provide proper support for his young children, by having his case continued for a week.

Assault and Battery
The case of Ernest and Oscar Daigle and Moise Houde, all charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Patrolman Jeremiah Lynch, was again continued for a week at the request of the government which was not quite ready to go to trial, on account of the condition of the patrolman who is unable to appear in court. The alleged assault took place last Saturday night in Lakeview avenue.

length that few men are called each day. Each side is anxious to get rid of undesirable candidates for jury service through cause, so that few preliminary challenges will be required. Byron Lisk, F. D. Green and Robert F. Bain have been passed by both sides and will remain in the jury box until it is filled and the use of preliminary challenges begins. Should they survive this weeding out they will become jurors in what is likely to be the longest trial in the history of the United States.

CALLED A DRAW

Melody and Nitchie in a Fast Bout

ADAMS, Nov. 17.—Honey Melody of Boston, who claims the welterweight championship of the world, defended that title in eight fast rounds to a draw with Young Nitchie of Philadelphia before the North Berkshire A. C. here last night. Nitchie went on in place of Andy Parker of New York, who was originally billed with Melody for 12 rounds. Both men were very fast and there was plenty of action.

Melody showed cleverness in covering and in his ability to get in some fast swings, but found the Philadelphia boy a willing mixer and ready to do his full share of the work. Nitchie displayed a thorough knowledge of the game and sent in some fast ones. Rip O'Brien of North Adams got the decision over Young Carter of Albany in the fifth round of their bout, and Young Lamoureux of Adams and Young Bazinet of Troy went six rounds to a draw.

QUINLAN AND WHITE DRAW

LAWRENCE, Nov. 17.—The show at the Unity Cycle club was not up to the usual standard last night. The main event between Jimmy Quinlan of Danvers and Joe White of Boston was fairly interesting, White showing up the better in the early rounds and Quinlan evening up later. It was declared a draw after 12 rounds.

Cy Goodwin of Boston and Johnny Hyde of Beverly made a tame draw in their eight rounds. Johnny Thompson, Lawrence, beat Young Glover, Lawrence, in six rounds. Red Coherly, Lawrence put Joe Myers, Lawrence, out in the first round. About 500 attended.

PHILLIPS WEAK AT END

LANCASTER, Penn., Nov. 17.—Young Frank Ernie of Harrisburg got Johnny Phillips of Philadelphia a severe lacing last night before the Lancaster A. C.

Phillips was dropped in the first round with a right to the jaw, but arose quickly. In the third Johnny's left eye was opened and from then on Ernie smashed him almost at will, but got some hard returns. Phillips put up a game fight, but ended the bout weak.

BOXERS ARE READY

For Tonight's Bouts at Lowell Social Club

Johnnie Gallant and Young Jasper arrived in town today by different routes both in fine shape for tonight's contest before the Lowell Social and Athletic club. Each boxer is confident of his success each claiming that he will show the other something new this time. The pair are of the same weight and both are well up in the fine points of the game. Gallant perhaps has had a little more experience than his rival, Martin Flaherty, who has been training Charlie Amos, the Greek boxer, states that his man has improved wonderfully since he last appeared before the club, having been a greenhorn with the mitts. He was a very promising greenhorn at that time and surprised the crowd by his showings. Young Kelly is looked upon as a coming champ and is possessed of youth and strength together with considerable science. The bouts will be called at 8.30 o'clock sharp and will be run off without delay so that the meeting will be over in good season. The meeting will be open to members only and only members who present their cards will be permitted. Membership cards are not transferable and will be forfeited if transferred.

YOUNG BURGLAR

FOOLED A JURY WITH A BIBLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—George McAllister, 18 years old, was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in general sessions yesterday to plead to a charge of burglary. Assistant District Attorney Delehanty recognized him as the young man who was arraigned before Judge Foster on a similar charge last September. At that time George refused to be sworn on the court Bible, saying that he had one of his own that his mother gave him and that he would rather use that. The jury acquitted him.

"Have you got your Bible with you this time?" asked Mr. Delehanty.

"Oh, forget it," said George. "A fellow in the Tombs gave me that Bible and told me how to turn the trick. It worked all right once, but I shan't try it again." Then he pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

TWO VIEWS OF ITALIAN CHAMPION, WHO IS AFTER WRESTLERS HERE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Giovanni Ralevich, the champion wrestler of Italy, who recently arrived here, is now hotfoot after a match with any of the foreign grapplers who are now in this country. The Italian is particularly anxious for a meeting with Zbyszko and is willing to bet anything from a collar button to a small size fortune on his chances against the Polish champion. Ralevich is one of the best mat artists developed on the other side of the Atlantic in years. He recently won the Greco-Roman championship of Europe. He weighs 270 pounds and stands six feet two inches. This is not his first visit to America. Two years ago he was here and was defeated by Frank Gotch. At that time he knew very little about the catch-as-catch-can style of wrestling. Since then the Italian has become an adept at the style of grappling, and in a tournament in which he entered

24th ANNIVERSARY

Observed by the Father Mathew Society of Billerica

Mathew hall in North Billerica was the scene of a pretty and large gathering last night, and also the scene of much merriment and enjoyment on the part of those present. The occasion was the 24th anniversary of the Father

Mathew Total Abstinence society of that town, and he it said that the event was one of the most successful held for a long time. The attendance was composed of nearly every member of the organization and a few invited guests.

comprising Mr. Edward P. Slattery of this city, the organizer of the society, and Rev. Fr. McKenna and Phelan, O. M. I. The exercises were opened shortly after 8 o'clock by President John J. Mahoney, who in a brief address extended the guests a hearty welcome. He concluded his remarks by introducing Rev. Fr. McKenna, O. M. I., acting chaplain of the organization, who was heard with interest in his congratulatory remarks. The next speaker was Probation Officer Edward P. Slattery, the father of the organization. He spoke in a very serious strain, referred to the early history of the society, its hard struggle for existence and its final success. He pointed out the influence for good the society has been in the community and expressed the wish and hope that the members would work hard for its future welfare, as it meant so much to them. He urged the clergyman to take leading part in the total abstinence movement, and said that without their encouragement the cause would fail. Superintendent Redmond Welch of the Lowell police department as well as Rev. Fr. Phelan, O. M. I., were also heard. A delightful entertainment program was rendered by the following: Vocal selections, James H. Gannon, Herbert B. Ellis, Charles E. Falsbrother; readings by Maurice O'Donnell; piano selections, George Kearney. Refreshments were served during an intermission. Those in charge of the event were as follows: President, John J. Mahoney; Charles E. Cowdrey, Thomas F. Sheridan, Edward R. Costello, Edward T. Riley, William S. Taylor, James T. Bradley, George E. Sullivan, James White, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Joseph Hand, Michael Hayes, Carroll Delehanty, William Costello, John S. Welsh, Arthur L. Mahoney, Timothy J. McCarthy, Frank Slattery, Owen O'Toole and George Hughes. Reception committee: Edmund Costello, chairman; James Bradley, William S. Taylor, E. W. Kearney, Owen Hughes.

HAVE LEPROSY

TWO PHILADELPHIA WOMEN ARE IN HOSPITALS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Two cases of leprosy were discovered in this city yesterday. The first case, that of Mrs. Becky Schellman, 55, was diagnosed by the physicians of the Pennsylvania hospital. It is said that she is in the early stages of the disease. She has been in the country twenty years. The other case, that of Mrs. Becky Forder, 36, was reported by the physicians of the Orthopedic hospital. She came to this country in 1906, and is said to be in an advanced stage of the disease. She is the mother of seven children, the oldest 15 years and the youngest 9 months. Both women were removed to the isolated ward of the Philadelphia hospital and a quarantine was established at their homes.

ANNUAL MEETING

OF AMERICAN SPECIALTIES MANUFACTURERS' ASSN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The American Specialties Manufacturers' association, whose members make most of the package goods sold by grocers in this country, favors a national law compelling members to print on the outside of all packages the net weight or count. The report of the legislative committee to the members holding their annual convention here today advocated the passage of the Stevens bill, likely to be considered at the next session of congress, which proposes amendments to the national pure food and drugs act making such labeling of packages mandatory instead of optional.

MR. BROWN'S PROGRAM

Mr. Brown is an exponent of songs in English for English speaking audiences and those numbers on the program written in foreign tongue will be sung in their English equivalents. This is Mr. Brown's debut in Lowell. As the instructor of music at the normal school he has given several informal recitals and those who were fortunate enough to hear him at the normal school will be glad of this opportunity to hear him again.

BAND OF CANNIBALS

KILLED MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN AT MURUTAL

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 17.—News of the murder of a Canadian explorer, a German explorer, and the probable loss of his expedition in a hurricane off the Bismarck archipelago was brought by the steamer Marana, which arrived on Wednesday from Australia. Capt. Broecker and a party of four whites and 20 natives left Sabaul to explore the northwest of Friedrich Wilhelmshafen. Coming down the coast Capt. Broecker and another European went ashore to explore a river. They were in a small boat when set upon by natives. Capt. Broecker was fatally wounded by a poisoned arrow. His companion escaped on a floating log and reached the coast to find that his schooner had disappeared. It is feared that the vessel foundered in a storm and that all hands were lost. The Marana also had the news of a massacre by New Guinea cannibals, who early in October, took advantage of the absence of warriors and wiped out the village of Murutal, killing men, women and children. A government punitive expedition was sent after the raiding blacks, who had eaten a number of their victims. Many of the Karuama tribesmen were arrested and brought to Fins to be tried for murder.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM CAN'T BEAR AN UGLY WAITER

PALMER INDICTMENT

Yesterday Afternoon's Session
Lawyer Whipple and District Attorney Higgins were in conference with Judge McLaughlin practically all yesterday afternoon. They went into session in the judge's room at 2:10 o'clock and did not leave there until five o'clock. The subject matter of the conference could only be surmised by the newspaper men. When it had concluded Mr. Whipple, first, and District Attorney Higgins, a moment later, were approached by newspaper men in search of information.

The trial was engaged in adjourning the court until this morning at the moment, and as soon as that duty had been performed Mr. Whipple returned to the bench and addressed Judge McLaughlin. Mr. Whipple had put on his overcoat, and was, apparently, prepared to leave the courthouse.

Mr. Whipple said to his honor that since the court had been adjourned some of the newspaper men had asked him what the conference was about, and that he told them that so far as he was concerned he had no objection to any and all the evidence presented to the court being made public through the press.

Mr. Whipple had a moment or two before called Dist. Atty. Higgins to his side, while speaking to the reporters, and it was after they had talked a short time that Mr. Whipple approached Judge McLaughlin.

A request for information to Judge McLaughlin from the newspapermen was answered through a court official to the effect that his honor could not discuss any case which passed before him, save only as to what had transpired in open court, and following this both Mr. Whipple and District Attorney Higgins, saying that the rules of court were law to them, declined finally to discuss the purpose of the conference.

May Have to Do With Records

The general impression in the courtroom while the conference was in progress was that it had to do with the admission of the records of the grand jury as evidence.

Several of the grand jurors have testified that they never voted on an indictment on which Palmer was subsequently tried and convicted. Others of the grand jury, and among them Guy H. Sweetnam, its foreman, have testified that such a vote was formally put and carried without opposition in the grand jury room.

Was Secretly Indicted by Grand Jury

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Augustus Seaver of this city, who filed nomination papers as "labor" candidate for governor at the last state election, was arrested today on a secret indictment returned by the Suffolk county grand jury charging violation of the election laws. It is alleged that some of the signatures on Mr. Seaver's nomination papers were forged. There were eight counts in the indictment.

TWELVE JURYMEN

SUBJECT TO CHALLENGE CHOSEN IN THE CLERK CASE

LINCOLN CENTER, Kan., Nov. 17.—Twelve jurymen, all subject to challenge, set in the box when the cases of Sherrill Clark, a wealthy merchant and brother of Everett G. Clark, who already has pleaded guilty; A. N. Sims, a mill worker, and John Schmitt, a farmer, were called in the district court today. The three are charged with assault and battery in connection with the tarring of Miss Mary Chamberlain of Shady Bend, Kan. Judge Dallas Grover's courtroom was crowded.

TENDERED A SHOWER

Miss Louise Jeannette Bernier was tendered a linen shower last night at the home of Mrs. S. Gregoire, 317 Westford street, by her many friends. The affair was a most pleasant one, and was largely attended. The host of the evening was showered with numerous gifts of linen and silver, and the soiree was crowned with a delightful musical program, those taking part being Hyatt Wilby, Elsie Grant, Bessie Robitaille, Mrs. John Donnelly, Blanch Gregoire, Fred Gregoire, Robert Lamont. ## PAY FOR MILITIA

MEMBERS WILL HAVE TO ATTEND 45 DRILLS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Evidently in anticipation of the passage of the proposed law providing pay for members of the organized militia, the militia division of the war department has requested military commanders to provide some form of duty roster with a view to keeping a complete record of the attendance at drills of the militiamen. The men are now required to have twenty-four drills a year but the proposed bill under which they were to receive pay for the time spent in training soldiering provides that they receive 25 per cent. of the pay of a regular enlisted man on the condition that they attend 45 drills.

WHY WET SHAMPOOS ARE INJURIOUS TO HAIR

(Guide to Beauty)
"Avoid wet shampoos, if you would have soft, lustrous hair and plenty of it. More or less 'free' alkali in shampoo mixtures robs the scalp of its necessary oil, and this, in a measure, causes hair to grow dull, brittle and unmanageable."

"The dry shampoo is rapidly gaining favor because of its cleansing and invigorating effect on both hair and scalp. If 4 ounces either of orris root or corn meal and 4 ounces of theriac are mixed together and a tablespoonful sprinkled over the scalp, then brushed well through and out of the hair, all traces of dust and dandruff will be removed, and the hair will take on a silken sheen and richness of color impossible by any other method."

A REVIEW OF THE BIG LEAGUE SEASON

THE baseball season of 1911 furnished many more than the usual share of surprises in the major leagues. In a great many cases the dopestaters picked the winners of the two pennants, but their judgment in sizing up the chances of the runners-up went sadly awry. Perhaps in no season in recent years were as many surprises sprung as in the campaign of 1911.

Early in the spring nearly all the leading baseball writers of the country were asked to give their opinions as to how the pennant races would end. The majority of the lot picked the Athletics to repeat their 1910 triumphs, so it must be confessed that the Mackmen hardly can be classed among the surprises. A number of the scribes picked the Giants to win in the National league, though the Cubs had a strong bunch of adherents. Even the Pirates and Reds were picked as winners, but who ever gave the Phillies or Cardinals a thought?

In sizing up the National league races the critics figured only two teams to be in the running—New York and Chicago—with Cincinnati their most dangerous competitor.

In the season's surprises the St. Louis Cardinals unobscuredly are entitled to first honors. It is true the Rajahs took a big tumble in the latter part of the season and finished the year with an average of .502, one game better than in even break, but the fact remains that the Cardinals finished with an average almost 100 points better than in 1910, when they wound up the campaign in seventh place with an average of .412.

Early last spring few critics picked the Rajahs to finish as high as sixth, the majority conceding their seventh place, while several others thought they would sit snugly in the cellar. This team at one time actually threatened to win the National league pennant, and was a factor in the race for almost three-quarters of the distance.

Bresnahan's injury and Sallee's fall from grace put the Rajahs out of the running, and then Roger began trying out new material, intent on starting next year with a team of championship caliber. This policy eliminated the Cardinals' chances of finishing in the first division, but it will undoubtedly prove to be beneficial to Bresnahan in molding together a winning team for 1912.

The second best bet in the surprise was Doolin's Phillies, who finished fourth in 1910. Few critics would find a place in the first division for the Quakers, as they believed Cincinnati and Pittsburgh would occupy the berths beneath the Giants and Cubs.

Only a few Philadelphia optimists could see the Phillies in third place, and they also were picked to finish as low as seventh.

In looking over the season's records it will be seen that the Phillies played some of the strongest ball in the National league. The team early in the campaign showed such unexpected strength that it began to assume a comfortable lead. Every one knows the story of how the Phillies were put out of the running. First they lost Jack Titus, their right fielder, who was foolish enough to break a leg in sliding into the home plate.

The team hustled along without Titus until it lost the big gun in its attack—Sherwood Nottingham. Magee got puffed at a decision by Umpire Finnegan, and the rest is history. Even with Magee and Titus out and substitutes in left and right field, the Phillies continued to remain in the running.

Then came the biggest blow of all—"Reddy" Doolin, the team's manager and one of the best catchers in the game, broke his leg in St. Louis. That sounded the death knell to Quaker chances. Doolin's loss hurt the club more than the combined loss of Magee and Titus.

It was the work of Alexander which really started the Phillies on their first sprint in April. Plucked from the New York State league for $150, this youngster made a better record than Mathewson and won more games than any other pitcher in the National league, his final showing being twenty-eight victories and thirteen defeats. Chalmers was another big factor in keeping the Quakers in the race.

Outside of the pitchers, the Quakers had a strong, snappy team, which played a flashy style of ball. They had a collection of hard hitters, Fred Luderus being another one of the "unknowns" to rise to stardom. It is the general opinion that had it not been for the injuries the Quakers sustained and Magee's assault on Finnegan, the club would have been in the fight to the finish. Next to the Giants, the Phillies loom up as the strongest contender for the 1912 pennant.

As the Cardinals and Phillies were the big surprises of the National league, the Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Superbas were the disappointments. Cincinnati has been accustomed to a loser, and Redland fans are reputed to be the most grumpy brand in existence. Is there any wonder? Since Cincinnati has been on the National league map the city has never sported a championship aggregation.

Cincinnati fans had been fooled many times, but when they were told they had a championship contender this season they swallowed it, hook, line and sinker. Not only in Cincinnati did the Reds look good, but the critics all over the circuit were showering praises on them. Fate, however, was cruel to Clark Griffith. His team was a loser from the start.

Brooklyn fans also were disappointed at the showing made by their team, though not as much as their Cincinnati brethren. It was believed that Dahlen had whipped together a team capable of making a good fight for the first division, but the men failed to live up to expectations. Their average was a little higher this year than last, .427 to .416, but they dropped a peg instead of advancing in the standing.

One of the main reasons for the failure of the Superbas to better themselves was the breakdown of George Bell, considered one of the most valuable members of the team in the spring. Rucker and Barger met with accidents early in the year, and for a long time in midseason Barger was useless.

In the American league there were not as many surprises or disappointments as in the National. The Highlanders undoubtedly were the biggest disappointment of the year in the American league. The causes for their failure have been discussed a good many times.

Cleveland furnished the biggest surprise by finishing in third place, when at one time the team looked to be doomed for seventh. The Naps started off badly, the Browns trouncing them two games in succession. They gradually became worse until Manager McGuire threw up the sponge in disgust. George Stovall then was appointed manager for the reason that no other man was available.

Yean Gregg and Joe Jackson were big factors in the success of the Forest City team. Gregg was the Alexander of the American league. He was better known than the Phillies' crack New York state recruit, but his first year in fast company stamped him as being a marvel. Nothing need be said about Joe Jackson. Any man who can hit over .400 in his first full year on a major league club does not need any introduction. There is only one ball player in the game to whom Joe need take off his hat. He is Ty Cobb, and Ty is the greatest ball player that ever lived, say many fine judges.

The Detroitis sprang a big surprise early in the year, when they reeled off their brilliant string of victories and threatened to make the American league race a walkover. The team had not been considered much in the light of a contender, as most critics thought the Highlanders would be the only team that would make trouble for the White Elephants. It was predicted that the Detroitis had been together too long and would fall apart. This part of the prediction came true in the second half of the campaign, when the Tigers developed several weak spots that will have to be remedied before they can again hope to land the Ban Johnson trophy.

Washington was another disappointment. As in Cincinnati, the Capital City fans are used to second division teams, but just to see how it feels they would like to see their team above the 500 mark. McAleer's men showed vast improvement in 1910, and the fans looked for them to make trouble this season. As usual, they were disappointed, as the team finished with a lower average than in 1910. Its average in 1910 was .427 against .416 in 1911.

The winning of a second world's championship by the Athletics proves conclusively that the one secret of success in baseball is the wallop. The team that can hit the ball the hardest will always be the winner in the long run. Strategic work on the bases and "inside baseball" in general is an interesting study in its way, and it often keeps a team up in the race, but without the good healthy wallops that drive runs home in clusters no ball club can win a majority of seven games in a world's series. All the inside stuff in the world can be shattered by a healthy wallop delivered at an unexpected moment.

In the series just closed, which was, perhaps, the most interesting of any played since the Giants and Athletics first met under the present agreement in 1905, the Athletics proved conclusively that they are better batters than the Giants. That is why they won.

Good pitching can sometimes offset heavy hitting, for awhile, but sooner or later the natural wallop will come into its own. In this series it was expected that Mathewson and Marquard would be able to hold the Athletics down for as many as four games, but we forgot to reckon that at the same time Bender, Coombs and Plank would be able to hold the Giant batters down in the same ratio.

Mathewson pitched two beautiful games, and Connie Mack says that he should have won them both. He got by with the first one, but in the second the team could not hit behind him, and he was driven to defeat. In his third game Mathewson showed the effects of his first two efforts, and he was rapped sharply throughout the game. Marquard's inexperience was against him in both his starts, and he could not come up to expectations.

Before the fight started it was common knowledge that the Athletics were made up of heavy hitters. Six of them had hit over .300 for the season.

It is a hobby of McGraw that figures never go wrong. He has always maintained that the man who has the best average is the best hitter. The heavy hitting of the Athletics for awhile was attributed to the supposed fact that they were batting a livelier ball than the Giants, but that was not true. The manufacturers declare that the balls used in the American and National leagues are exactly the same.

McGraw realized what he was up against, but he had hoped that the Athletics would find strange pitching too hard for them and would not hit up to their regular form. On an average they didn't, but the Giants, who also had to face strange pitching, fell further below their hitting average than did the Athletics. Right there is the story of the Giants' defeat. They could not hit the ball as well as the Athletics. The hitting always tells.

In other words, the Giants were forced to meet a superior ball club. Three days before the final defeat came they realized it. McGraw, Robinson and Latham, old timers in the business, knew that the Athletic pitchers would have to weaken materially or the Giants would have to be favored with a streak of luck to win out.

They did all they could to keep the men spurred on, but the stronger club finally came into its own. It is fortunate for the game that no fluke or accident marred the playing of the series. The games were all clean and clear cut. In only one game was there any protest at the umpiring. Connolly's work in the second game at the Polo grounds was severely criticized by players and fans, but that is the only contest in which the umpiring could have changed the result one way or the other.

Good Quarterbacks Are Numerous This Season

THE two leading quarterbacks of the season are Sprackling of Brown and Howe of Yale, and while Howe has been resting Sprackling again threatens to be what he was last year, the best all around quarterback of the year. No better general than Howe, he is a more versatile performer and his all around playing shone against Penn recently. The mud prevented him from doing any open field running, but he drove and handled his team in fine style and was accurate and successful with the forward pass. His forward passing was the best seen in Philadelphia this year.

Another quarterback who continues to do exceptional work is Butler of Cornell. He and Howe and Sprackling are the best field goal kickers in the east. Four times this year Butler has kicked field goals twice in one game. He has helped Cornell to twenty-four points just that way. He kicked two goals from the field against Allegheny, two against Colgate, two against Washington and Jefferson and two against Oberlin. All twelve of Cornell's points against Colgate and Washington and Jefferson were due to Butler's field goals. These are the days of the one man asset.

In the west the leading field generals are McMillan, Soller of Illinois, Moll of Wisconsin, Gill of Indiana and Capron of Minnesota.

FOOTBALL LONG AGO.

As far back as 1583 the question of brutality was under discussion. The following is an extract from "Anatomie of Abuses," by Philip Stubbs, printed in London in 1583:

"For as concerning football play, I protest unto you it may rather be called ed a friendly kind of fight than a play or recreation; a bloody and murdering practice, than a fellowly sports or pastime. For dooth not every one lye in wait for his adversarie, seeking to overthrow him and to pitch him on his nose, though it be upon hard stones? In ditch or dale, in valley or hill, or what place soever it be, he careth not, so he have him down. And he that can serve the most in this fashion he is counted the only fellow and who but he? So by this means sometime their legs, sometime their armes, sometime one part thrust out of joint, sometime an other, sometime the noses gush out with blood, sometime their eyes start out and sometime hurt in one place, sometime in an other.

"But whosoever scapeeth away the best goeth not scotfree, but is either sore wounded, cruised and bruised, so as he dyeth of it or els scapeeth very hardly. And no maervail, for they have the sleight to meet one betwixt two, to dash him against the hart with their elbows, to hit in under the shut ribbes with their gripped fists and with their knees to catch him upon the hip and to pick him on his neck with a hundred such murdering devices and hereof groweth envie, malice, rancour, cholor, hatred, displeasure, quarrell, picking, murdering, homicide and great effusion of blood as experience daily teacheth."

Does This Get Your Goat?

Or Does It Appeal to You as the Real Dope?

To get one's goat is the most widely used expression of the present day perhaps. A great many persons who make use of it have not the slightest idea of its derivation, although they perfectly understand its meaning. It comes from the language of the race track. Certain highly nervous horses walk their stalls continually and in consequence go to the post all worn out. The great effort of a trainer is to cure a stall walker if one is under his care. To do this some animal is generally put in the stall with the horse to furnish the thoroughbred a companion.

The animal most frequently used for this purpose is a goat; hence when the goat is taken away from the horse the latter suffers from all his old nervousness again. To get a man's goat, therefore, means to put him into a highly worried frame of mind.

GREAT THINGS EXPECTED OF CATCHER HENRY

IN the opinion of some of the best judges of ball players the Washington club has in John Henry the making of one of the greatest catchers of recent years.

The Amherst boy demonstrated his ability to play first early in the season, but he did develop enough with the stick to hold down his position. However, a good catcher need not deliver so much in the hitting line, and that is where Henry will shine some day.

George McBride is a very conservative individual. He never talks for effect, but when he says something it is worth listening to. George was watching Henry work out a pitcher one day, when he remarked: "There is a young fellow who is going to make a great catcher. He caught a bunch of games for us on the last western trip, and he showed us all that he has wonderful ability. Of course he is not ripe yet. You can't expect a fellow to jump in from a college team and make good in fast company right off the jump, but Henry has pretty near done that. Wait until he gets a chance to catch regularly after awhile and you will see a real catching find."

ANOTHER BASEBALL TALE.

Here's a little tale for that very brave man who stands up in the grand stand, catches a stinging foul from the bat, looks around for his friends' applause and then sits down—curses himself because he allowed his hands to burn so much. The Red Sox were playing the Napslanders in Cleveland and Tris Speaker fouled one into the

NAVY WILL HAVE TO IMPROVE IN ORDER TO DEFEAT ARMY

By TOMMY CLARK.

THERE is no doubt that if the Navy expects to win from the Army this year it will have to bolster its attack considerably. At present it has few plays which could be depended on to gain ground against an eleven anywhere near its equal playing strength. Dalton is the mainstay of the offense, and in practically all their preliminary games the sailors have depended on his great line plunging to make their distance.

That is all right in a game in which the Navy practically outclasses its opponent in almost every department, but as soon as it strikes a team which is not below it in general all round strength it will be found that Dalton will not be as effective. That much was shown against Princeton recently. Although the Grango and Black had only one man backing up the line, it did not really need him as only one Navy play got beyond the line of scrimmage.

The great power of the Army team this year precludes any such idea as that the Navy will win the annual contest this year with a much varied attack. No matter with what precision the midshipmen play, there is little likelihood that they will be able to gain much ground against the Army by using such tactics as those it has so far used against the smaller elevens.

Of course it is to be considered that the Navy is not supposed to be as far advanced as the other teams, but it must be remembered that the game with West Point this year comes a week earlier than last. Besides, it is questionable if it is wise for a team to wait until a week before a game to develop its plays, as under such conditions they cannot be worked with as great accuracy as they could had they been given to the team early in the season. Every eleven ought to have its attack covered sufficiently to keep the opposing eleven guessing as to what is coming off any way and have such plays that if one part of the defense were weakened to strengthen another the weakened part could not be made the object of the attack.

Actual Playing Time of Football Is Very Short

HERE is an entertaining item to those interested in football: Last fall a Harvard man tried a most interesting experiment during the Harvard-Yale football game to ascertain how much time was used in actual playing, and his figures are astonishing. He confined his experiment to one period, but was extremely painstaking and had a man to assist him. He used a stop watch, starting it each play with the snapping of the ball by the centers and stopping it at the blowing of the referee's whistle. He repeated this process through every play of the official fifteen minute period and found that the players were in actual motion, struggling and fighting in offense and defense only three minutes and twenty seconds.

If the time of actual playing in this period was a fair average, the duration of physical exertion in the four periods approximated fifteen minutes. Much less time than it takes to win and lose a Harvard-Yale boat race. Moreover, besides the partial lull between plays, there are three breathing periods of actual rest of twenty-one minutes.

No doubt the personal contact of man against man or men accounts for the "using up" of players in football, but the sustained supreme effort of the oarsman is of longer duration. There is no lull for him until he has overdone himself to his utmost for twenty or more minutes.

Nobody who was ever connected with rowing is inclined to deny that it is as grueling a form of sport as was ever known. At the end of almost every hard race several men collapse from exhaustion, while half the men on the losing team usually burst out sobbing like children—solely from physical playout. At the end of a rowing contest a man is more completely "pumped out" than after any other form of game or sport.

It is amazing, though, that there are only fifteen minutes of actual play in a big football game. An offhand guess would have nearly doubled those figures.

In few games is the exercise as continuous as it is in football. In baseball the thread of the story is usually moving forward most of the time, but few players are doing anything. The pitcher has a pretty steady job, but even then it is a case of throw, rest, throw, rest, and so on. Just how much time the average pitcher does fitter away is well demonstrated when a slow pitcher is on duty. The catcher has a steady job, too, but look at the outfielders. About all they have to do is to pull grass and eat it.

Even less strenuous is the work of the men on the bench while their side is at bat. If the stop watch were put on the average player in motion making that he was actually in motion making plays and even counting the time he was at bat, it would not be found to total very high. How much more action could be put into a game was shown by the last game of last season when the world's speed record was broken.

Basketball is a pretty continuous sort of a game, but even that contest is well broken up by trials for foul goals and the like.

Southern Pitchers Hard to Hit

"Any player who can hit .250 in the Southern league can hit better than that in a major league," says Bill Lindsay, the Cleveland shortstop from New Orleans.

"Zack Wheat never hit better than .240 for Mobile, but he hit like a house afire with Brooklyn.

"Jake Daubert hit .260 with Nashville and has done better than that with Brooklyn. Joe Jackson had an unusually good year in the Southern last season and hit .357. He hit more than that in the American league.

"Good pitching makes it harder to hit in the Southern than any other league. The hot weather keeps the pitchers' arms in good shape."

Wants All Students to Row

Coach Jim Ten Eyck of Syracuse university is anxious to have all the students in the college learn to handle an oar. "Rowing is the greatest athletic exercise there is for a man," says Coach Ten Eyck. "There is a fascination about it which grows with each day in the shell. Where this benefits me is that I may find some men who are good enough to make the crews who would not report if they thought they were coming out for the crew. They can come into the rowing room and work out just as they would on the gymnasium floor."

VESSELS IN DISTRESS

Marine Accident Season Started Early off Chatham This Year

CHATHAM, Nov. 17.—Three vessels were sighted flying signals of distress off Monomoy Point at dawn today. One of them was ten miles off shore. A second was anchored off Great Point. A third was taken in tow by the revenue cutter Acushnet at 7 a. m., for Hyannis. The revenue cutter Gresham was asked to render aid.

The marine accident season began early on Nantucket Shoals this year for yesterday morning a little two-master was sighted well down toward Great Point, Nantucket, making frantic signals for assistance.

The Monomoy Point life-saving crew started off in their big surfboat an hour later but so stiff was the gale on the shoals that at dark last night the crew was still some distance from the schooner.

In the meantime the revenue cutter Acushnet, which was cruising to the westward of Woods Hole, was notified by wireless through the Newport naval station of the need of her assistance and headed round at all speed for Nantucket. The Acushnet reached the schooner at dark and found her to be the Ella Clifton. By that time the life-savers had boarded her and as soon as it was light the anchor was hove up and a start made for either Hyannis or Vineyard Haven.

It appeared that the night had been a stiff one on the shoals for the life-savers on both Monomoy Point and Great Point sighted two vessels in distress in addition to the Clifton.

The one sighted by the Coast Guard life-savers on Great Point seemed hard and fast on Great Point Rip and the keeper of the lighthouse on the point reported that there were two men lashed in the rigging and that the seas were almost smothering the vessel. The Coast Guard launched their boat but it was an hour before they cleared the line of breakers into which they were tumbled half a dozen times. At 8 a. m. they were on their way to the wreck but so fearful were the seas and the whirl of the tide over the rips that an hour later they were still a mile away from the vessel and seemed to be making no headway. The schooner sighted off Pollock Rip did not appear to be in such a serious condition as the other two, although she was anchored ten miles off shore and was being well battered by the seas.

The Monomoy Point life-savers had stayed aboard the Clifton so that the next nearest lifesaving station was either the Monomoy or the Chatham.

Both stations hauled their surfboats onto the beach and at 9 a. m. stood ready to start for the scene in the northwesterly gale, which began Wednesday morning, was still much in evidence today and there was very little shipping passing this point in either direction.

The Clifton was making a return trip to Bangor from New Bedford and was without a cargo.

During the forenoon several fishermen ranged up alongside the schooner off Pollock Rip, and at 10 a. m. when a steam trawler steamed up within hailing distance the distress signals were hailed down.

The gale at that time showed no signs of moderating.

RESCUED FROM HELPLESS BOAT

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 17.—A story of being rescued from a helpless powerboat by lifesavers after suffering from extreme cold was related by Frank Raymond when he arrived here today with Alexander Stevenson and Albert Thomas. The three men went out in a powerboat yesterday morning. When some distance off shore the engine became disabled. The manomet lifesavers saw their predicament and put out in a lifeboat. The men had been tossed about in a heavy sea until they were seven miles from land, being overtaken by the lifesavers. Darkness had fallen when land was reached and the men and lifesavers were exhausted by the cold.

THE EDDY WILL CASE

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 17.—The adjourned hearing on the plaintiff's demurrer in the action of Dr. Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy vs. Hon. Henry Baker, executor of the last will of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the trustees of the Christian Science church, went on before Judge Aldrich in the United States circuit court today, the forenoon being occupied with a discussion of an interlocutory motion presented by the defense that the argument be confined to the standing of the plaintiff in the case, the other questions to be held in abeyance until the right of the plaintiff is determined by the court.

TWO INJURED

AUTO HURLED ACROSS A STREET IN WALTHAM

WALTHAM, Nov. 17.—Two automobiles, one being operated, it is said, at a high rate of speed, came together at 9.30 last night at the corner of High and Newton streets in this city and the operators of both cars were injured.

William C. Chandler of 137 Alder street, this city, is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and several lacerations on the head, face and body. He is being attended at his home by Dr. Charles F. Brock.

Robert Stearns, chauffeur for Walter B. Henderson of Weyland, sustained several cuts and lacerations and was removed to his employer's residence, where he is under the care of a physician. Chandler was on his way to the Newtonville station to meet the train from New York which is due at 9.35, on which were Mr. and Mrs. Henderson.

Chandler was in an old touring car which he uses in his laundry business, was driving down High street and was just crossing Newton street when the Henderson car came along at a rate of 30 miles an hour, according to Patrolman John F. Edmunds, who saw the accident.

Just as Chandler's automobile started across Newton street on High street the Henderson car crashed into it, hitting the car on the side. The Chandler automobile was hurled 25 feet across the street, and it landed a mass of twisted and bent iron and splintered wood upon the lawn of B. S. Ellis. It was a complete and worthless wreck.

Chandler was thrown out of the car and landed upon his head on the road. He was dazed for a moment. Stearns was thrown out and he landed sprawling upon the hard ground.

HEAVY REGISTRATION

600 MORE WOMEN

At City Hall This Afternoon to Get Names on Voting List

The scene at city hall when the registration session opened at 1 o'clock this afternoon and for hours afterwards had to be witnessed to be thoroughly appreciated. In the basement, standing room was at a premium and women, desirous of registering, were everywhere.

Up to three o'clock nearly 300 women had registered and there were over 300 in line. It is the biggest job that the registrars have had on their hands for many months and the end is not yet. The line of women, three and four abreast, extended from the office of the board of registrars to the Moody street entrance and there were women on every other floor in the building asking to be directed to the office of the board of registrars. Police Officer William O'Brien was stationed in the basement and he said to it that the first to arrive were the first to be served.

Great Interest

The interest attending the registration of women at city hall has all other interests faded to the merest shadow. The office of the registrars of voters has more callers in a single hour than all other offices at city hall combined.

The voting spirit has caught on wonderfully. There isn't any new fall style that is fit for a moment. There are young girls, young women and old women and one of the things that tickles the registrars of voters is to inquire a girl's age. Some of the girls are wise to the fact that all they have to say is that they are twenty-one, but others of them give their right age and even John King who has lived here all his life and for a great many years, is surprised to learn that girls whom he considered eligible to the Old Maid's club are under 20.

"They may have fished about their age," suggested a reporter, and that nettled Mr. King.

"No gentleman," he said, "should even insinuate that a woman would fabricate. Personally I have explicit confidence in them."

Registered at Age of 81

The number of women to register yesterday was 638 and that is nearly 100 more than were registered before the beginning of the present week.

The oldest woman to register, thus far, was Adelina Ren Emerson, 83, East Merrimack street. She gave her age as 81.

The registration by wards, yesterday, was as follows:

Wards	Females	Males
1	62	3
2	43	2
3	46	2
4	78	3
5	56	2
6	59	3
7	74	3
8	74	3
Totals	637	27

This was to have been the last for registration for the preliminary election, but owing to the great demand for a continuance the registrars decided to keep open today from 1 to 5 p. m. and the same tomorrow, so that it will be a continuous performance from 1 to 5 today and tomorrow, and the chances are that extra sessions will be held next week.

Every girl at city hall has registered and more than 25 women called at the office of the registrars of voters this forenoon. They were of the opinion that they could register any old time and were sorely disappointed when told that they couldn't register before one o'clock. Five of six of them were wheeling baby carriages and they assured the registrars that they would return again during the afternoon.

All scenes and all records have been broken at the office of the board of registrars, and it only goes to show that when women get interested in anything or anything they show an earnestness that might, to advantage, be emulated by the sterner sex. The total number of women registered up to date is 1039.

The New Candidates

The following candidates made application for and received their nomination papers today:

For Alderman

Lawrence Cummings, 29 Huntington.

Charles D. Copeland, 73 South Loring street.

William Drapeau, 17 Mt. Washington street.

Harry W. J. Howe, 4 Eighth avenue.

For School Committee

Dr. Hush Walker, 14 Hanks street.

Dr. Napoleon O. Provancher, 186 Concord street.

The name of John Pyne, a member of the present school board was inadvertently omitted from the list of candidates for school committee. Mr. Pyne took out his papers last Wednesday.

City Election December 19

The primaries will be held Nov. 28 and the city election on December 19, the third Tuesday of that month. There are conflicting dates in the charter relative to the date for the holding of the city election and City Clerk Flynn referred the matter to City Solicitor

Duncan. The city solicitor has gone carefully into the matter and has declared that it was the original intention of the legislature to set the date of the city election for December 19, though conflicting dates are given in the charter. In one place it reads

"third Tuesday," and in another place

"fourth Tuesday." "I found," said the city solicitor, "that section three of the original draft, provides for the fourth

Tuesday as did also the final section, section No. 67. The legislature changed the reading in the third section to the third Tuesday but neglected to change it in the final section. There is no question but what the legislature in-

PALMER ARGUMENTS AUDIENCE FROZEN OUT

Will Be Made in the Superior Court on November 27
Local Picture Show Promoter
Sues Landlord

The hearing of the testimony relative to the motions to quash court proceedings against Jackson Palmer on which he was convicted of perjury was illegally brought, was resumed this morning before Judge John D. McLaughlin, at the court house at East Cambridge.

Several witnesses were heard at the morning session, including two grand jurors, Dr. Henry B. Perkins, father-in-law of Jackson Palmer, and Lawrence F. Smith of Jamaica Plain, whose business is that of making investigations for lawyers, and who did considerable work in connection with the present proceedings.

Another Judge Assigned

Prior to the opening of court District Attorney Higgins received a communication from Chief Justice John A. Sullivan, stating that another judge would be assigned to clear up other criminal business which is being delayed by the Palmer proceedings.

Opening of Court

Court opened shortly after 10 o'clock and the first question asked of George H. Sweetnam, foreman of the grand jury, who took the stand the day before yesterday, was as to whether during the past few weeks he had ridden in the cars to Boston with District Attorney Higgins. The witness answered in the negative, stating that he used the electric cars going between his home and the court house.

The question of admitting evidence relative to what transpired at the sittings of the grand jury was raised by the district attorney as a result of a question asked by Mr. Whipple. Disputed, the matter was referred to the jury, who were asked to decide whether the proceedings of the grand jury being made public, but the court allowed the witness to answer certain questions.

"Was it customary for either you or the district attorney to announce this is the case of the commonwealth of so and so?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"I would announce it," answered witness.

"Would you announce whether it came up on appeal from the lower court or how it came before you?"

"No, sir."

"Then you would say, 'We will hear the evidence?'"

"No, Mr. Higgins would say that."

"Yes, sir."

"What did you mean by saying that you were a supporter of mine?" asked the district attorney.

"I don't remember saying that."

"Were you a supporter of mine during the campaign for nomination?"

"No, sir."

Arthur J. Travers Called

Arthur J. Travers, a druggist of So. Framingham and also a member of the grand jury, was the next witness called. He said he was present at most of the hearings during the year.

"On July 18 did the grand jury vote in regard to matter affecting Jackson Palmer?" asked Mr. Higgins.

"Yes, sir."

District Attorney Higgins then asked a question which was objected to by Mr. Whipple, but Mr. Higgins said that he wanted to show that more than 12 men voted for an indictment and he felt that the court had a right to find out who voted, how they voted and what they said.

"What was the vote?"

"Vote was for indictment of Jackson Palmer."

Mr. Whipple objected to answer, and exceptions were saved.

"Do you remember whether more than 12 grand jurors voted in favor of that vote?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you heard the foreman testify?" asked Mr. Whipple on cross-examination.

"Yes, sir."

"When you heard his statement on that vote, and how it was put, did you notice any error or mistake in his statement?"

Mr. Higgins objected and the court sustained the district attorney.

"His statement agreed with your memory?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can you remember that the vote was put by the foreman as he said?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now wasn't this the way that the form of vote was put: 'Voted that the district attorney be instructed to draw up indictments against Jackson Palmer and three others?'"

"Yes, sir."

Dr. Henry B. Perkins, of West Newton, father-in-law of Jackson Palmer, was the next witness called. After answering the usual preliminary questions the witness said he attended the trial of Jackson Palmer on the charge of perjury.

On the last day of the trial he heard that Palmer was not legally indicted, but he could not recall who gave him the information. He said he had absolutely forgotten the name of the person who had given him the information. He then told Mr. Palmer and saw L. H. Smith and

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Ex-Sheriff John Zeller was found guilty in Jersey City last night of conspiracy to defraud Hudson county by appointing August Metzinger clerk of the board of elections, of which Zeller has long been chairman.

Metzinger admitted on the stand that although he charged for 104 days of work at $5 a day, he did no work and never even saw the office. Employees of the board could not remember having seen him.

Zeller's son-in-law, Robt. J. Weincke, was acquitted. Metzinger and Joseph O'Donnell of the board are under indictment.

Suit for $50,000

The trial of the case of Harriet S. Kammerling vs. William A. Knowlton, executor of the late Alice K. Hopkins, for $50,000 in an action of contract, will open Monday's session. The plaintiff in her declaration sets forth that in 1892 the defendant's testatrix, Alice K. Hopkins, promised the plaintiff, who at that time lived in the state of Maine, that if she would come to Boston and live with the testatrix, the latter would adopt the plaintiff as her daughter and would leave the plaintiff on her death one-half of all her property. The plaintiff came to Boston as an alleged result and lived with the testatrix for a long time. On February 12, 1909, Alice K. Hopkins died at Cambridge and neglected to leave the plaintiff the one-half of her property; whereupon the plaintiff sued to recover the one-half, namely $50,000.

Verdict of $157.50

At the opening of the afternoon session James Redmond, former promoter of dances, basket ball, picture shows, etc., testified that such a lease as that sought by the plaintiff in his opinion would be worth $25 per week.

For the defense Mr. Belsvert and his bookkeeper testified that a lease was prepared for the plaintiff but he refused to accept it.

The court ruled out testimony relative to the hearing proposition. Arguments were then made and the case went to the jury shortly before 3 o'clock. Court then adjourned until Monday morning.

Before Judge Merton left the court house the jury returned a verdict of $157.50 for the plaintiff.

Five Sessions on Tuesday

Janitor Adams is figuring out how to accommodate the five sessions on Tuesday. There are two probate rooms and five sessions. One shows large rooms used by Raskler Purcell in all probability will be devoted to court purposes on that day.

half, namely $50,000.

The defendant denies each and every allegation of the plaintiff and further states that the course of action mentioned in the plaintiff's writ occurred more than six years before the death of the defendant's testatrix; that the alleged contract was not to be performed within a year and no note or memorandum thereof in writing was ever signed by the defendant's testatrix, or by any one authorized by her; that the alleged contract for the sale of lands or interests in or concerning them, and no note or memorandum thereof was ever signed by the defendant's testatrix or any one authorized by her; that if the plaintiff shall prove any claim as alleged the same has been fully compromised and released.

John A. Peckey appeared for the plaintiff and Trull & Wier for the defendant.

Censures Taft for Pardoning Banker

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Attorney General Wickham was not very much disturbed by the statement issued by Gov. James H. Hawley of Idaho criticizing the president and the department of justice on account of the action of the president in granting a pardon to Clarence W. Robnett, bookkeeper in the Lewiston National bank of Lewiston, Idaho. Robnett was convicted of embezzling the funds of the bank and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, but he has not served any of his sentence. The governor denounced the pardon as likely to bring "justice into disrepute and weaken the courts in the estimation of our people." The attorney general explained that the pardon was arranged by telegraph between Washington and Idaho. In all such cases, he said, it was necessary to rely on someone implicated in the affair to furnish the testimony necessary to convict the others. The government was not anxious to enter into such negotiations, but it thought it better to make terms with one of the participants in the crime and convict the others than to allow all to escape for want of evidence on which to convict. It was also stated that the evidence tended to show that Robnett was the tool of other men in the affair, that he did not benefit financially by his crime and that the greater responsibility for the crime lay with others.

BAY STATE TROOPS

Will Lose Services of Captain Hanna

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Massachusetts militia will be without the services of its special instructor, Capt. M. E. Hanna, of the general staff of the United States army, during the coming year.

Much of the progress made by the militia during the past year was due to the work done by Capt. Hanna. He carried on a correspondence course of instruction for several months and made frequent trips to Boston last winter and spring.

Capt. Hanna is one of Gen. Wood's right hand men on the general staff and has a great deal of work to do. It taxed him heavily last year to do the extra work of instructing the Massachusetts militia.

Since then his work on the general staff has increased and he has so much ahead of him that he will probably be tied to his desk in the war department throughout the entire winter. The chances are that if special instruction is needed from a regular army officer the Massachusetts guardsmen will turn to Lieut. Geo. C. Marshall of the 24th United States infantry, who is now stationed at Boston, as instructor for the Massachusetts troops. Capt. Hanna feels that Lieut. Marshall is thoroughly capable to carry on the work he began and is sure the Massachusetts troops will lose nothing by his absence.

HEAVENLY TWINS

WERE FOUND DEAD IN THEIR GRANDNEPHEW'S HOME

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Word was received here last night that Mrs. Ada L. Sanford and Miss Eva Eno, aged 84 years, known as the "Heavenly Twins," were found dead this morning at the home of their grandnephew, John Humason, 142 Wilson street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Gas was turned on.

They left here last week for a visit. They were born in Bloomfield, Conn., Feb. 14, 1827. Last year they took a trip to Egypt and the Holy Land, and met ex-President Roosevelt at Cairo, where they were greeted by him.

They leave a sister, Mrs. E. M. Humason of New Britain, and a nephew, W. L. Humason, president of Humason & Beckley company.

DRANK WHISKEY

CHILD LIVED BUT A SHORT TIME AFTER DRINKING IT

RUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 17.—As a result of drinking the greater part of a half pint of whiskey, 4-year-old Mary Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Rice, died yesterday morning at the home at 237 West street.

The little girl drank the whiskey yesterday having discovered the bottle on a table and was found by her mother a half hour later unconscious on the floor. Doctors were called on the child for hours without avail.

MANY CANDIDATES

Are Out for Office in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Nov. 17.—Ex-Mayor Cornelius F. Lynch, John Shea, the hay and grain dealer, and Owen Kenefick, the Essex street photographer, announced their candidacies for aldermen Thursday. Mr. Kenefick took out nomination papers during the morning. Ex-Mayor Lynch's friends implored him to run for mayor, but, believing that the sentiment of the people was in favor of a new man for that office, he declined and consented to be a candidate for alderman for two years.

The names of Building Inspector James W. Managan and Albert S. Lang, the contracting builder, have been mentioned as possible aldermanic candidates and their friends, together with a number of prominent citizens, are urging them to run.

For aldermen, for two years: William Daly, of 96 Willow street;

Councilman Joseph A. Hurley, Redolphus W. Walker of 325 Broadway; Geo. W. Cutler, ex-Councilman; Alvin L. Hoffman, Patrick J. Conn, ex-Councilman; M. J. Doyle, Thomas J. Hebbly, Michael H. Collins of 399 High street, and Edward Kelley of 15 Centre street.

For aldermen for one year: Ex-Councilman Joseph A. Kennedy, Asst. Fire Engineer John J. Evans, Stark Mahan of 131 Salem street, James C. Cronin, of 141 E. Haverhill street, Joseph E. Adams of 62 Woodland street, Patrick E. Ryan, of 153 Lawrence street.

For the school committee, for two years: Clifton O. Andrews, W. E. Rushforth and M. J. Mahoney.

GOVERNOR FOSS

Cannot be Removed,
Says Sec'y Langtry

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Gov. Foss cannot be removed from office for failure to fully itemize his list of election expenditures, as required by statute, according to Sec. of State Langtry, who said yesterday:

"The constitution provides the manner in which a governor or a secretary of state can be disposed of and the constitution isn't controlled by provisions of statute law."

The corrupt practices act was supposed to be legislation rather in the interests of the poor man, Sec. Langtry observed. "It said that a man couldn't spend more than $5000, apart from personal expenses, in furthering his primary or election interests. If John Jones is running for governor he can't put an advertisement in the newspapers. He must do it through a committee. The law says he can't give more than $5000 to the committee. But John Smith can give that committee $50,000 to be used in the interests of John Jones if he sees fit."

There is a widespread feeling among officials, shared by the secretary of state, that the corrupt practices law should be and will be amended by the next legislature, and there is much sympathy for those who say its provisions defy comprehension at present.

Gov. Foss has intimated he may amend his rejected returns, but it is regarded as certain that there will be no legal proceedings against him in the matter.

MORE CHALLENGES

Of Talesmen at the Mc-Namara Trial

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Six permanent jurors, possibly seven, were in sight today when counsel gathered to purge a full jury box by peremptory challenges of those talesmen whom they considered prejudiced or otherwise unfit to try James B. McNamara, indicted for murder in connection with the Los Angeles Times building explosion.

District Attorney Fredericks announced today that he had assigned G.

Ray Horton, chief trial deputy, to try the case of A. B. Maple, F. J. Bender, and B. H. Connor, indicted for an alleged attempt to dynamite the Hall of Records here a month before the Los Angeles Times building was destroyed in the fall of 1910. Counsel for the McNamaras likewise were defending three men.

Lowell People Helped

MANY INTERESTING FACTS REVEALED

"There is one question that is put to us more often than any other," said one of the specialists who are at the Hall & Lyon drug store, "Lowell a remarkable new tonic called 'Tona Vita,' and which strangely enough I find it most difficult to answer. That is: Why is there so much suffering here in Lowell when most of it can be cured by the use of proper medicine?"

"The only answer I can give to this question," continued the specialist, "is that most people do not know the nature of their ailments and therefore do not select the proper cure. They fail to recognize the indisputable fact that the very lowest average twenty-five per cent. of the sufferers in Lowell have nothing more or less than nervous debility. They, or their doctors, may call it something else, but as soon as they treat themselves for that trouble they improve."

"Nervous debility," says the specialist, "is that condition of the body or any of its organs, in which the vital functions are discharged with less than normal vigor, the amount of power and activity displayed being reduced. It simply means that the body is dispossessed of its characteristic properties, and, combined with high state of nervousness, the modern plague, nervous debility is produced. The body is then in a state of languor and decline."

"The following symptoms are characteristic of this trouble: Lassitude, nervousness, sleeplessness, timidity, depression of spirits, little vitality, cold feet, poor circulation, weak back, headache, poor digestion, stomach and bowel troubles, depression and despondency."

"These are unmistakable indications of nervous debility, and there are thousands here in Lowell, like all large cities, who suffer with this trouble in its most distressing form."

"Tona Vita" will act in such cases like a true specific. From the moment the medicine is taken, improvement is rapid."

"The 'Tona Vita' introductory sale is now being conducted at the store of Hall & Lyon, where the specialists can be seen any day from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m."

"While we are meeting callers each day now and hundreds of debilitated people are regaining their health through our medicine there are thousands more who want to reach before we leave Lowell. If all the men and women who are struggling along, depressed in mind and body by nervous debility, unable to get any real enjoyment out of living, would only take the time to come in and talk to us, we would bring a tremendous amount of happiness to the people of this city. There is little real pleasure in life for an individual who feels continually worn out. Positively the very first dose of our tonic benefits a man or woman in this condition."

Mullin refused to run for another term and Joseph Pahey was the choice of both committees for the office. Mr. Pahey was president before and was the main factor in building up the division. On the night of the election, fifty candidates will be initiated and there will be a smoke talk.

A REAL STABBING

In a Scene Between Jealous Women

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 17.—A real stabbing in a scene between jealous women broke up a vaudeville act and threw the female portion of the audience into hysterics at a local theatre last night. Mme Yuki Yamakura forgot a table knife had been substituted for the usual property dagger, and when she attacked Mme. Anna Kremsa at the climax of a heated quarrel, the latter fell to the stage with blood oozing from a wound in her left breast. When the excitement had quieted down, it was discovered that Mme. Anna was not dangerously hurt. The women are the best of friends in real life.

BANK DOORS CLOSED

WASHINGTON, N. J., Nov. 17.—The doors of the Washington National bank of this place did not open this morning for business. A notice was tacked on the door stating that the bank was closed and that its affairs were in charge of the controller of the currency. The National bank examiner, Robert Goodheart, was at the bank yesterday examining the books. After a conference yesterday with the officials he decided not to allow the bank to open its doors today. Some of the loans were not satisfactory. The bank has a capital stock of $50,000, and there is about $150,000 on deposit.

AMERICAN MAKERS

ALL PARTS OF WORLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The American shoe manufacturer is extending his sales in all parts of the world. In the fiscal year 1910 he exported less than 400,000 pairs of boots and shoes; in 1909, 600,000 pairs; in 1908, over 1 million pairs; in 1907, over 1 million pairs; in 1906, over 1 million pairs; and in the calendar year which ends with next month the number will exceed 8 million pairs, to say nothing of the 1 million pairs going to Porto Rico and Hawaii. These figures relate to boots and shoes of leather; while if to this we add those of India rubber, we get an additional 3 million, bringing the total number of American made boots and shoes passing out of continental United States in 1911 up to an average of a million pairs per annum 20 years ago.

This increase, it should be remembered, has come in the face of a large manufacture in foreign countries of boots and shoes called "American" and manufactured by foreign workmen and of foreign material but upon American patterns and following American methods of manufacture. It is a well known fact that large quantities of shoes sold in various parts of the world under the title of "American" are in fact made in European countries upon patterns and forms and methods of manufacture developed in the great manufacturing establishments of the United States; and it is thus probable that the number of boots and shoes of American type and thus American in the sense of form and method of manufacture sold in foreign countries is very much greater than that indicated by the mere figures of exportation. In actual exports of boots and shoes manufactured in the United States, the total for the year which ends with next month will, as above indicated, aggregate more than 12 million pairs, including in this figure those of India rubber and those sent to our own non-contiguous territory.

Where do they go? Everywhere, apparently, that man wears boots and shoes: Japan, Korea, Siam, the Dutch East Indies, Egypt, Portuguese Africa, Liberia, Congo, Angola, Russia, Aden, Gorman Oceania, British Guiana, Ecuador, Salvador, Costa Rica, Roumania, Turkey in Asia, China, British South Africa, Paraguay, the Straits Settlements, Spanish Africa, Bulgaria, Honduras, the Dutch West Indies, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Syria, and the Azores and Madeira Islands, to say nothing of the larger importers of our boots and shoes—Cuba, Mexico, England, Canada, Germany and France.

All these and many other interesting facts about the exportation of boots and shoes and numerous other articles of American manufacture are to be found in that interesting volume of the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, entitled "Commerce and Navigation of the United States," which may be had on application to that bureau. It shows boots and shoes exported from the United States to no less than 55 countries and colonies of the world and that the value of boots and shoes exported, which had never reached as much as a million dollars per annum prior to 1896, now exceeds 12 million dollars per annum and will in the current year amount to about 15 million dollars in value, including those sent to the non-contiguous territory of the United States; and if to this we add the value of India rubber boots and shoes, exported, we should have a total of about 17 million dollars for boots and shoes of all kinds passing out of continental United States in the year which ends with next month.

The United Kingdom is the chief rival of the United States in supplying boots and shoes to the world. Her exports of boots and shoes are still greater both in total number of pairs and total value than those of the United States, but the growth in her case is far less rapid than that of this country. The number of pairs exported from the United Kingdom in 1905 was 8,035,440; and in 1910, 12,039,656; the percentage of gain in the case of the United Kingdom being 49 per cent, and in the case of the United States, nearly 710 per cent. The value of leather boots and shoes exported from the United States, however, is more nearly identical with that of like exports from the United Kingdom, having been in the calendar year 1910, $13,214,227, and $14,744,989 for the United Kingdom, the average price per pair of those exported from the United States having been $1.63, against $1.13 for those exported from the United Kingdom.

BACKWARD PUPIL

"DUNCE" AT SCHOOL

During your schooldays, whether those be ten, twenty or fifty years ago, you, no doubt, know some boy or girl who had the ill fortune to be known as a "dunce." Neither arithmetic, geography, nor history, nor grammar, nor any other study, was that child able to master. When called upon by the teacher to give the possessive case of the pronoun "he," to tell where was located the Bay of Bengal, that unfortunate young one would rise, look about in a bewildered manner, and, after making a pitiful stab at the correct answer, would sit down with a lump in the throat on noting the smiles of derision which the other pupils would make but little effort to conceal. In nine cases out of ten this pupil would cease attending school at the earliest opportunity; not because little value had been put upon an education but because he could not bear to be a perpetual object of ridicule.

In these days, however, the backward pupil in most cases is receiving intelligent instruction that has been mapped out by scientific minds, while in many of the schools in our larger cities special classes have been established for the purpose of giving a course of instruction suited to the needs of these particular pupils. Educators who have studied the subject assert that in the majority of cases "dunces" are the logical result of faulty environment. Some, it is stated, are handicapped with poorly nourished bodies; some are those so unfortunate as to have been started wrongly at the beginning of their school career; some, again, are sound enough in body but hysterically inclined.

In France there has recently been put in operation a system that by measuring the intelligence of every pupil, weeds out the "dunces" and shows their different grades of mental capacity. This result was attained through a board of examiners who visited the public schools of the large cities and began investigating the exact intelligence of the children. Beginning with pupils of four years of age, the examiners asked a series of questions to thousands of the little ones and finally ascertained just what questions the majority of children of that age could answer correctly. Thus the examiners obtained an exact knowledge of those things which a normal minded child of four years should know. For instance, such a child was found able to touch its eyes, mouth, nose and, pictures of these as directed, to repeat without error easy sentences of six syllables, to name familiar objects in pictures, and to give its own family name. Naturally, the normal minded child of five years could answer a specified list of questions that were a little more difficult, the child of six questions of

BEAUTIFUL GIFTS

PRESENTED TO CONVENT OCCUPIED BY THE GREY NUNS

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Gregoire, whose generosity is so well known, have presented the new convent occupied by the Grey Nuns, on Moody street, with magnificent Stations of the Cross, each of which is wonderfully beautiful. An expensive lamp for the sanctuary has also been given by Mr. and Mrs. Gregoire.

Useless to say that the gratitude of the religious members of the community will show itself by the blessings they will call from heaven upon the heads of the benefactors whose names shall forever live in the memory of the favored members.

still greater difficulty, and so on throughout the various ages. With these facts compiled, it is an easy matter to measure the intelligence of a backward pupil, imagining that such a pupil is a boy of twelve years. The first is examined on the "four years old list of questions. These being answered without difficulty, he is questioned on the "five year old" list and so on until he reaches a list that he is unable to answer correctly say, in this case, the "ten year old" list. Consequently, the preceding list, that is, the last one through which he successfully passed indicates his mental age, nine years. So the 12-year-old backward pupil, who is mentally only nine years of age, is placed in a class where he properly belongs and where, with his fellow "backwards," he will be given instruction suitable to his particular needs. Truly, civilization progresses.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The opera house was literally filled last night and there was a reason, for "The Chocolate Soldier" was in town and he it said in the beginning that the troupe of artists who presented this opera was well received by the large and appreciative audience. The performance is in three acts and based on Shaw's "Arms and the Man," with music by Oscar Straus, and it is one masterpiece for the lovers of good music.

The chorus composed of two scores of good voices, rendered some very fine selections, and the solo duets, etc., were given in a very pleasing manner, and each selection struck its mark.

The cast of the opera was as follows:

Nadina Popoff, daughter of Col. Popoff, Frances Hewitt
Aurelia Popoff, her mother, Lotta Gale Mascha, Aurelia's cousin,
Lieut. Bumeril, "The Chocolate Soldier," Roy Purvience
Capt. Massakroff, of the Bulgarian army, J. Russell Powell
Louka, Popoff's servant,
Olive Randolph

Stephen, Popoff's servant, George Ogilvie
Colonel Kusimar Popoff, of the Bulgarian army, Nelson Riley
Maj. Alexis Spiridoff, of the Bulgarian army, J. F. McDonough

It may be well also for the benefit of those who were not present, to publish the musical program.

Act 1—What Can We Do Without a Man? Introduction and trio, "My Hero," aria, "Symphony," duet, Ensemble, Finale—"Tirala," (Romance).
Act 2—"Our Heroes Come," "Alexus the Heroic," "Never Was There Such a Lover," "The Chocolate Soldier," duet, "The Fall of a Coat," "That Would Be Lovely," duet, Finale.
Act 3—Intermezzo and Chorus, "Falling in Love," song, "The Letter Song," duet, Scene and Melodrama, "The Letter Song," Finale.

The headliner in this musical comedy is Frances Hewitt as "Nadina Popoff," who possesses a well trained soprano voice. Her acting as well as her singing is of the most refined kind and her beautiful singing was the cause of her responding to many cheers. Miss Hewitt, although a stranger here, captured her audience from the very beginning. Her performance last night was a well trained soprano voice. Her acting as well as her singing is of the most refined kind and her beautiful singing was the cause of her responding to many cheers. Miss Hewitt, although a stranger here, captured her audience from the very beginning.

In the part of "Mascha" Emma Loomis cannot be excelled. Her voice, gestures and stage facilities are there, and the part could not be better fulfilled. J. F. McDonough as "Alexus" with his cold steel voice was rich. His part is a rather brusk one, but it was well handled. Mr. McDonough's voice is pure and charming. A word of praise may also be given in favor of Nelson Riley as the colonel, for his playing was grand. Possessed of a powerful baritone voice, Mr. Riley knows how to handle it to please. And J. Russell Powell as "Captain Massakroff," the Bulgarian terror, with his deep bass voice was all that was wanted in his part. The chorus was large and sang well. The costumes were rich and handsome. All in all it was a delightful performance of a thoroughly good light opera.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

Of all the American plays "Uncle Tom's Cabin" seems to have the strongest hold on the people. What is said to be one of the best productions that this American classic has ever had will be given at the Opera House on Saturday, matinee and night, under the management of Leon W. Washburn. Watch for the big street parade with two brass bands, "Eva" in her golden chariot, "Manks" and his donkey, a pack of real Cuban bloodhounds, beautiful Shetland ponies, tableaux, floats, jugglers, and a host of new sensations.

GERTRUDE RENNYSON

The Boston Advertiser writes as follows about the OrNSTEIN recital last Thursday.

"It was a taxing program of wide scope and unlimited possibility. Played by a second rate artist it would have been unbearable. Brilliance and fire held sway. He has the strength of seven men in his muscles of steel, and were he older he might easily pass as a 'pupil of Liszt.' The piano vines and smarts under his hands, his climaxes have an orchestral sonority, and his technique is well high perfection. The old Abbe Liszt could write music descriptive of the infernal regions better than anyone else. His 'Mephisto' waltz is a stunner, a horribly cacophonous and hideous mass of sounds which Lucifer himself would have difficulty in making intelligible. In this work Mr. OrNSTEIN seemed to be possessed of his satanic majesty and he gave us a performance that was marvelous in its mastery of the impossible technical problems involved, and in the force of its diabolical splendor.

Chopin, master of miniature and grace, stands inevitably upon the programs of the recitalists. The sentimental Chopin the consummate Chopin, the heroic Chopin, the amorous Chopin, and very seldom the poetic Chopin—are all presented to us by various artists. Yesterday it was a mixture of these, but never did the Polish bard sing more delightfully than in the "Pavane." It was tossed off with wonderful transparency and delicacy. The piece was conceived in a happy style and played faultlessly.

Mr. OrNSTEIN will give a second recital in Boston in January in Jordan hall and will also appear as soloist at one of the Sunday night concerts of the Boston Opera House. It is to be expected that after his appearance as assisting artist of the Rennyson concert the people of Lowell will be anxious to hear him again and he may appear here in his own recital later in the season.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Bert Melrose is the only man in the vaudeville business who daily and nightly defies the laws of gravity and goes away with it. Bert is considered the world's funniest clown. He is certainly the world's greatest equilibrist, for he does stunts that threaten his neck every moment and yet he comes out of his act right side up and all sound. His falls off the piled up tables are marvelous. He will continue to fall at Keith's for the remainder of the week. The Five Musical Noses are the musical hit of the season in vaudeville. Their act possesses irresistible charm and one does not have to be an expert on music to appreciate them. Their music goes to the heart and well demonstrates the truth of the old adage, that music hath charms to soothe the savage beast.

McCormick and Wallace have no equals in the art of ventriloquism and in the performance of their act they introduce a number of figures which by their skill of tongue and hand are made to appear most human and alive. Miss Wallace also entertains with singing and dancing.

The Belden-Capelle company presents a roaring farce, entitled "Oh, Doctor!" depicting the ludicrous but ingenious scheme of two stranded actors to raise some money. Arthur Whitlaw, the Irish-American, hands out a budget of blarney and then concludes his act with a sweetly sentimental recitation, entitled "The Top of the Morning." Les Montforts are premier performers on the horizontal bar and their act has a novel feature of their own, entitled "Looping the Loop." Al and Hattie Barlow give a charming planology, including some new and catchy songs. Lewis and Doby make you laugh with their parodies and funny stuff. Then there are the picture acts, and the greatest bill presented this season. Telephone for seats in advance, 28.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

"A Knight for a Night," Henry Rousseau's side-splitting farce comedy, not only full of fun but crowded with it, for there isn't a serious moment in the entire play unless one expects a sort of time in the third act when Mr. William Walsh sings "Maid of My Dreams" with fine effect, accompanied by Miss Lucille Spinner, on the piano, and even then the occasion of the singing causes a laugh for the singer is about to do a quiet disappearing act when he is held up by his mother-in-law, who is always on the job. As

Reputation-Price Making

Give me Customers Enough at Low Prices for a Few Weeks, and I'll Build a Reputation In These Days of Fleeting Memory to Last at Least Through the Dullness of the Coming Holidays : : : : :

Listen to me. My trouble today is to get you to believe that low price clothing is possible. Every merchant's trouble is to get the people to believe in low priced merchandise. You come to the merchants and demand high prices one day and the next day you go out and yell about the high cost of living.

Now don't come to me looking for $30 or $40 suits or overcoats. Come to me and say, "let me see those $12.50 suits and overcoats." If I can get enough of you to buy $12.50 garments, if I can get enough of you to tell your friends in the streets and shops that you paid $12.50 at Mitchell, the Tailor's for your suit or overcoat, I'll make more customers than any $30 or $40 house can make in Lowell with the qualities that I see them giving the people these days.

I have the goods. Suits and overcoats—in qualities that mark the highest perfection of America's most skilled and accomplished workmanship—in qualities that rival the supposed or boasted superiority of anything that Europe produces—in qualities that eminently entitle New England and its productive hills to its far-famed reputation of being the origin and ultimate destiny of this western hemisphere's textile industry.

Now where can you buy better at any price? Now why throw your salary away in quest of unattainable desires? You can't get better goods than I sell because this country doesn't know how to make better than I carry.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The play abounds in funny situations. "A Knight for a Night" is excellently staged, great care having been given to this important feature.

Next week the Donald Meek company will present the beautiful play, "The Struggle," a comedy drama similar in nature to the famous "Music Master."

The advance sale of seats for the concluding performance of "A Knight for a Night" has been large and those who intend witnessing the play are advised to order their seats at once. The box office telephone is 811.

If you are partial to a good one-act melodrama, if you like good singing, if a wild west entertainment hits your fancy, if you care for an excellent animal act, or if the very best of photography are to your particular liking, you'll find it at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Consider the quantity and quality of the attractions at this popular playhouse, then give a thought to the prices asked and if they can be duplicated hereabouts then let's know it. John J. Quigley, singer, well known in all of the big cities of the east as the original newsboy tenor, in a series of his latest and best song successes, is only one of the several good things contained in this week's bill. Mr. Quigley still retains all the charm as a vocalist that made him a general favorite in the past and his songs this week are among his favored selections. Our stock company in Al E. Watts' one-act play, "By the Midnight Train," is a clever short story play that has pleased many audiences. Nebraska Bill & Co. give a novel wild west entertainment, and Reed's Acrobatic Bull Terriers are especially amusing in their varied program of wonderful feats. A pair of comedians provide good entertainment, and the photo-plays for the last three days of the week are now. Tonight the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the opera "Norma." Next week's bill promises many good things. "The Base Ball Fans" and "Ah Line Foo" will appear on next week's bill.

BIG TIMBER LAND

Bought by the New Haven Road

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—With a view to bringing about closer relations with the New England farmer and for the encouragement of agriculture, the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. Co. through its industrial bureau has recently secured a favorable option on 36,000 acres of farm and timber land in Maine, a part of which the Maine Central Railroad Co. will use for an experimental farm under the supervision of the bureau with the idea of colonizing the property at a later date. The New Haven company also has erected a large warehouse at its Harlem river terminal for the express purpose of providing storage and giving New England farmers opportunity to reach the Harlem and Bronx markets with their farm produce.

49 DELEGATES

ATTENDED MEETING OF TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Forty-nine delegates, representing 21 unions, answered the roll call at a meeting of the Trades and Labor council held at 32 Middle street last night.

A communication from the commission on compensation for industrial accidents, offering to send a speaker to explain the new law, was read and it was voted to ask the commission to send a speaker to the next regular meeting, Dec. 7.

The legislative committee made a report of its doings during the last two weeks and the report was accepted.

CHAMPIONSHIP FOOTBALL GAME

The Palmyers and Indians, two of the strongest football teams of the city, will meet at Washington park, Saturday afternoon, at 2.30, to battle for the championship of the city. The game will be interesting and lively as both teams have a good following of rooters and are playing fast football. The game was scheduled for the Textile campus but the place was changed as the high school team does not play on that date and Washington park is more convenient.

The line-ups:
Palmyers—Connors, Donoghue, Lyons, Bokand, Healey, Kivian, Sullivan, David, Fahy, Fawcett, McMahon, Cassidy, Mooney, Corcoran, Brennan.
Indians—McHugh, Ross, Moran, Conlon, Murphy, Quinn, Mahon, O'Halloran, Donnellan, Flynn, Toy, Regier, Ogdon, Laurin and Varnum.

BRINDLE BULL DOG

Saved the Lives of Several Persons

WORCESTER, Nov. 17.—"Mutt," a brindle bulldog, whose master is Lieut. Skerrett of the state militia, saved the lives of seven occupants of an apartment house in this city today. Shortly before dawn "Mutt" was awakened by smoke which filled the kitchen of the Skerrett apartment. The dog set up a howl that awakened Mr. Skerrett, who in turn aroused the other occupants and all got out safely. The damage is estimated at $6000.

KNOCKOUT BROWN

WILL MEET "ONE ROUND" HOGAN
TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A ten-round bout of near championship calibre will be fought here tonight when Knockout Brown and One Round Hogan meet at the Madison Athletic A. C. This is the second time these lads have mixed it up. Their former encounter was so close that tonight's match was arranged to settle the question of supremacy. The 135 pound weight tonight is a concession to Hogan, who frankly confessed that he could not make the 125 pound lightweight limit and retain his strength. A victory to either boy means probably a match with Ad Wolf-gast for the world's championship.

RICE INDUSTRY

THIS COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Cultivation of rice in the United States has increased so rapidly in recent years that this country now is growing practically all the rice it consumes, according to the department of agriculture. Some special varieties of rice, however, are still being imported for the use of Orientals, who do not take the product of this country. The Philippines and the islands of the Caribbean sea now get their supply of rice from the United States. Reports received by the department of agriculture show that the acreage of Louisiana and Arkansas has increased approximately 700,000 in the last two years, although the majority of farmers in this section know little about the irrigation of their land.

WORTH $50,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Insanity proceedings have been brought against Mrs. William Jones, wife of the man who attempted to kill Guitau, assassin of President Garfield, by Charlotte D. Bates, a niece. Mrs. Bates claims that her aunt's mind has been unbalanced by worry over her husband's dissipation and that although the aged woman is worth $50,000 she recently was discovered living in a hovel. Mrs. Jones will be examined in the district supreme court Monday. She has retained United States Senator Raynor of Maryland and two other lawyers to resist the proceedings.

DARTMOUTH BOYS

GAME

HANOVER, Nov. 17.—Eleven hundred strong, the student body of Dartmouth college left this snow-coated college this afternoon, headed toward Boston and the stadium in Cambridge where tomorrow the wearers of the Green meet Harvard in their final football game of the season. It was the usual enthusiastic scene that the town-folk witnessed as the men started on their ride to the railroad station shortly before one o'clock to board two special trains. All felt sure that Dartmouth would win. The team proceeded toward Boston a few hours before the student body. The players will stop overnight in Auburndale.

THE CHINESE CABINET

Will Have a Brief Existence,
It is Believed

PEKING, Nov. 17.—7.45 p. m. China's first experiment with a constitutional cabinet dominated by Chinese does not promise much except as a stepping stone to something more permanent. The local newspapers express the opinion that the administration of Premier Yuan Shi Kai will be brief. Some of those selected ministers have already declined to serve. It is believed that a few of the members were even consulted before their names were announced in the imperial edict yesterday. The membership is a strange mixture of Manchus and Chinese, supporters of the throne and out and out reformers. The ostensible purpose was to reconcile all factions but the suspicion exists in some quarters that Yuan deliberately constituted a government a continuation of which he knew to be impossible.

CHINESE OFFICIALS

HAVE ABANDONED TOWNS IN FO KIEH

AMOI, Nov. 17.—Interior towns in the southern half of this province, Fo Kien, having been abandoned by the imperial officials, are appealing to the revolutionists to send magistrates to preserve order. From Sioke, near Chang Chow, comes word that the anti-foreign White Funs are becoming active at Sioke.

According to native estimates more than 1,000 casualties had occurred up to last evening in the three days' fighting at Chang Cho. The rival factions in the revolutionary party in Amoy are trying to adjust their difficulties.

FOREIGN TROOPS

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A news dispatch from Tien Tsin, China, says that British, French and Russian troops

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The next move looking to the voluntary disintegration of the International Harvester Co. rests with that corporation. The negotiations between the department of justice and the company have been temporarily suspended pending action by officials of the so-called Harvester trust on the department's objections to the plan of dissolution submitted to the representatives of the company.

His Wife—"Come out from under there, George! Your clothes will be all covered with grease again and you know it won't come off. We'll walk home."

Anty Drudge—"Let him fix it, Dearie; and don't fear the grease. Fels-Naptha will take out all the grease spots and stains. It's as good for 'dry cleaning' garments as it is for washing clothes."

Where there's a will there's a way.
But, usually, only one way.

Fels-Naptha is the way through which you can free yourself from the drudgery of the old-fashioned washday—if you will.

What is that drudgery?

You know.

Boiling clothes, making fires, hard rubbing.

Fels-Naptha lops it all off, takes it out of your washday program.

Fels-Naptha itself does all the work that you yourself would have to do in the roundabout way, summer or winter.

And it does it in cool or lukewarm water, without hot fire, without nauseous suds or steam in the house, without hard rubbing.

Have you the will to cut loose from the old ways—to free yourself from this drudgery?

Follow the easy directions on the back of the red and green wrapper.

THE BOYS' COUNCIL

Held Opening Banquet at Paige Street Baptist Church

The Paige Street Baptist church was the scene last evening of the opening banquet of the Boys' Council, of the men and religion forward movement of Lowell.

John Jacob Rogers was toastmaster and introduced the speakers of the evening. Mr. Rogers regretted that the framers of the program had not included him among the speech makers and he wanted the boys to know that he was thoroughly interested in the movement.

After a baritone solo by Frank L. Laprise the toastmaster introduced

Rev. B. R. Harris, pastor of the Paige Street Baptist church. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Harris said that a church without boys was a dying church. "I wish I could congratulate you all," he said, "on what you are bringing into the churches."

In introducing the speaker of the evening, H. W. Gibson, secretary for the boys of Massachusetts and Rhode Island Y. M. C. A.'s, Mr. Rogers referred to him as "the man of many titles." Mr. Gibson said in part: "In speaking to you tonight I feel a great responsibility, as well as a great pleasure. In this boys' forward movement there are already enrolled over 1,000,000 boys."

Speaking of the necessary requisites to make any movement a success, Mr. Gibson said that energy was an important one. "A boy," he said, "is just one bundle of energy, almost ceaseless energy. We can forgive and rejoice in the noise and dirt of the average healthy boy. When a boy sits around and doesn't get noisy, we immediately conclude that the boy is sick. As for the dirt, I guess that all you boys remember the circular washcloth to your faces with one full swoop, dabbed a little of the moisture on the back of your necks, and in reply to your mother's questioning on this subject, held out the towel to her as evidence. We want boys who are noisy because those boys are energetic. Have you ever noticed how lustily boys can sing a song that they like? I remember reading a little story of a class of boys in a Sunday school who were singing the hymn, 'I Want to Be an Angel,' at least all the boys were singing with the exception of one. The teacher asked him why he didn't sing as the others were, and he replied, 'Cause, I don't want to be an angel.' I have always had a lot of respect for that boy. When boys sing songs they ought to mean every word of those songs just as much as any spoken word."

"And another thing is rightness, manly rightness. Now I was glad to see that you men had men to serve you tonight, and had not asked a band of tired-out mothers to come down here and prepare and serve a dinner for you. You did it in a manly way. You hired men to do it for you. I have been to 11 banquets in the last 15 days in the interest of this movement, and I am glad to say that all but three were served by men."

"Vigor is another thing which we need. I have always held the porous plaster in high esteem because, even though everybody turns his back to it, it sticks there and can't be separated from its job until it is finished. Now it will take vigor for us to stick to our jobs, but it is well worth while. There is little place in this world for quitters."

"And in closing I want to tell you that Christianity is a man's religion. When some big, strapping fellow walks up to you and asks if a big boy like you still goes to Sunday school, just tell him that that is a man's job and tell him to try it and find out. It took courage for the early Christians to stick to their religion and allow themselves to be used as torches at Nero's garden parties. So I hope that every one of you boys will go out and work and make this great movement mean what it ought to mean right in your own church."

Mr. Henry A. Smith was next introduced and made a short speech.

The following are the officers of the organization: President, Jas. A. Grant; vice president, Harlan Foster; secretary, George Wilkins; treasurer, Philip E. Thissell.

The committee chairmen are as follows: Boys' work, Mr. R. W. MacAllister; social service, Nelson C. Chase; Bible study, Frank W. Callahan; auction, Howard A. Hande; evangelist, Chester Chase; finance committee, Philip E. Thissell; Jan. Legett, A. R. Barrows; Wesley Brown, Harlan Foster; banquet and program committee, Mr. Fred Thumins, Leander F. Conley and Frank Laprise.

YES, INDEED.

On deck again with that bang up 10c cigar, 1st Trinidad, sold today, tomorrow and Sunday, for 5c straight, $2.50 per box of fifty. If you buy cigars by the box, see us. Howard, the drug-gist, 137 Central street.

INTERESTING BOOK

PUBLISHED BY NATIONAL SOCIETY OF THE S. A. R.

The National society of the Sons of the American revolution recently published a very interesting book entitled the "National Year Book." This book has 308 pages and contains the list of the general officers and of national committees for 1911, national charter, constitutional and by-laws, officers of state societies and local chapters, proceedings of Louisville congress, May 1 to 3, 1911, records of members enrolled from May 1, 1910, to April 30, 1911.

This prospectus of this book is a beautiful engraving of the president general, Moses Greeley Parker of this city, while several other pictures of interest are also printed in this souvenir book, among them being a large picture of the delegates at the Louisville congress, the said picture having been taken at the country club of the latter place.

The general officers of the society are: President general, Moses Greeley Parker, M. D., Lowell, Mass., vice presidents, Joseph G. Butler, Jr., Youngstown, Ohio; Gen. Irving Hale, Denver, Col.; R. C. Ballard, Thurston, Louisiana, Ky.; George O. Dix, Terre Haute, Ind.; Commander John H. Moore, U. S. N., 1755 P. St. N. W., Washington, D. C., secretary general and register general, A. Howard Clark, Smithsonian institution, Washington, D. C., treasurer general, John H. Burroughs, New York; historian general, David L. Pierson, East Orange, N. J., chaplain general, Rev. Timothy Stone, D. D., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Parker was escorted to the president general's office by Mr. Crandon, president of the Massachusetts society of the Sons of the American revolution, who when he made the presentation delivered the following speech:

"Mr. President General, I arise to nominate a compatriot who has served faithfully in his local chapter, and built it from a membership of 25 to nearly a hundred in his two years' administration; a man whose love of history, whose natural feeling of affection for the traditions of his commonwealth and native town, made him see in our society an opportunity for useful work—a man who saw nothing in the dry accident of ancestry comparable with the opportunities to serve his state, and his brethren, by his efforts in their behalf. The tablets and monuments which he began, and to which his genius and zeal largely contributed, attest the enthusiasm which our compatriot has shown in the cause we love so well. Our state society, marking well with zeal, placed him on its board of managers, and elevated him through the vice-presidential chairs to the presidential chair of our state society of the Sons of the American revolution, and he gave us a splendid administration. You know him well, compatriots you have met him. He is familiar to you all. If elevated to the national presidency, he will give to you the same heart and talent and zeal, the same quiet, modest, telling, enthusiastic work that he gave to us, that know him and love him for his work. He is the unanimous choice of 1625 out of the 1626 members who compose the Massachusetts society, he being the other member. He has built into the warp and woof of our country. He is a true Massachusetts man, and that means a true American. It needs no word of eulogy from me to prove his high character and his worth, for his fidelity and willingness to serve, as shown by his own history in the Massachusetts society, are his ample testimonial. And he will justify your confidence. If you will but call on him, as the exponent of the commonwealth he represents, to gain yet higher honor or by yet more service—the only way in which men realize on earth their dream of heaven. Mrs. President: "We learn from him that rugged truth and zeal."

Win for a man true word. That's in it midst of selfishness, blithing the world, such good lives bless.

And to our hearts reveal. True manhood's noble crown in God's approving seal. I place in nomination, Mr. President General, as a tribute from the heart of Massachusetts, Moses Greeley Parker, M. D.

COURT DAZED

DEFENDANT WAS WOMAN'S STEPSON AND SON-IN-LAW

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The clerk of the court handed the papers to the presiding justice who noted that the family name of the complainant was the same as that of the defendant.

"Are you any relation?" queried Justice Hoyt of Mrs. Alice Cooney of 231 West 120th street, who in the papers declared that William J. Cooney of 2384 Eighth avenue had assaulted her.

"Sure!" said Mrs. Cooney. "In his stepmother and his mother-in-law."

"What?" said the three justices.

"I said, 'Sure!' nodded Mrs. Cooney. "You see, his father is my husband, but before his father married me he had been previously married, and by that marriage his father became father of a son, being him—William—as it were. Now, you see, I had also been previously married and being married had a daughter by my first husband. And as a widow I married this boy's father, my husband, and about the same time his son married my daughter. And then—"

"Help!" gasped Justice Hoyt, raising his arms gently toward the ceiling. "Anyway," said Mrs. Cooney's lawyer, "this but a family quarrel, and both sides are very, very sorry for it all."

"I am, anyway," breathed Justice Hoyt, pressing his temples. And so it came to pass that William J. Cooney, son-in-law stepson of Mrs. Alice Cooney, was discharged and warned never again to molest his parent of two relations.

IF

Drinking coffee or tea results in a feeling of nervousness and irritability, you may depend upon it that caffeine—the drug in the coffee and tea—is getting in its "back lies"—the reaction from the drug.

Common sense would suggest stopping the cause—coffee and tea—short off.

The change is easy if you have well-made

QUIT COFFEE AND TEA

What the Great German Specialist Says

It disappoints some people to be told that coffee and tea cause disease. But it is best to look squarely at facts and set the face towards health for that's more fun than anything else anyhow. A Cincinnati man consulted a Berlin physician on nervous diseases and says:

"Four years ago I was an habitual coffee drinker, having used it for 25 years and being naturally of a nervous temperament. I became almost a nervous wreck, greatly suffering from insomnia, almost constantly constipated and weighing only 123 pounds."

"I consulted physicians and took medicine all the time but had no relief. About three and a half years ago I went abroad and while in Berlin heard frequently of a great physician, Prof. Mendel, an authority on nervous trouble, so I resolved to consult him. 'Prof. Mendel surprised me very much by asking at once if I was a coffee drinker and on my telling him I used it two or three times a day he said: 'It is poison.' After carefully examining me he told me there was nothing the matter with me whatever but what could be entirely cured in 30 days by letting coffee and other stimulants alone and dieting."

"I had a hard time following his advice. I did not know what to do until I came home and told my wife, who got some Postum. We tried it but at first did not like it; then we went over the directions on the package together and found we had not boiled it long enough."

"That was the beginning of the end of my trouble for the Postum was delicious after that and I drank it regularly and it helped from the start. 'In a very short time I began to feel much better and in the last three years I haven't been absent from business one hour on account of ill health, for my health is fine now. I have a good appetite, sleep well and weigh 175 pounds."

"Any nervous person who drinks coffee or tea will feel better from a ten days' change to Postum. Trial easily proves this. Look in pkgs. for a copy of the famous little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'"

PRESIDENT MELLEN

Tells About the Railroad Conditions in New Hampshire

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 17.—Railroad conditions in New Hampshire are touched upon by President Mellen of the Boston & Maine railroad in a communication to J. B. Tennant, representing a committee of the Suncook Valley railroad, the stockholders of which have declined to renew the present lease, which expires Jan. 1 or sell the property under the terms offered.

In his communication President Mellen said in part:

"The hardship to the individual stockholders of the Suncook Valley railroad has not been without consideration and were it possible to concede better terms to them with due regard to the stockholders of the Boston & Maine, whose interests are my particular charge, I should need no incentive."

"One of the charges that I have found most hard to meet is that many of the present difficulties in which the Boston & Maine finds itself at the present time are the result of imprudent leases. The responsibility for all existing leases lies with the former administrations and it is the determination of those at present in charge that nothing of this nature may be laid at their door."

"The major portion of the mileage of the leased lines in New Hampshire is at the present time far from self-supporting, considering present conditions surrounding railroad operation in that state, and is fast coming to be so great a burden it may become a necessity to reduce the rentals paid, if not by negotiation with the owners in fast resort through the medium of the courts and a receivership."

"Nothing but the support given the Boston & Maine in the present crisis in its affairs by the New Haven has saved it from such a recourse."

"You should not look upon this matter as indicative of a disposition to treat you other than fairly, but rather that we are partners in misfortune resulting from conditions neither of us is responsible for, which conditions are bearing so severely on the Boston & Maine at the present time it must save every dollar it can to preserve its solvency and must postpone improvements and refuse aid to much needed development or at least expend such little energy as remains to it in other communities where what it does will be better appreciated and there is such promise of return as will mitigate in some measure the losses it is bound to incur in the state of New Hampshire."

The proposition laid before the Suncook Valley stockholders was that President Mellen was willing to recommend to the Boston & Maine directors to request the Concord & Montreal directors to offer to exchange Concord & Montreal class 4 stock for Suncook Valley stock on the basis of one of the former for three of the latter. The Concord & Montreal stock pays seven per cent under the Boston & Maine lease, thus making 2 1/3 per cent for the Suncook stock. It received 6 per cent under the lease about to expire. It was stated the stockholders had asked for a renewal of the lease at 5 per cent, which had been declined. It was stated that this means the road hereafter will be operated independently, the Boston & Maine declining to lease on any terms and the Suncook Valley to sell at any price offered.

The stockholders instructed their committee to ascertain if a satisfactory arrangement could be made with the Boston & Maine for the joint operation of the entire line and, if not, to devise some other plan for the operation of the road at the expiration of the lease on Jan. 1. The Suncook stockholders will meet again in this city, Nov. 24.

PENNY LUNCHES

WILL BE A FIXTURE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Penny lunches, which the school board, as an experiment, began to serve a few months ago, have developed into a part of the curriculum in several of the public schools here. They have been found to be of great value in making the children more plump and the brains more active. Before the lunches were instituted many of the children seemed backward in their studies. It was found that nearly all of these came from families in straitened circumstances. Then the school board began the lunches to see if it was food that was needed. Within a short time it was found that there was a remarkable improvement.

At a school in the north side Italian district yesterday 202 children were fed. They disposed of 17 loaves of bread, generously spread with butter and molasses, and six gallons of milk. In addition to being fed the children are being taught table etiquette.

NAVY DEPARTMENT

To Try a New Main Battery Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Three 14-inch guns will appear in each of two turrets on the giant battleships Oklahoma and Nevada, bids for the construction of which are to be received by the navy department next month. This innovation in the design of the new vessels is exciting considerable interest in naval circles. No ship now afloat has more than two big guns in a turret and while Italy and Russia are building several vessels designed for them they will use 12-inch rifles.

It is explained that the primary purpose of concentrating guns in fewer turrets is to reduce tonnage. On the Oklahoma and Nevada the weight of one great turret will be eliminated as with the new arrangement only four turrets will be required for the main battery of 10 14-inch rifles. The New York and Texas, now under construction and which, when commissioned, will be the only craft in the navy with 16-inch main batteries, are designed along the old lines with short big guns placed two in each of five turrets.

With the completion of the New York and Texas the United States will wrest from Great Britain the distinction of having the world's heaviest armed vessels. At present England's 13.5-inch gun ships hold this place, the American dreadnaughts in commission carrying only 12-inch rifles.

Peculiar interest attaches to the result of the three-gun turret experiment because of the bearing it may have on the size of main batteries in the future. Heretofore it has been held that the 16-inch rifle used in coast defense batteries never would be practicable aboard a battleship because of its tremendous recoil. It is now believed, however, that a turret platform that could stand the strain from the recoil of three 14-inch guns certainly would hold up under the firing of two 16-inchers.

ACTRESS ACCUSED

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO CONCEAL A CHILD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed with Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday, Grace Carlyle, the actress, was accused of conspiring with Mrs. Rosalie Sawyer to conceal the latter's 4-year-old daughter Ruth, from her husband, Harry Sawyer, and his mother, Sarah Sawyer, of Salem, Mass. The petitioners asked that the court give them custody of the child under a decree of the probate court of Suffolk county, Mass.

In reply to the petition, Mrs. Rosalie Sawyer said that she is a stenographer, employed by the Sawyer company, play brokers, and abundantly able to care for her child. She is sharing an apartment with her friend, Miss Carlyle, at 164 W. Fifty-fourth street, but denies that Miss Carlyle is in any way interested in keeping the little girl from her father.

Mrs. Sawyer said she was married to Harry Sawyer in 1905 in this city. She says that while she was abroad her husband and his mother had themselves declared guardians of the child through fraud and for that reason she asks that the courts of this state ignore the Massachusetts order. Justice Bischoff appointed Peter B. Olney referee to determine the case.

LIFE OF BISHOP DELANY

One of the latest books out is the "Life and Writings of the Rt. Rev. John D. Delany, D. D., second Bishop of Manchester, N. H., by 'G. C. D.'" published by the Lawler Printing company of this city which has been published at the earnest request of many of the clergy and laity who were friends and admirers of the late bishop. The book as the author states is not a formal biography but a compilation from various sources from the bishop's diaries, his home letters, editorials which appeared in The Gleaner, public speeches and occasional articles. The various chapters deal with his family history, his early life, seminary life, priestly life, his work as editor of The Gleaner, his episcopacy and finally his poems.

The ordinary reader will find the book well worth reading on account of the picture it paints of one of God's noble priests who was ever willing to spend and be spent for the cause of truth. The friends of Bishop Delany, and they were legion, will not miss a word of a book which tells of a life which had so much to commend it to those who knew him and loved him.

An interesting preface is written by Bishop Anderson of Boston, a lifelong friend of the deceased while it also contains the following from the pen of Cardinal O'Connell:

"He worked all his life as he had seen men work in the busy city where his youth was spent. There in the early morning hours he labored and again at night to rest. His brain was too active, his mind too vigorous, his heart too happy to ever know what idleness meant."

"As a student he still studied when his task was finished. As a priest he still found or invented new duties when those allotted to him were completed. As a bishop he planned new labors when the old ended."

"Would the calm, the intellect, the inertia of a layman ever attracted him? God knows best, and forever silenced all questioning. He was a laborer in the vineyard, and he died laboring. Others will reap what he has sown, but the best seed he ever sowed was love of joyful work in the cause of God and his church."

A glance at the contents shows that Bishop Delany wrote considerable poetry all of a moral or didactic nature, showing his piety and purity of soul, his aspirations to serve his Master, and his sympathy with the weak, the suffering and the lowly. Those who have known Bishop Delany will have a higher opinion of his literary ability and even of his saintly character after reading this book.

The book is worthily gotten up and will make a gift worth while for the Catholic home.

Owners of Cottages May Appeal to Court

HAVERHILL, Nov. 17.—Owners of cottages at Salisbury beach whose leases expire April 30, 1912, are fighting mad over the latest step taken by the Salisbury Beach Associates, which affects between 40 and 50 cottagers, a number of whom reside in this city and Lawrence, and several threaten bringing the matter into a head by court and making the alleged owners of the beach prove their claim.

What the cottage owners consider the latest indignity on the part of the new owners comes to one of the cottage owners in the form of a letter, dated Nov. 15, from Walter Coulson, a

Lawrence attorney and one of the Salisbury Beach Associates. The man receiving this letter owns two cottages which he considers the best in the city. They stand, but they would not be worth $200 to move. The letter reads:

"I have an offer of twelve hundred and fifty dollars ($1250) for your lot without the buildings, at Salisbury beach. If you desire it at that price you have a preference under our rules. If you will advise me this week, otherwise, it will be sold subject to the lease which expires April 30, 1912."

"If you desire the lot you could either pay cash, or pay 20 per cent down, and we will take back a mortgage at 5 per cent for the balance."

In answer to the above the cottage owners declare that the new owners are holding them up for a big price for the land upon which their cottages now stand. There is no offer to renew the lease. The owner must either buy the land or move his buildings off, or tear them down, otherwise they will be sold subject to the terms of the present lease. This leaves no alternative. There is no place to which a cottage may be moved, provided an owner should desire to move, although one man, it is said, has moved his cottage from Salisbury to Hampton beach to escape the clutches of the new owners. Furthermore, the man who received the above letter is given less than a week to reach a decision.

Importance of Accessories to the Woman Who Would Be Well Dressed

SHOES OF THE MOMENT.
LONG EARRINGS ARE VERY FASHIONABLE.

SMART accessories are the salvation of the woman whose dress account is limited. It is through them that a woman saves her costume from being monotonous and by them that she presents an appearance of smartness at any and at all times even though she possess but two gowns to her name. If she is clever in the selection of boots and slippers, veils and ties, jabots and collars, she can face the world with the assurance that she is well dressed. She must always remember, first, that they must be as odd as she places and, third, that the law of harmony does not exist concerning accessories.

So says Mme. Simone, the famous French actress, who recently made her American debut in New York. And as this famous lady has the reputation of being the best dressed woman on the French stage she speaks as one with authority.

If one were asked to name the most important costume accessory of the season the answer would come without hesitation—footwear. Street skirts are so short and scant that they display the foot to an alarming extent. Therefore it behooves the woman who would be smartly gowned to spend on her new shoes all she can afford.

The woman with conventional dress notions will not like the idea of wearing high white boots with her navy blue, dark green or gray walking suit, yet these white boots are the "last cry" in Paris. She may, however, compromise on white or elephant gray spats worn over patent leather pumps and be quite as much in the fashion picture nowadays.

Striped walking costumes are the rage this season, and the bootmakers' very latest models have striped tops. Button boots this winter are more fashionable than lace ones, and when of black leather they have stitching and trimmings of white or of a color to harmonize with the costume with which they are worn.

The side button boot that Paris is daff over has been brought out in a variety of chic combinations by one of the shoe houses. The boots are twelve button high, and real pearl buttons extend on the outside of the foot clear to the sole. In most of the boots these buttons are not sewed through, to prevent their shanks from hurting the foot. The boots have very short ramps of patent leather, while all the rest is of cloth or leather kid. The cloth tops come in purple, gray or black, and the kid in dull black or white. The Cuban heels, about an inch and three-quarters high, are of leather. The eighteen button kind at $5.50, which boots are $7, a rather high price. comes in all leathers—dull kid, Russian leather, patent leather with cloth or kid tops and patent leather with white tops and black buttons. These boots are about nine inches high. Stripes, stripes everywhere, is the Paris cry. Hats have striped trimmings, and even the reticula swinging from its long cord is striped. The bag illustrated is of black and white striped taffeta with a lining of brilliant red moire. A convenient little change purse fitting into the bag is fashioned of the striped taffeta. Other accessories that smarten up the costume wonderfully are the hat and collar and bag en suite trimmed with swansdown. Such a charming combination is to be seen in one of the pictures. The hat is of black velvet with a swansdown brim. It is the very latest trimming notion from the City of Light. To match the hat there are a velvet and swansdown collar and recticula. This is very chic. And in connection with neckwear—

RATINE ONE OF THE SMARTEST OF FABRICS

RATINE velours is one of the most exclusive suit materials of the winter. This velours ratine looks like plush, but is not in the least unwieldy, although it is very thick and wears forever.

It comes in plain purple, the deep red black tone, in dull green, in gun metal and gray stripes and that most fashionable of all shades, elephant gray.

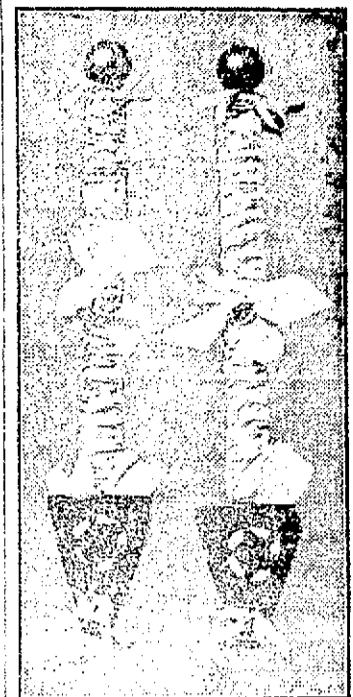

A French maker has sent over a coat suit of ratine in elephant gray. The skirt is tight, with a seam down the middle of the front and a tunic effect over the hips, running up to the high waist line and ending in a point at the back. The coat is an empire affair with two shoulder capes that run to the waist. The sleeves are long and fasten with gun metal buttons, which also hold the coat together in front.

These ratine suits are wonderfully smart if made with raw edges, button-holed by hand. This work adds to the expense of the suit, but it is smart and novel.

PLATINUM JEWELRY.

PLATINUM jewelry is being shown this season in most attractive designs, and it is being made more durable by the addition of iridium. This alloy makes the platinum much harder and makes it possible to use it in the finest of spider web designs. A mounting for diamonds which is mounting with approval is called technically the "glass setting." In this the platinum can barely be seen at all. Just the jewel, with the merest line of metal to hold it, is seen. In the pearl dog collars a new setting separates the pearls and holds them in a chain work of platinum, which adds to the strength of the collar and is very effective in appearance.

A CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

TREE FOR MILADY'S SLIPPERS

There is just the thing to give the girl who has a lot of dance slippers to keep in good condition—ribbon trimmed trees to keep the pretty little shoes from losing their shape.

Oddities and Originalities In Furs

THE very first tangle of frost that provided a good excuse for airing the new muff and scarf sets revealed such a stunning lot of novelties as has not been seen for many a year. There is no end of oddities, to say nothing of the simple and less conspicuous models.

A woman with a piece of fur of any size at all can make or have it made up into a scarf and muff with the main part of a handsome fabric, and she will be among the earliest to elect. If she adds a hat to the set then indeed she will be of the chosen. If she has not a glint of fur for such a purpose she can get taffeta enough for the entire set. With the addition of a little fur, some gauze to veil it and perhaps a handsome ornament to the muff and another for the hat, if she is to have a hat of the kind, she can own one of the very newest of these sets, for the satin or taffeta scarf and muff veiled with chiffon or tulle—chiffon will wear better—and then trimmed round and round with fringe or pinked ruching is the "height of the fashion."

A delightful set displayed at an opening recently had a big flat muff which was all of thirty inches wide at the top. It was made of emerald green satin laid in wide side pleats and veiled with black tulle. The muff narrowed at the bottom and was finished there with a handsome passementerie ornament falling in tassels over a kind of jabot of tulle. The scarf was of the same character, and the hat matched them. A taffeta muff, scarf and hat in the same display were all trimmed round and round with pinked box plaited ruchings.

The hat was a bonnet shaped brimless affair more like an actual length of stovepipe than anything else, and it was covered with the taffeta, which was drawn tightly over it and then trimmed with six rows of ruches used at intervals around it. From one side there went up two long ostrich feathers put on with the underside of the feather outside, and the bands very tightly curled and the ends towering above the crown in a whirl. An odd cabochon with drops finished the hat at the side where the feathers went on.

Beautiful brooches are used for these scarf and muff sets whether the hat matches or not. The velvet and the satin brooches are both employed for the purpose, but in many cases the hard effect of such materials is softened with a veiling of chiffon. Hand-some gold lace trim many such sets of brooches and fur.

Speaking of pelts, a furrier recently threw out some hints about cutting fur to a woman who has a knack of doing things. He said: "Never cut fur with scissors. Lay it fur down on a board, mark with a pencil on the skin where you need to cut and then use a sharp knife." It's astonishing what wonderful things can be done with a few odds and ends of left over peltry.

The new velvet ribbon sashes are other oddities of the season that the young girls are "just crazy" over and wear with their afternoon and evening frocks.

It Is Truly Oriental

THE SAVORY SANDWICH AND OTHER Dainties

CHEESE Toast Sandwiches.—Cut slices of white bread rather thicker than is customary for sandwiches. Pass together through a meat chopper a half pound of cheese and two green peppers with the seeds removed. Season to taste with salt and pepper and work together so as to form a paste. Butter one slice of bread and spread the other slice with the filling. Press firmly together, remove the crust and toast both sides. Serve very hot as an accompaniment to a cup of coffee.

Lobster Savory.—Two cups of shredded lobster, two tablespoons of butter, seasoning, the juice of one lemon. Pick the lobster over carefully, removing all particles of shell, divide into convenient sized pieces and saute in the butter for ten minutes. Add the lemon juice, heat thoroughly and serve either on toast or with a salted cracker. This can be used either as a luncheon dish or an after theater snack.

SALAD MAKING.

Dressing For Fruit Salad.—The juice of two oranges and one lemon, one-half cup of sugar, the whites of one very lightly beaten egg and a little salt, two tablespoons of sherry or other white wine. Put all the ingredients except the wine into the inner vessel of a double boiler. Bring to the boiling point and cook for two minutes. Strain and set aside until cold, then pour over the fruit salad, which is made by blending together two oranges, three lemons, the latter peeled and with the soft brown substance scraped off. When serving garnish with crisp lettuce leaves and sprinkle one-half cup of chopped nuts over the whole. This can be used either as a plain salad or as a dessert.

Mayonnaise Dressing.—Into a dry cold bowl put the yolk of one egg and add to it, drop by drop, half a pint of olive oil, stirring all the time the oil is being added. Either lemon juice or vinegar can be used for the acid ingredient. When making the thicker dressing and lemon juice, adding the more delicate flavor. About four tablespoons of either of these will be the correct proportions to the above amount of oil. The salt should never be added to the dressing until after it is made. Adding it sooner is one of the most frequent causes of curdling. If, in spite of all precaution, the dressing should curdle, put another yolk of egg into another bowl and add to it the spoiled dressing very gradually, continuing and finishing with more oil. The dressing should be made in a cold place to secure the best results. This dressing is delicious over olive salad. Take one cup of olives, one cup of fried cubes of ham, a very little grated onion, a celery seasoned according to taste. Mix at least half of the dressing into the salad ingredients and use the remainder to mask the top.

THE HAIRIE TUNIC.

EVEN THE ZEBRA BAG NOW.

have you seen the new high stock? This novelty in neckwear is boned from the shoulder and is flaring at the top. Such stocks have been seen on French gowns with a double ruching of flat gauze bands finishing them. Another of the neckwear dainties is the soft turnover collar of fine linen embroidered in color and accompanied by a wide side jabot or frill that has embroidered linen, making a front piece that is most attractive.

Now about earrings. You may consider yourself sartorially unknown if you don't own a pair of long dangling earrings. There are many styles, some large round loops, others which are close to the lobe of the ear, but most striking are those which almost touch the shoulder of the wearer. The earrings illustrated are all combinations of the hoops, which are of coral.

As a parting suggestion let me say, if you want to be in the know, don't wear your watch on a gold or jeweled chain. The black satin ribbon of small half inch width decorated with small slides is preferred to the watch chain. The ribbon is not only used with tailored suits, where it is much smarter than an ornamental chain, but it is also used with the elaborate afternoon gowns. Where the watch is sufficiently small and handsome it is worn as a pendant.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

This Year's Corset Lines

LOWER in the bust than ever are the stays of the present season, and the sloping kimono sleeves and the graceful draped fichu are but the tendencies which point the way for the new figure.

Some of the newest French corsets are merely girdles above the waist line, frequently not reaching to the bust. The idea is to give one long line from shoulder to waist—a gently sloping line with the bust as low as possible, which is becoming.

But not below the waist are corsets growing shorter. Far from it. Longer and still longer they grow until one wonders how women are going to wear them—that is, sit down in them with comfort. But they can, for many of the corsets are not heavily boned, but beautifully shaped and so arranged that the figure may be kept slim and youthful below the waist line. And not below the waist line alone is this youthfulness apparent, but above it as well. The high, lifted waist line, the low bust, the slim sloping shoulders—all these are calculated to keep madam from showing the ravages of time.

Very comfortable indeed are these new corsets, for if they hold the body trim and tight below the waist line they keep it supple and free above the waist, allowing ease and freedom of movement and perfect ease.

Why Not Give a Candy Pull?

THERE is nothing in the way of informal entertaining more thoroughly enjoyed than an old fashioned candy pulling. Age cannot apparently alter its popularity. In fact, the danger is rather to forget how picturesque it has been in the past.

Arrange a pulling bee the next time an informal frolic is in order and see how well it is appreciated.

Get the girls to wear quaint chintz frocks with ruffled aprons and have some aprons of larger growth for the men, as all the guests will take part in the toll.

Let each girl wear a knot of ribbon, and as the men enter let them select similar knots from a basket, matching knots giving partners.

One pair of partners is detailed to fetch nuts, another to pop corn, another to read up recipes, measure ingredients, etc. Then comes the pulling—stickily, but sweet.

THE NEW WHITE VEIL AND HOW TO WEAR IT

WHITE SILK VEIL IN FLORAL DESIGN.

SILK veils absolutely without dressing are now the fad, and a beautiful example of these white silk veils is illustrated. This fine meshed "beautifier" is draped around the brim of a rather small hat and is allowed to fall over the shoulders and far down the back. The effect is very graceful.

Peace and the Bath

SOME wise person has said: "There are two kinds of people in this world—those who take a bath every day and those who do not take a bath every day. The two classes should not intermarry, for they are fundamentally uncongential."

"The sage might have gone considerably further," observed the woman who thinks, "He ought to have divided the bath-every-day-people according to temperature, those who take it hot and those who take it cold, for these two subdivisions are as remote as the north pole from the south. Perched on a peak of superiority the cold water advocate looks down on the person who takes the chill off the water. It profits you nothing to explain the merit you have on your side. If it is of no use. If your water is warm you simply 'don't belong.'"

"I speak feelingly, though quite without venom, because I chance to be one of the pariahs. I do not hop valrus-like into a tank of freezing water, pretending that it is the one thing to brace me up for the day—not if I see it first. And while I advocate fresh air at all times of the day and night—as for sleeping with the windows so wide open that the young blizzard raging without deposits before dawn a well developed snowdrift upon my counterpane—I would just a little rather not."

"The chief argument against the health crank lies in the fact that he is seldom, if ever, willing to allow other persons to do as they see fit. The individual who thinks he has found the panacea to every ill insists that all mankind follow in his, perhaps misguided footsteps, whether his hobby be cold baths, hot baths or no baths at all, a glass of cold water on rising, one of hot milk when retiring, swinging dumbbells before and Indian clubs after every meal, massage or new thought, eschewing all food except peanuts, which are to be chewed at least a hundred times. You and I, my learned friend, who refuse to conform to one of these stringent and arbitrary tests are sure to be weighed in the balance and found grievously wanting."

"But cheer up, for, after all, this little republic is still a free country. So let us be as happy and unhygienic as we like."

Styles For the Waitress

NEW YORK women of the smart set have decided this season to dress their waitresses as are the maids in France who are detailed to show visitors through the famous chateaux. They are picturesque in black moire silk aprons, with black velvet ribbon bows at belt and a velvet band at the hem. These aprons are worn with lustrous black alpaca gowns made severely plain and close fitting.

There is also a reaction, in favor of fine hemstitched bands for collars and cuffs, because these never conflict with the collars worn by the children of the house, as did the Byron collars so popular for the properly dressed maids of last year.

Some of the thoroughly conventionalized housewives draw the line at the

ITALIAN SOLDIERS IN CAMP AT TRIPOLI

TRIPOLI, Nov. 17.—The Italian commanders here begin to realize that they have a long campaign ahead of them. The Turks are getting reinforcements from various Arab tribes and seem to be preparing for a determined attack on the city. The Arabs are being

A LIVELY BATTLE

Three Men Charged With Stealing Coal

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 17.—The appearance in court today of John Long of New York, captain of the coal barge Bullock, his mate, John Holland of Brooklyn, and John Darn of this city, to answer to charges of theft of coal from the barge was the sequel to a lively fight which occurred on board the Bullock last night in which State Senator Archibald McNeil, Jr., to whom the coal was consigned, the police and barge-men took part. Mr. McNeil received word last night that coal was being taken from the barge, which had just arrived from Perth Amboy, and together with the police went down the harbor in a powerboat. They found a sloop lying alongside the barge and landing with coal. Boarding the sloop, the officers placed the mate under arrest. They then went to the captain's cabin, where, after a stiff fight, Long was also made a prisoner. While the officers were struggling with the captain a member of the crew knocked the senator down and picked him up as if to throw him overboard, but on the latter's threats of shooting, released him. Darn, the owner of the sloop, stated that he had purchased the coal found aboard his sloop at 25 cents a bag.

SCHOONER LOST

Was Wrecked by Northwest Gale

NANTUCKET, Nov. 17.—The north-west gale that swept Nantucket Shoals during the past two days totally wrecked the three master Bath, Me. schooner Charles Wolsten on Great Point Rip early today, just missed destroying the two masted schooner Ella Clifton, five miles away and caused another coaster of Chatham to call for help from passing fishermen. The crew of the Wolsten were saved through the hardest kind of rowing and seamanship of the Coskata lifesaving crew, the Clifton was towed to Bass river by the revenue cutter Acushnet.

Men of Lowell!

COME AND ENJOY OUR

Live OVERCOAT Feast

SERVED AT ALL HOURS, DAY OR EVENING. IT IS PREPARED FOR YOUR PERSONAL SATISFACTION AND COMFORT AND WE HOPE TO LOAD YOU UP WITH A SOUVENIR OVERCOAT ON LEAVING.

We don't claim to sell all the Overcoats used in Lowell, but we do claim to sell more good overcoats than any other two stores in Lowell.

Pretty broad statement and the only way that we can convince you of this is to ask you to compare our overcoats with those of other stores. You won't have to be an expert to note the difference in style and quality where the price is the same.

Today and Saturday We Expect to Make a Lot of Noise Selling

Overcoats at $15

Since you've been buying overcoats, you've never seen such an offering of High Class Overcoats as you'll see today and Saturday at the Merrimack at $15.00.

The Convertible Collar Overcoat this season, is the most practical garment ever designed for men's wear. This is it—a storm coat—a street coat—and an auto coat—all three in one.

We were fortunate enough to secure about 100 of these coats this week at about twenty-five per cent. less than regular price—and we will put them today at $15.00.

If your mind is on a Black Overcoat, don't buy until you see the Black Kersey $20.00 Overcoat we are offering at $15.00.

from the new states of Arizona and New Mexico, when they are elected, will join in the movement to end the existence of the court. This statement seems to be stretching facts considerably, as it is not, of course, known yet who the senators from Arizona and New Mexico will be.

The truth is, however, that the commerce court's decision holding up the interstate commerce commission's reduction in the so-called intermountain cases has raised a storm in congress which will surely threaten the court's existence. President Taft's enemies will gladly join in the movement for the court's overthrow, because they will find in it an opportunity to embarrass the president. The leaders in this movement are predicting that they will have a majority of five votes in the senate. There is talk also of holding up the court's appropriation for next year. The court was created on the president's recommendation and he appointed all the members of it.

The members, as entertainers, are as finished as they are soldiers, and there's no doubt but those who attend the event this evening will have many pleasant memories of an enjoyable occasion. ## AN ATTENDANT WAS ATTACKED BY A DELIRIOUS PATIENT

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—A delirious patient at the Carney hospital severely injured William Dower, an attendant, who was trying to subdue him yesterday, and the latter is now, according to his friends, in a serious condition. The report yesterday afternoon was that Dower, who is 22, is liable to die, but at the hospital last night it was stated that he is about and will attend to his duties in a few days.

The patient, whose name the hospital authorities refuse to give, is a powerful man and in his frenzied struggles he kicked young Dower, causing the injury. Dower heard a woman nurse shrieking and rushed to the hospital yard, where the patient was. When he attempted to put a strait-jacket on the man they rolled over on the ground together and Dower received his injury. The patient was finally overcome by several attendants and placed in a private ward under guard.

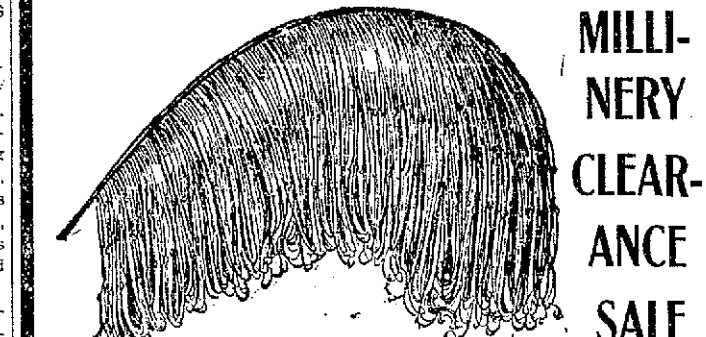

The patient was suffering from spinal trouble and traumatic delirium. Dower is a son of William Dower of the Boston fire department and lives at 293 Main street, Charlestown.

2,000,000 BABIES

Died in Their First Year in the Past Ten Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—"In the last ten years about 2,000,000 babies born alive died in their first year and nearly as many more died at or near birth," said Dr. Helen Putnam of Providence, R. I., today, at the conference of the American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality.

Dr. Putnam declared that the infant death rate reassures the efficiency of physicians, health officers and educators.

"The results of fifty questions sent to professors and doctors brought out the knowledge. It was said, that untrained medical practitioners were responsible for as many deaths as unscientific mid-wives."

girl's school education, ordinarily is finished and the time of her marriage was advocated by Dr. Putnam.

Starting statements were made in the section of midwifery.

"The untrained midwife and the physician lacking special training who preside over births of more than fifty per cent of the babies are responsible for the death of many infants," it was charged.

The results of fifty questions sent to professors and doctors brought out the knowledge. It was said, that untrained medical practitioners were responsible for as many deaths as unscientific mid-wives."

PALMER INDICTMENT

made arrangements to see Juror Drumme.

"When did you hear that the grand jurors had taken no vote on the matter of indictment of Jackson Palmer?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"While the jury deciding the case against Mr. Palmer was out," answered the witness.

"What was that before a verdict was rendered?"

"Yes."

"And at that time Jackson Palmer also knew it?"

"I couldn't say; I spoke to him about it some time during the day."

"Did you see Mr. Drumme?"

"Where?"

"At his home."

"How did you get there?"

"In my automobile."

"When did you first go to see him?"

"The Sunday following the trial."

"Did you see any other member of the grand jury?"

"No, sir."

"How many times did you see him?"

"Six or eight times."

"Where?"

"At his home, the Boston City club, Algonquin club, and at my house."

"When was he at your house?"

"A week or ten days ago."

"Did you furnish the dinner at the City club?"

"No, sir."

"At your home, a member of the City club?"

"No, sir."

"Were you a guest of some member of the City club?"

"I was."

"What member were you the guest of?"

"Melvin M. Johnson."

"You saw the eight jurors there?"

"Yes."

"Was Mr. Barry there?"

"Yes."

"Was Mr. Johnson there?"

"Yes."

"How much money have you spent in the conduct of your investigation as to whether the grand jury voted to indict Jackson Palmer?"

"I cannot say absolutely. All of my bills are not in."

"How much have you spent up to the present time?"

"In the neighborhood of $500."

Cross Examination

On cross-examination Dr. Perkins said he had spent time and money in order to ascertain the truth. He said he had done everything possible to get to the bottom of the matter, but he did not go to Mr. Higgins, because he felt that he had a personal hostility against his son-in-law.

Laurence F. Smith Called

Laurence F. Smith of Jamaica Plain was called in answer to questions asked by the district attorney said his business was that of making investigations for lawyers.

"Have you ever been called a detective?" asked Mr. Higgins.

"By some of my enemies."

"I ask to have that answer stricken from the records," said the district attorney.

"I protest," said Lawyer Whipple, "it is responsive."

The question and answer were stricken out.

"You did some investigation in the 'Globe' case?"

"Yes for a couple of nights."

He said he had used the offices of Jesse A. Gore, Edward Barry and M. M. Johnson in which to meet people. Asked when was the last time he used Mr. Johnson's office to meet people he answered "this morning."

"What people in connection with the Jackson Palmer case have you met in Mr. Johnson's office?"

"Dr. Perkins and Mr. Barry and Mr. Palmer to the best of my recollection."

"Where did you get acquainted with Mr. Drumme?"

"At his home."

"Why did you go out there?"

"As a result of information that I received."

"What members of the grand jury did you see?"

"Messrs. Drumme, McCarthy, Bradley, Powers, Daniels, Fian, Davidson, Haggart and Rafferty."

"Were you asked to go and see any other jurors?"

"I was not."

"Were you not asked to go to see Mr. Travers?"

"Absolutely not."

"Did Rafferty said there was a vote taken?"

"Yes, sir."

"And that he could take you to others who knew there was a vote taken?"

"He never said so."

Witness said he had paid Grand Jurors Green, Bradley and Bywater $5 each for the loss of a day's work while he was making an investigation into grand jury proceedings; also paid $10 to Mr. Drumme.

"You didn't pay him for all his time?"

"No, sir."

"Do you think he will send in a bill for services?"

"I don't know."

Dist. Atty. Higgins insisted that the question be answered "yes" or "no," and the court ruled that the witness should answer either in the affirmative or negative.

"Didn't you say that you would pay him (Drumme) for the several days time he lost in connection with the investigation?"

"Yes."

"And you think that there is money due him?"

"How much?"

"I should say about $25 or $30 if it were for me."

"You promised to pay his expenses and time he lost?"

"Yes, sir."

"And all you have paid him is $10?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you see Drumme last in connection with this matter?"

"Last Sunday."

"Where?"

"At his store in Pepperell."

"Could you tell me where you got his name?"

"I cannot recall at this moment."

"Where were you?"

"That I cannot recall."

"How much more money do you think that Bradley should get?"

"A few cents."

"By what?"

"Not a cent."

"Greene?"

"Not a cent."

"How much money have you been paid for your services in this matter?"

"$75."

"Up to date?"

"How much more do you expect?"

"Approximately $200 more."

"Who said you?"

"Dr. Perkins."

"Have you made out your bill against Dr. Perkins?"

"No, sir."

In answer to a question asked by Judge McLaughlin the witness said that the money he has received up-to-date was expended for use of automobiles, railroad expenses, food, etc.

Dinner Bills Presented

At this point the bills for the dinner at the Boston City club were produced and there was nothing to show that any liquor had been purchased despite the fact that one of the jurors had testified that there was beer there.

Messrs. Whipple and Higgins then entered into a cross-examination of the juror who testified that he had received a check for $200 from Mr. Johnson.

Dr. Perkins was recalled and testified that the dinners at the Boston City club were given by Mr. Johnson and the checks were signed in Mr. Johnson's name with Dr. Perkins' initials below.

George B. Getchell

George B. Getchell of Burlington, one of the grand jurors, stated that he was positive that more than twelve jurors voted on the indictment. At this point noon recess was declared and court resumed the session at 2.20. Mr. Getchell described the procedure of the grand jury and in answer to question by Mr. Whipple testified that so far as he understood it a motion was made in the grand jury to instruct the district attorney to draw indictments against Palmer and others.

District Attorney Higgins intimated that the form of the motion was in error and that Mr. Whipple was trying to ascertain what motion was made. Mr. Getchell said that he heard the foreman of the jury testify, but he did not remember hearing him state what the vote was.

"You mean to say that when you were questioned by the district attorney you didn't intend to state what the motion was in terms but by the foreman last July but merely the motion you made yourself?"

"No."

"When the foreman testified how he put the motion did you notice an error in his statement as to the terms of the motion?"

"He left out one word."

"Did you notice it yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"What word was it?"

"Instruct."

The only vote taken was that the district attorney be instructed to draw indictments against Jackson Palmer and others.

Lawyer Whipple wanted to cross-examine witness relative to exhibits A and B which are two pages of what purports to be the Palmer indictment. The question was excluded and exception saved.

At this point Lawyer Whipple accused the district attorney of putting in evidence without objection. "But now," he said, "the district attorney moves that evidence which he himself put in be stricken out."

Deputy Sheriff Samuel W. Tucker of Newton said he knew Mr. Greene who served on the grand jury and said he talked with him about the Jackson Palmer case on an electric car some time during the summer between Malden and Reading.

"What did he say about it?" was asked.

The question was objected to.

Witness said that he said to Greene: "I see you have indicted Palmer," and Greene answered, said, "Yes, and there are others to follow."

Ready for Arguments

District Attorney Higgins rested his case at 3.20 o'clock and the arguments will be heard one week from Monday.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

Profit-taking increased in the last hour—Statement of Ex-Pres. Roosevelt had effect on Trading—Improvement in the Plant Dealings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Leading speculative stocks were in good demand at the opening today and many advances were made. Active buying of the leaders continued. Lehigh Valley, Erie and Reading a point. Anaconda, Copper, U. P. and U. S. Steel rose a point. Brooklyn Union Gas responded to a declaration of an extra dividend with a gain of 1/4.

Beer operators showed decided nervousness over the confident buying of all classes of the stocks by the bulls and trading was heavy. All of the accustomed leaders of the market were purchased in big blocks. Union Pacific gained 2 1/2 and Reading and United States Steel 1 point.

During the morning the general list advanced steadily. Although the buying was heavy among the speculative stocks the entire market showed the result of the movement and gains ranged from 1 to 3 points were recorded in every quarter. The change from the heavy tone of the earlier part of the week was ascribed in part to cessation of the heavy profit-taking sales. The views expressed by ex-President Roosevelt on the trust question also were referred to as a factor stimulating the market.

Bullish enthusiasm grew with the upward march of prices. Room shorts tried breasting the current and joined in the scramble for stocks. Extensive buying by important speculative interests conveyed the impression that large lines which had been sold short were being replaced. U. S. Steel touched 65 1/2 which brought it to within a quarter of the highest figure reached since the collapse to 50 last month. Improvements were fully as large in various other individual stocks. Bonds were strong.

Dealings contracted and there was a trilling reaction. Subsequently the market rose easily to the highest again with the demand vigorous for Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. London was a considerable factor in the foreign advance in the stock market, foreign houses taking large amounts of the international favorites.

Interest in the market died out to a considerable extent in the latter part of the day. Traders ceased bidding up stocks in an industrious fashion to inundate the short interest and speculation fell into a rut on slight concessions in prices. General Chemical, Johnsons note a satisfactory expansion in dry goods, millinery, underwear, furs and footwear, while New England shoe factories are busy. Demand for cotton goods is improving and mills are running full. Woollen plants are actively engaged.

Bank exchanges this week at all leading cities in the United States aggregate $3,185,433,497, a gain over last year of 4.4 per cent.

Business Conditions

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Advisers to Dun's Review from leading cities in the United States indicate a large demand for reasonable merchandise in response to lower temperatures with some increase, also, in buying for future delivery. Cool weather has stimulated retail sales at Boston and a good business is reported in all departments. Johnsons note a satisfactory expansion in dry goods, millinery, underwear, furs and footwear, while New England shoe factories are busy. Demand for cotton goods is improving and mills are running full. Woollen plants are actively engaged.

PREMIER ASQUITH Says That He is Against Woman Suffrage

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Forty suffragettes interviewed Premier Asquith in Downing street today and attempted by threats of a renewal of hostilities to obtain a pledge that the government would undertake at the next session of parliament to pass a bill giving equal suffrage to the sexes. Mr. Asquith told the women that he stood as always against woman suffrage because he thought that it would not be for the good of the state. He added that the women, nevertheless, had recently in their own hands. The government would leave the house of commons free to amend the proposed manhood franchise bill so as to extend the franchise to women if the latter were able to persuade a majority of parliament to adopt their cause.

In a subsequent meeting the suffragettes declared war upon the government. They propose to inaugurate a "war of demonstration" in parliament square Nov. 23.

curtles developed weakness, the four per cent bonds dropping from 53 1/4 to 53 1/2.

The market closed steady. Profit-taking increased in volume in the last hour and as the market was deprived in a measure of the sustaining force of the short interest which had been driven in during the day's rise, prices fell away steadily. There was some improvement in the final dealings.

THE LOWELL SUN

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, Proprietor

SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.

Member of the Associated Press

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

Still the Spanish swindle is being worked and still there are those who never heard of it. There is always somebody looking for a chance to make easy money.

The strike of the New York street cleaners cost the city nearly $150,000 and 2000 employes their jobs. Which suffered most, the city or the strikers? What has been accomplished by the strike in addition to the loss on both sides?

THE NO SCHOOL SIGNAL

The superintendent of schools of Boston has been criticized for ringing the no school signal on Wednesday morning. The signal was sounded in this city also, and we do not see that there is any ground for criticism, because it was the first real snow storm of the season and there was a good deal of slush on the ground in the morning with the appearance of more snow or cold rain. As a rule at the beginning of winter the children are not all provided with rubbers or with the clothing necessary to enable them to venture out in the storm with safety. The fact that the sun came out in the forenoon and that the snow quickly disappeared could scarcely have been foretold by the best weather prophet, so that on the whole, we see but little ground for complaint in this particular case.

FOR WHOM YOU SHOULD VOTE

The list of candidates for mayor, aldermen and school committee is now so large that we believe the voters can easily select good material from any of the three tickets. As we have repeatedly stated this can be done only by picking out the men who are best equipped for the places to be filled. If the total vote be divided among the array of candidates on the aldermanic ballot there is no telling what may be the result in such a contest. It should be plain to every voter that fully more than one-half the candidates should be dismissed as out of the running. It would certainly be useless to waste a single vote upon these candidates. This cannot be impressed too fully upon the voters inasmuch as a vote for a weak candidate is simply thrown away. Give your vote to a man who should go on the ballot on election day. Of course opinions will differ as to the men who should be chosen, but the chief trouble is that men will vote for candidates because of acquaintance or other considerations than fitness for the office to be filled.

SMALL VOTE AT HAVERHILL PRIMARIES

We notice that the primary elections in Haverhill on Tuesday were very poorly attended, less than one-fifth of the total vote of the city having registered at the polls. It appears that the candidates up for nomination did not have sufficient influence with the voters to bring a large representation to the polls. We surmise that nothing of the kind will happen at the primaries in this city on November 28th, if we are to judge from the long list of candidates. It is important that the voters come out in such a case in order to select the best possible candidates as otherwise there will be criticism afterwards, although the voters themselves will be to blame. There should be as large a vote at the primaries as at the final election because a mistake at the primaries is fundamental and cannot be corrected at the polls. Unless the very best candidates are selected for the ballot on election day they cannot possibly be elected. That is why it is highly important that every citizen should feel it incumbent upon himself to attend the primaries and vote for the candidates he would prefer for mayor, aldermen and school committee. It is thus alone we can nominate candidates who will accurately represent the popular will.

TENEMENT HOUSE REFORM

The proposition to adopt a code of laws for tenement house reform is one well worthy of the most serious consideration. We are very glad that the board of trade has taken up this matter for there is need of reform in the tenement houses of Lowell. Anybody who makes a tour of the thickly settled districts can readily see that in regard to the size of the tenements, the lighting, the ventilation and the sanitary conditions, there is urgent need of improvement. Even the regulations of the health board can be so improved as to cause the occupants to be far more careful in regard to sanitation. Without going into detail as to real tenement house reform, it may be stated that an important provision should be made in the matter of overcrowding and the minimum air space provided for each occupant in sleeping and living rooms. During the hot spell of last summer it will be remembered that many deaths occurred from sleeping in small and close rooms. There is great need of improvement in this respect and there is need too of better conditions in sanitation so as to secure more light and air and avoid the darkness and the foul gases which seem to be so favorable to the culture of tuberculosis germs. A movement for better tenements is a movement against the white plague and against diseases of all kinds.

Some years ago Ireland had a high percentage of tuberculosis cases; but there has been a very material reduction as a result of the improved housing of the people. The neat, airy and commodious cottages which dot the country at the present time, have effected the change. These houses have taken the places of the tumble down dwellings that prevailed while the landlords had the power to extort such high rents that the people could not afford to improve their homes.

In New York and other cities of the country much attention has been given to the matter of tenement house reform and there is no reason why we cannot accomplish a great deal in this city by adopting somewhat similar methods. There are some tenement blocks that should be torn down or completely remodeled and others that by slight changes could be vastly improved. It is to be hoped that the board of trade will push this movement for tenement house reform. It has great possibilities in aiding the onward movement to give us a cleaner, better and more beautiful Lowell.

SEEN AND HEARD

It was 8:30 and the theatre was crowded. "What have you left?" the treasurer was asked. "Two." "I have two left in the 12th row," the treasurer said, taking the tickets from the rack. "They're the last two seats I have in the house." "How much?" the other asked cautiously. "Two dollars," was the reply. "Two dollars?" the patron repeated. "I can't stand for that." "Well, will you stand for a dollar?" the ticket dispenser inquired. "Certainly," the other cried, scenting a bargain and laying a dollar on the ledge. The treasurer replaced the two tickets in his rack and handed out two others after placing the bill in his cash drawer. "There they are, sir," he said. "First door to your right." The man hurried inside and "stood" for a dollar. The wily treasurer, taking him at his word, had sold him two admission tickets.

KITTEN AND THE LEAVES

See the kitten on the wall, Sporting with the leaves that fall, Withered leaves - one - two - and three. From the lofty elder tree! Through the calm and frosty air Of the morning bright and fair, Lying round and round they sink Softly, slowly, one might think Every motion that are made, Every little leaf convulsed, Symp or fairy hither tending, To the lower world descending, Each invisible and mute, In his wavering parachute, But the kitten, how she starts, Crouches, stretches, paws and darts! First at one and just as yellow; There are many now - not one - Now they stop and there are none!

Now she works with throes or four, Like an Indian conjuror: Quick as he in feats of art, Far beyond in joy of heart, Wore her antics played in the eye Of a thousand standers by, Clapping hands with shouts and stare, What would little Tabby care For the plaudits of the crowd? Over to me, me proud, Over to me, me proud, Of her own exceeding pleasure. -William Wordsworth.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Shortly before sailing for this country, Amadeo Bassi was made an officer of the crown of Italy, a much valued order. Signor Bassi's first appearance this season in Philadelphia is today as Ashton with Mme. Tetravani, in Lucia di Lammermoor, a role which he sang without a rehearsal in Madrid, six years ago, but which he had before sung in this country. He will repeat it on the 21st in Cleveland, O.

William J. Riley, formerly in the banking business, Boston, has given to Harvard the sum of $25,000, to be designated as the Clement Harlow Condit scholarship for deserving young men. This is in memory of his nephew, Clement H. Condit, class of 1907.

Frederick Parsons, sub-master of the Meriden, Conn. high school, has accepted a position as teacher of Latin in the Salem high school, and it is understood will also be given charge of the athletics of the school. He is a native of Somerville and a graduate of Harvard '95.

Mrs. Edward H. Hartman during the last year has been in control of her late husband's business. She has managed a street railway and lighting plant, a hotel, a gold mine, an iron mine, a dairy farm, a bank, a road building company, a blast furnace and several other enterprises scattered throughout the country.

Miss Sophonisba P. Breckinridge, one of the newly elected vice-presidents of the National American Woman Suffrage association, was graduated from Wellesley in 1888, and is now associate professor in the social economy department of household administration in the University of Chicago and director of the department of social investigation of the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy.

Miss Violet Asquith has been occupied for the last year in training herself for public speaking and recently in Fifehire she made her debut as a political orator, delivering an effective speech in favor of the liberal candidate. On the other hand, her stepmother, Mrs. Asquith, though a brilliant, clever conversationalist, has never been able to speak in public to any extent. She immediately becomes nervous and constricted when she attempts a speech; even if she writes out her speech beforehand she has difficulty in delivering it. So she is a very able writer, however, and there is much interest in the contents of the diary she is keeping of events political and social. No one but herself has ever perused the many volumes of this life work, and they are not to be published till many years after her death, and whether or not they will be given to the world then will be left to the discretion of her descendants. Mrs. Asquith has known all the greatest men and women of her time in English and French life, and she has been in touch with all the important events of her country. The court train subscribed for by Irish ladies as a coronation gift to Queen Mary has been on exhibition in Belfast. The train, which is said to be the finest piece of point needlework ever made, has occupied 50 seamstresses in Yorkshire since the order was given six months ago. It is four yards long, and nearly two yards wide at the bottom, tapering to the width of the shoulders at the top. It is worked in a cobwebby design of fleecies and roses, and contains more than five and a quarter million stitches and 20,000 yds. of thread. The ladies who made the presentation intended that the train should be ready for the durbar, and probably Queen Mary has taken it with her for the festivities in India.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Brooklyn Times: If Lynn has the success with her proposed municipal market that has attended similar plans in a number of cities in the middle west it is quite likely that other New England cities will follow her example. The fact that food prices are higher than they should be cannot be denied, though there is much difference of opinion as to the cause of this condition. The producer-to-consumer idea is taking hold. There is a general protest against paying the tribute now demanded of us, and no doubt the Lynn plan, if put into operation, will relieve the situation in that city.

LEADERS REVERSING POSITIONS

Portland Press: Among the interesting developments of the past week have been the statement by President Taft that he stood a good show of being defeated for the presidency for another term and the statement by Mr. Bryan that the republicans have a good show of winning. Which only goes to show that the Nebraska case can be depended on to disagree with the titular head of the republican party no matter what position he may take.

WORSER THAN BRIBERY

New Bedford Mercury: "Worse than the bribe giver," said Senator Jones of Washington, in addressing the students of the John Marshall Law school at Chicago, Saturday night, "is the congressman or senator who promises an office in return for a vote, because the bribe-giver, spends his own money, while the politician who promises an office gives what does not belong to him individually, but a thing he holds in trust for the people."

Vote buying is not always a money transaction. The promise of office, if used to influence voters, is as vicious a method of corrupting the franchise as any other. The thousand dollar offer for evidence to convict a vote buyer should be made sufficiently broad to cover all forms of vote bribery.

HOME MARKET SCHEMES

Fall River Globe: The wise men of the Home Market club profess to find in the result of the recent elections about the country much to encourage the standardbears. They are more frank than the republican politicians and do not hesitate to declare that the g. o. p. was making this fight to head off any change whatever in the present tariff and that all this talk about a "scientific revision" was more bluff and buncum.

BIG BALANCE

$203,000,000 ON RIGHT SIDE OF LEDGER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—There was a balance of $203,000,000 on the right side of the ledger in the government's account during the fiscal year of its imports and exports of farm and forest products. While it imported $688,000,000 worth of these products, it exported $891,000,000 worth.

The value of the farm products imported during the year was greater by $75,000,000 than the average for the five years, 1906 to 1910. The value of imported forest products exceeded those of any previous year, totalling $173,000,000, an increase of $35,000,000 over the preceding year; $33,000,000 of this increase was due to India rubber.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED

House Left in Road in Nahant

NAHANT, Nov. 17.—Because of the refusal of the selectmen to permit the removal of any more limbs from the trees along Nahant road and because of the refusal of Daniel G. Finnerty to agree to the removal of two gables from a dwelling house which was located until Tuesday on the site of the new town hall, the work of removing the structure has been halted, and in consequence Nahant road, opposite the Catholic church, is completely blocked. Pedestrians can use the thoroughfare, but vehicles cannot get by the obstruction.

Efforts have been made to settle the difficulty, but Mr. Finnerty is determined to land the house alongside the old Tremont hotel. He refused yesterday to accept an offer made by the selectmen to pay him $610, the purchase price of the house, and he asserted that he would not take $900 for the structure.

The house was sold at auction to Mr. Finnerty, who represented Mrs. Georgiana Channon, owner of the Hotel Tremont. The selectmen claim that among the terms of the sale was the stipulation that no tree or shrub along Nahant road should be damaged by the removal of the house. Mr. Finnerty insists that he purchased the house with the understanding that he could remove it intact.

The veranda, however, was removed and Town Forester Roland obligingly clipped off several limbs which halted the house's progress, but when he saw that many more limbs would have to be destroyed he ordered the moving operations halted until he appealed to the selectmen.

The selectmen instructed Mr. Finnerty to cut off a couple of gables. Mr. Finnerty flatly refused. When it was evident that the argument could not be satisfactorily adjusted the building mover cleared away his apparatus and left the house in a position where it shut off all traffic.

BY A SPECIALIST

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give hereby the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm French Crystal. Mix thoroughly and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the fingers. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of Talcum Powder, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Caution: Do not apply where hair is not desired and be sure to avoid tones containing poisonous wood alcohol.

Before publication we presented this prescription at Riker-Jaynes drug store, this city, and they state that they have filed it many times for their patrons who report most astonishing results from its use.

TOOK A GIRL BRIDE

Young Man of 17 Married to 16 Year Old Girl

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor, 16 years old, one of the prettiest members of the sophomore class of the Plainfield, N. J. high school, was at her studies Wednesday when a reporter asked to see Miss Greta Anna Trembley. The request brought Mrs. Taylor hurrying to the principal's room.

"What do you want with me?" she inquired.

"I want you to tell me about your elopement and marriage to Richard Dana Taylor on Oct. 22," was the reply.

"So that is out at last, is it?" the school wife laughed. "If you'll tell me how it was made public I'll tell you the truth. Don't you dare tell me, though, that Dick Taylor went and blabbed!"

"No, it was the vital statistics in New York that blabbed," was explained.

"Well, then, I'll tell the truth and I'll blab, too. No use of trying to dodge behind lies any longer. I am Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor. I wanted to get through school and Dick hoped to get a great, big job. You know he is with Lord & Taylor, in New York, and Dick is smart and hard-working."

"Since we eloped and married I've been living with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Taylor. We expect to have our own home later on."

"Now, if you haven't anything more to ask me I'll have to hurry back to the class room. The teacher will be asking me embarrassing questions if I am out too long. I don't want her to know I'm Mrs. Richard Dana Taylor—yet. At this time I'm just plain Greta."

Then I'm Greta Anna Trembley. Sorry I can't tell you more," and the school-girl bride raced up the stairs and entered the classroom.

News of the elopement of Miss Trembley and Taylor has caused a sensation in Plainfield. Taylor's father, who is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, is one of the most prominent men in the Jersey town.

Richard is 17 years old and until a few weeks ago was at school. His brother Ralph ten days ago started Plainfield society by eloping with Miss Helen Smalley, daughter of Newton Smalley, mayor of North Plainfield.

"My wife and I will continue to live with our parents until I am ready to start housekeeping," said Taylor last night. "Then we will go to New York."

"How did you get your marriage license?" was asked.

NEW FACTS ABOUT ECZEMA

For years eczema was thought to be incurable, and it is so considered today by many people. But since the compounding of Cadum, eczema is now a curable disease. Cadum has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from distressing, stubborn and disfiguring skin diseases. It is soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin. It stops the itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. It is anti-septic, and when applied to an open sore or wound prevents infection from disease germs. Cadum quickly acts upon eczema, pimples, sores, blotches, rashes, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, chafings, itching piles, etc. At all druggists, 10c and 25c.

FATALLY INJURED

Man Fell Down Flight of Stairs

A fatal accident occurred late yesterday afternoon, when Nelson Brooks of 23 Moore street fell down a flight of stairs and did not recover from his injuries. When the unfortunate man fell down the stairs his son went to his assistance and got him upstairs. Then Dr. J. Albert Johnson was called and despite his efforts to revive his patient, the latter passed away at seven o'clock.

THE COSMOS CLUB

Held Annual Social and Dancing Party

The Cosmos Social and Athletic club had its fifth annual social and dance at Associate hall last night. The affair was very successful as the attendance was extra large and a general good time was enjoyed by all present. Gilmore's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and pretty souvenirs were distributed at the door. The officers of the evening were:

General manager, John J. Gilmore; assistant general manager, Peter F. Noonan; floor director, William J. Christie; assistant floor director, Patrick A. DeMure; chief aid, P. Joseph McHugh; aids, Joseph Riley, Cornelius Kelly, Frank Reed, George Boland, William Searles, Annie McHugh, Mae Livesey, Noreen Gilmore, Mary Farrell, Mae Ripley; reception committee, Peter A. Curry chairman, Edward Noonan, William H. Usher, Mae Riley, Catherine Cox; treasurer, John J. Callahan.

OR FAINTING, AS EXPLAINED BY A PHYSICIAN

Syncope, or fainting, is almost exclusively confined to young adults, being rare in children or in fully matured persons. The real cause of fainting in nearly every case is an ebbing away of the circulation of blood from the brain. During normal sleep the brain is pale and anemic; and during waking hours any one of many circumstances may so decrease the flow of blood through the brain as to cause one to lose consciousness and to collapse over. The pale of the face affords an index to the accompanying pallor of the brain.

Among the circumstances that may drive blood from the brain to the extent of syncope is sudden emotion of any sort. Thus a young lady suffering from measles swoons when abruptly told that a friend has slipped; a measurably old lady faints upon sudden proposal of marriage; or a middle-aged gentleman "syncope" if the Glanville win. The emotional shock causes the nerves which control the caliber of the blood vessels in the brain to contract these vessels, thus depriving the conscious centers of the blood necessary for their action.

A predisposing cause to fainting is inactivity, because the circulation of the blood becomes sluggish when the brain and body have been for some time at rest. We never faint while actively engaged in any physical or mental work.

Fasting is also conducive to fainting, and we are all more likely to faint before breakfast than at other times. Another predisposing cause is insufficient fresh air.

Persons who feel a fainting spell coming on may sometimes ward it off by sitting with head bent forward between the knees. This helps in two ways to get blood into the brain. First, the lowering of the head entitles the aid of gravity; and the bending of the body compresses the abdomen and forces some blood from it to the head. After one has actually fainted, three things should be done: First, the patient should be placed in a horizontal position (on the floor, if necessary) with the feet slightly elevated so that the blood will gravitate into the brain; second, the clothing about the chest and throat should be loosened to aid free breathing; while all windows are opened to admit fresh air; third, water should be dashed upon the face and behind the ears to act as a stimulant measure and bring about a reaction.

DERBY EMPLOYEES

ENJOYED ROAST PIG SUPPER LAST EVENING

The employees of the L. A. Derby company held a supper last evening at the home of Morton V. Loud, 15 Oil street. Roast pig and chicken were among the features of the menu. Miss Shurue, was toastmaster. There were songs by Hector Parthenais, Joseph Hurley and H. W. Myrick.

Mr. Thomas Connors of Boston delivered an interesting address before the Knights of the Sacred Heart in St. John's hall, Wednesday evening. Frank Haggerty presided. A sacred concert has been arranged by Rev. Michael E. Doherty to be held in the town hall on Sunday evening, Nov. 26, to help the finances of the new boys' club.

PRESIDENT HARRIS

Resigns as Head of Amherst College

AMHERST, Nov. 17.—After being president of Amherst college nearly 13 years, Geo. Harris, D. D., LL. D., tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of the college yesterday. White expressing deep regret, the trustees voted to accept the resignation, which is to become effective not later than the next commencement. Advancing years were given by the president as his reason for resigning.

President Harris' letter of resignation follows: "In 1899 I assumed the presidency of the college, and am now, therefore, of the 13th year of service. These passing years, drawing pleasantly and rapidly on, have brought me from middle life to the age when one should retire from active leadership. Before next commencement I shall be 68 years old. Does Not Feel Old."

"Although a particular limit as 70 or 85 years cannot be arbitrarily fixed for all men as precisely the time when they cease to have the effectiveness and initiative of youth and middle life yet it is inevitable that as the seventh decade nears completion there cannot be the impulse, the zest, the momentum of early years."

"And although for myself I am not conscious of any impairment of physical health, nor if I may say it, of any dulling of intellectual perception, and do not feel old, yet I am aware that the passage of time has brought me towards or even to the end of the period when one man can render the most efficient service."

"I, therefore, offer you my resignation of the presidential office, expecting it to take effect not later than the next commencement."

"I seize this occasion to express my appreciation both of the unfailing support and cordial friendship of every trustee. The board has harmoniously worked to promote the best interests of the college. There have been healthy growth, higher standard of scholarship and improved morale of students, and substantial strengthening of equipment. The faculty have taught faithfully with the object of educating thoroughly and in all important matters have been in accord with me, advancing the intellectual and moral welfare of the students."

President Harris was born in East Machias, Me., on April 1, 1844.

PLAYED NASHUA HIGH AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON

The Nashua High school team played a return game with Lowell High at Westington park this afternoon. Lowell defeated Nashua 9 to 0 in the first game of the season, but the Nashua team is said to have improved greatly since and is most desirous to wipe out the defeat.

In Lawrence and Haverhill a movement is on to bring the Lawrence and Haverhill high school teams together again and it is expected to be successful.

MATRIMONIAL

FACTORY INSPECTION

Boston Chamber of Commerce to Urge Its Improvement

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—At an important meeting of the directors of the Boston chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon, the subjects to be acted upon by the chamber as a whole at the meeting of all members, called for next Tuesday, were discussed.

The chamber will be asked to vote in favor of the reorganization of the system of factory inspection in Massachusetts. The directors have accepted a report submitted by the committee on industrial relations, recommending legislation which will create a well organized, well administered and efficient system of industrial inspection for this state.

The committee in its report says that the present situation is very unsatisfactory, the jurisdiction being divided between the state board of health and the district police; that these departments do not co-operate; that there is an improper distribution of functions; that the number of inspectors is inadequate; that the departments are in some cases inefficient.

The directors also decided that at the meeting Tuesday Charles S. Hamlin and D. O. Ives, manager of the transportation department of the chamber, should appear before the members and explain how the present export-import and transcontinental freight rates are to the detriment of the port of Boston and the effort now being made before the interstate commerce commission to have Boston placed in a position equally as good as that of other similar ports, such as Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The directors also approved a report of the committee on foreign trade, recommending that the chamber favor the furnishing by the United States government of residences for its ambassadors in foreign countries which are suitable and in keeping with the dignity of the country. The committee stated its belief that the prestige of the United States, the standing of its representatives and the growth of its foreign commerce suffer as a result of the present situation whereby diplomatic representatives have to support their own residences.

The directors elected 100 new members of the chamber.

KILLED BY CAR

GIRL RUN DOWN IN FRONT OF HER HOME

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Frances Young, the 11-year-old daughter of Gilbert H. Young of 1254 Washington street, was killed almost in front of her home by an outward-bound Dorchester-Hampton street electric car about 7 o'clock last night. A few minutes after she left her home to go to the store on an errand her cousin saw that the car had stopped in front of 1295 and told Mrs. Young. Curious to see what had happened, the latter went out and was told by a policeman that a child by the name of Young had been killed. Mrs. Young collapsed and was taken to station 5 and then assisted home.

A large crowd quickly gathered about the car and nearly a hundred men used their combined efforts in trying to lift it and extricate the girl's body. But it was not until Jacks had been procured that the mangled form was removed.

The motorman of the car, E. W. Hall, was arrested, but was later bailed by the Elevated company. John F. Boyle was conductor of the car.

FIRST SOCIALIST NEW YORK LAWMAKER SAYS HE WILL HELP WORKING CLASSES

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Herbert M. Merrill, the first socialist to be elected to the New York assembly, says that when he enters that body he will devote his attention to furthering bills in the interests of workers and will pay particular attention to measures offered by labor unions. Mr. Merrill was born in Compton, N. H., Sept.

13, 1871. He has lived in Schenectady for twenty years and is an armature winder in the shops of the General Electric company. He says he became interested in socialism through reading Bellamy's "Looking Backward." He is a good public speaker. He admits that his election was a surprise to him, as it was to politicians here.

STRONG ARM SQUAD

Make a Raid on a Gambling House

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Just as the actors were letting out their audiences last night, Lieut. Charles Becker and 15 members of the "strong arm squad" swooped down in autos on an alleged gambling house at 196 West Thirty-eighth street.

Armed with axes and crowbars the officers began to batter down the doors of the place. The noise drew the after-theatre throngs from Broadway. Traffic on that street, as well as on West Thirty-eighth street, was tied up by the mass of humanity that eagerly watched for the police to gain an entrance to the four-story brown-stone front house.

After nearly a half hour's work the police broke down the outer doors. They piled into the vestibule only to face a second set of stoutly barred doors. The panels in these were battered by quickly. Lieut. Becker climbed inside, unbarricaded the doors and admitted his men.

Nobody was found in the finely furnished parlors on the first floor. On the second floor the police found a beautiful suite of reception rooms. Costly paintings hung from the walls. Finding no persons in the reception rooms Lieut. Becker ordered his men to the third floor. An iron door at the head of the stairs stopped progress. But Becker ordered his men to break away the wooden framework and the walls. When they started to comply the door was opened.

Twenty-five men in evening dress confronted the officers when they tumbled in. The room held roulette wheels, a faro layout and poker tables. The twenty-five men had to give names and addresses. Then twenty-two were freed.

One of the three men placed under arrest was said to be John Freeman, proprietor of the place. The others were taken on warrants calling for "Take Dealer" and "Poker Joe."

The regular meeting of Lowell council, No. 8, R. A., held its regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall last evening. A feature of the evening was the visit of Grand Regent Ernest E. Hobson and suite. After the business meeting the audience was entertained by Hugh J. Molloy of the state normal school, who gave an interesting talk on "Napoleon" and more particularly on his history from Elba to Waterloo. Selections were also given by Messrs. Ed. Wirt, Charles Howard, Arthur Allyn and Harry Needham. Grand Regent Hobson also talked at the good of the order.

SUPREME COURT

TO SETTLE THE PITTSFIELD CHARTER TANGLE

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 17.—Pittsfield is in a tangle over the interpretation of the new city charter as regards the election of councilmen.

The city clerk maintains that the charter provides for the election of but seven this year, one from each ward, and the aldermen that the entire council, made up of 14 men, is retired this year and must be replaced.

The supreme court will be asked to settle the controversy before election day, Dec. 12.

In order to bring the matter to a head, the board of aldermen last night, after drafting the warrant for the election with provisions for the filling of 14 vacancies, voted to petition the supreme court to compel City Clerk A. C. Daniels to serve the warrant.

The supreme court has agreed to give the matter immediate attention and it is expected it will be taken up next Tuesday, either at Worcester or Boston.

WATER BOARD

VOTES EXTENSION OF PIPES IN MANSFIELD STREET

The water board at its regular meeting last night voted an extension of pipes in Mansfield street a distance of about 250 feet, and awarded a contract for plumbing a bathroom in the reservoir keeper's house to E. A. Lynde, the lowest bidder. His bid was $114.

The contract with E. A. Barbour, engineering expert employed by the water department on the reservoir job, was formally approved and will be sent to the mayor for his approval. It calls for five per cent. of the total cost of construction for the engineer.

FIGHT IN CHAPEL

CO-EDS ENGAGED IN HAIR PULLING CONTEST

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 17.—An hour's reign of terror in which batpins, hair pulling and fists figured freely, was precipitated at MacAlester College yesterday when the freshmen appeared at chapel wearing little blue caps emblazoned with "18" in bright gold letters.

The trouble started immediately after chapel, when the sophomores withheld the freshmen in the halls and took away several of the caps. For half an

Yet that Gold Medal Flour, in the test of time, has come to outsell all the others.

It feeds 24,000,000 folks daily.

It must, as you know, be superlative flour. Next time you order decide your own flour. Say

LOWELL NEST OF OWLS

There was the usual large attendance at the business meeting of the Lowell Nest of Owls in Elks hall last night, President Bowers presiding. The scouting or class initiating committee made a very creditable report of progress and the new class promises to be the largest in the Lowell

Nest history. Every member is doing his best to secure candidates for membership who are young, strong and active.

The canvass will be thorough and none but men of sterling character will be admitted. The Nest physicians will be most searching in their examination of all applicants.

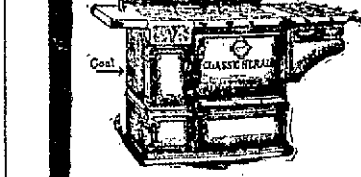

President Bowers spoke for the good and welfare of the order.

The next meeting of the Lowell Owls will be held Thursday evening, Dec. 7th and the nominations for the officers for the coming year will be made at this meeting.

The degree-staff will also give an exhibition drill under Warden Hartnett. Invitations to attend the class initiation have been sent to many of the New England Nests, and many guests are expected.

Every member of the Lowell Nest wishes to express his sincere thanks to the gentlemen who so kindly remembered the society by their donation at the recent outing of the nest. They were J. L. Chaffoux's store, Chas. H. Molloy, Edward M. Bowers, Thomas E. Boucher, Dr. Wesley Sawyer, Dr. Harold B. Plunkett, Jas. P. O'Donnell, James H. Rogers, James E. O'Donnell, Esq., Allan Fraser, Macartney's Apparel shop and George E. Mongeau.

THE TROLLEY EXPRESS

Hearing on Petition Will be Held in Boston, Nov. 22

A hearing on the trolley express petition will be held before the railroad commissioners in Boston at 10.30 a. m., Nov. 22. The petition calls for rights for the Boston Elevated railroad to conduct an express business in Boston.

The local board of trade is deeply interested in the matter and they are sending an appeal to the local merchants to attend this hearing and approve the petition, for it this matter is passed it means a lot for Lowell and vicinity, for the Bay State Railway company is prepared to conduct an express business throughout its district. With the new express in Lowell it means better traffic and more facilities. Communications have been sent by the local board of trade to the Chelmsford, Westford and Billerica boards of trade, urging their members to attend the hearing.

The seventh annual convention and conference of the American Civic association will be held at the New Willard hotel, Washington, D. C., December 13, 14 and 15 of the present year. The program will be rich in addresses and discussions relating to national, state and city parks; to city planning; to intimate details of neighborhood and home improvement; to the smoke and billboard nuisances and to the house fly. The local board of trade will be represented at this convention.

Robert N. Jones, habitué of Boston, aged 23, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weight 196 pounds, has been elected Andover captain for next year. He plays tackle and is headed for Yale. He is one of two prep school stars slated to enter the noted New Haven seat of football knowledge. Mahan, this year's Andover captain and back of rare attainment, will beat him to it by one year.

ACCIDENT CASES

OPERATIVES TREATED AT THE EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

Margaret O'Connor, an employee of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., got a finger caught and badly crushed in a machine while at her work this morning. The ambulance was called and the woman was removed to the Lowell hospital.

Birdie Ross, aged 25 years and living at 105 Shaw street, got a finger caught between two rolls while at her work at the Massachusetts Mohair Plush Co., this morning, and she was treated at the Emergency hospital.

Henry Kessler, aged 22 years and living at 174 Lowell street, Lawrence, an employee at Max Cohen's butcher shop in Methuen, received a bad cut on the right wrist this morning while working. He was treated at the Emergency hospital.

FEW OFFENDERS

Appeared Before Judge Hadley This Morning

The police sessions are of rather short duration of late. This morning Judge Hadley disposed of his usual business in about 15 minutes. There were four drunken offenders, two of whom were fined $2 each, while the others, who made their second bow before the court, were fined $6 each. They were John Cote and William Buckley, Non-Support Case.

Patrizio was brought in on a capias for non-support of his children. He was given a chance to find work and provide proper support for his young children, by having his case continued for a week.

Assault and Battery

The case of Ernest and Oscar Daigle and Moise Houde, all charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Patrolman Jeremiah Lynch, was again presented to the court. The request of the government which was not quite ready to go to trial, on account of the condition of the patrolman who is unable to appear in court. The alleged assault took place last Saturday night in Lakeview avenue.

WHIST PARTY

WAS HELD AT ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE HALL

A largely attended whist party was held at St. Joseph's college hall last night, the affair having been organized by Epiphane Labrie, sexton of St. Jean Baptiste church, for the benefit of the new brass band soon to be organized at the college. The hall was packed to its capacity and the whist was very interesting, for many prizes were at stake.

Joseph Laplante acted as master of ceremonies, and his work pleased everyone. At the conclusion of the whist a varied entertainment program was rendered by a group of young girls, who sang two comedies, "L'Orpheline" and "La Charlatane." Miss Emilia Labrecque also sang several interesting pieces, and this was followed by acrobatic feats by the members of Garde Frontenac, Capt. Albert Bergeron in command.

The judges at whist were L. A. Dole, C. Raymond, H. Daigle and A. Charron.

DAVID I. WALSH

MAY BE MADE HEAD OF DOCK BOARD

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—David I. Walsh of Pittsburg, recent democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, has been suggested to Governor Foss for chairman of the port of Boston board of directors.

The argument has been made to the governor that Mr. Walsh is entitled to this office by reason of the campaign which he made as second man on the ticket, and also that he would be a nominee satisfactory to the rank and file of the party.

The governor has the matter under consideration. This represents the last stand of those in the party, who are opposing Gen. Hugh Bennett, and they are planning some hopes on being successful. Indications still continue to show that the governor will not drop his first selection for chairman.

FUNERALS

WATERHOUSE—The funeral of Mrs. Emily Waterhouse took place Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the home of her son, Herbert Waterhouse, Princeton street, North Chelmsford. The services were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moe, pastor of the Congregational church at North Chelmsford. The bearers were Ernest Chubbenda, Herbert Hadley, Arthur Short, Sumner Queen, Fred Wilson and John Whitworth. Burial was in the Riverside cemetery at North Chelmsford. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Joseph Buttery, under the direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CLARK—The funeral of Dorothy E. Clark took place Thursday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the home of her parents, Harry D. and Ethel M. Clark, Highland avenue, North Chelmsford. The services were conducted by Rev. William C. H. Moe, pastor of the Congregational church at North Chelmsford. Burial took place in the Elmwood cemetery, Methuen. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CURRIER—The funeral of Mrs. E. Currier took place from her residence, 95 Ludlum street on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and was largely attended. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Marcia of Lexington, formerly of the Elmwood cemetery, formerly of the Elmwood cemetery in charge of Undertaker J. B. Currier Co.

CONLON—The funeral of the late Cornelius Conlon took place from his late home at Chapel street this morning at 10 o'clock, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends of the deceased.

The funeral cortege left the house of mourning at 8.30 and proceeded to St. Patrick's church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. O'Brien. The choir, under the direction of Mr. James E. Donnelly, sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Gertrude Keeler. Mrs. John W. McKennedy presided at the organ.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, the most prominent of which the deceased was held by his many friends, among them being a large standing cross on base from employees of M. Steinert & Sons; large wreath of galax leaves and chrysanthemums, inscribed "Godfather," from Mrs. Marietta Carroll; large spray, Mrs. and Mrs. J. Campbell, and spray from a friend.

The ushers at the house and church were Messrs. Martin D. Carroll, Joseph D. Carroll and John A. Quinn.

The bearers were Messrs. Jeremiah Douder, Thomas Coleman, Brian Cavanagh, F. J. Donnelly, John Ball and Patrick Kennedy.

The long line of carriages wended its way to St. Patrick's cemetery, where Rev. John O'Brien read the committal prayers.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Joseph P. Carroll, and interment was under the direction of Thomas J. McDermott.

The deceased was a lifelong resident of St. Peter's parish. He was of a retiring disposition but made many friends. His demise will be felt keenly by his friends and family.

MACHADO—The funeral of Manuel Machado, beloved son of Manuel and Mary Machado, took place this morning at 10.30 from the home of the deceased, 20 Chapel street, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The long cortege wended its way to St. Anthony's church, where prayers were said by Rev. Fr. Perrot at 11 o'clock. There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. The funeral was held at St. Patrick's cemetery, where burial took place under the direction of Undertaker Thomas J. McDermott.

KEEFE—The funeral of the late Mrs. Bessie Keefe took place today from her late home at 55 Central street at 10 o'clock, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends of the deceased. The funeral left the house of mourning at 8.30 o'clock and proceeded to St. Michael's church where a high mass of requiem was sung at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr. Murphy officiated. The choir, under the direction of Thomas P. Bond, sang the Gregorian mass. Miss Margaret Griffin sustained the solos. Miss Carolyn White presided at the organ. Seated in the sanctuary was Rev. Fr. Shaw.

There was a profusion of varied and beautiful floral offerings, the following being the most prominent: Large pillow from family; pillow inscribed "Grandma," from Cox family; cross on base inscribed "Grandma," from Keefe grandchildren; large cross on base from employees of Merrimack cloth room; spray, Mr. and Mrs. J. Greenwood; spray, Mr. and Mrs. James Fisher; spray, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Adams; spray, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Maloney and Mrs. Margaret Keenan.

The ushers at the house and church were Joseph Cox and George Keefe. The bearers were Joseph H. Jack, C.

George P. Keefe and Edward Cox. The funeral proceeded to St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. Fr. Murphy read the committal prayers.

The deceased was for the past number of years a devout attendant of St. Michael's church and always took a deep interest in its affairs. Her charming personality and deep sense of character made her many friends. Her sudden departure from this world will create a deep sorrow among her associates and especially the bereaved family. Undertaker Thomas J. McDermott had charge of the interment.

LAJUNESSE—The funeral of the late Victor Lajunesse took place this morning from his late home, 359 Middlesex street, and was largely attended. ### BRITISH STEAMER

Foundered on Shoals off Neuwerk Island

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The British steamer St. Bride, which sailed from Hamburg on Nov. 5 for Norfolk, is reported to have foundered on the shoals off Neuwerk island in the North sea. A lifeboat from the vessel containing two bodies has been picked up.

CALLED A DRAW

Melody and Nitchie in a Fast Bout

ADAMS, Nov. 17.—Honey Melody of Boston, who claims the welter weight championship of the world, defended that title in eight fast rounds to a draw with Young Nitchie of Philadelphia before the North Berkshire A. C. here last night. Nitchie went on in place of Andy Parker of New York, who was originally billed with Melody for 12 rounds. Both men were very fast and there was plenty of action.

Melody showed cleverness in covering and in his ability to get in some fast swings, but found the Philadelphia boy a willing mixer and ready to do his full share of the work. Nitchie displayed a thorough knowledge of the game and sent in some fast ones. Rip O'Brien of North Adams got the decision over Young Carter of Albany in the fifth round of their bout, and Young Lamoureux of Adams, and Young Hazinet of Troy went six rounds to a draw.

QUINLAN AND WHITE DRAW
LAWRENCE, Nov. 17.—The show at the Unity Cycle club was not up to the usual standard last night. The main event between Jimmy Quinlan of Danvers and Joe White of Boston was fairly interesting. White showing up the better in the early rounds and Quinlan evening up later. It was declared a draw after 12 rounds.

Cy Goodwin of Boston and Johnny Hyle of Beverly made a tame draw in their eight rounds. Johnny Thompson, Lawrence, beat Young Glover, Lawrence, in six rounds. Red Dolberry, Lawrence put Joe Myers, Lawrence, out in the first round. About 500 attended.

PHILLIPS WEAK AT END

LANCASTER, Penn., Nov. 17.—Young Frank Erbe of Harrisburg gave Johnny Phillips of Philadelphia a severe lacing last night before the Lancaster A. C.

Phillips was dropped in the first round with a right to the jaw, but arose quickly. In the third Johnny's left eye was opened and from then on Erbe smashed him almost at will, but got some hard returns. Phillips put up a game fight, but ended the bout weak.

BOXERS ARE READY

For Tonight's Bouts at Lowell Social Club

Johnny Gallant and Young Jasper arrived in town today by different routes both in the shape for tonight's contest before the Lowell Social and Athletic club. Each boxer is confident of his success each claiming that he will show the other something new this time. The pair are of the same weight and both are well up in the fine points of the game. Gallant perhaps has had a little more experience than his rival, Martin Flaherty, who has been training Charlie Anastos, the Greek boxer, states that his man has improved wonderfully, since he last appeared before the club, having been a greenhorn with the mitts. He was a very promising greenhorn at that time and surprised the crowd by his showing. Young Kelly is looked upon as a coming champ and is possessed of youth and strength together with considerable science. The bouts will be called at 8.30 o'clock sharp and will be run off without delay so that the meeting will be over in good season. The meeting will be open to members only and only members who present their cards will be permitted. Membership cards are not transferable and will be forfeited if transferred.

YOUNG BURGLAR

FOOLED A JURY WITH A BIBLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—George McAllister, 18 years old, was arraigned before Judge Rosinsky in general sessions yesterday to plead to a charge of burglary. Assistant District Attorney Delahanty recognized him as the young man who was arraigned before Judge Foster on a similar charge last September. At that time George refused to swear on the court Bible, saying that he had one of his own that his mother gave him and that he would rather use that. The jury acquitted him.

"Have you got your Bible with this time?" asked Mr. Delahanty. "Oh, forget it," said George. "I was in the Tombs gave me a Bible, and told me how to turn the trick, worked all right once, but I shall try again." Then he pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

24th ANNIVERSARY

Observed by the Father Mathew Society of Billerica

Mathew hall in North Billerica was the scene of a pretty and large gathering last night, and also the scene of much merriment and enjoyment on the part of those present. The occasion was the 24th anniversary of the Father comprising Mr. Edward F. Slattery of this city, the organizer of the society, and Rev. Frs. McKenna and Phelan, O. M. I. The exercises were opened shortly after 8 o'clock by President John J. Mahoney, who in a brief address extended the guests a hearty welcome. He concluded his remarks by introducing Rev. Fr. McKenna, O. M. I., acting chaplain of the organization, who was heard with interest in his congratulatory remarks. The next speaker was Probation Officer Edward F. Slattery, the father of the organization. He spoke in a very serious strain, referred to the early history of the society, its hard struggle for existence and its final success. He pointed out the influence for good the society has been in the community and expressed the wish and hope that the members would work hard for its future welfare, as it meant so much to them. He urged the clergymen to take leading part in the total abstinence movement, and said that without their encouragement the cause would fail. Superintendent Redmond Welch of the Lowell police department as well as Rev. Fr. Phelan, O. M. I., were also heard. A delightful entertainment program was rendered by the following: Vocal selections, James H. Cannon, Herbert B. Ellis, Charles E. Fairbrother; readings by Maurice O'Donnell; piano selections, George Kearney. Refreshments were served during an intermission. Those in charge of the event were as follows: President, John J. Mahoney, Charles R. Costello, Thomas F. Sheridan, Edward R. Costello, Edward T. Riley, William S. Taylor, James T. Bradley, George Ennion, James White, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Joseph Hand, Michael Bayes, Carol Delehanty, William Costello, John S. Walsh, Arthur L. Mahoney, Timothy J. McCarthy, Frank

HAVE LEPROSY

TWO PHILADELPHIA WOMEN ARE IN HOSPITALS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Two cases of leprosy were discovered in this city yesterday. The first case, that of Mrs. Becky Schleifman, 58, was diagnosed by the physicians of the Pennsylvania hospital. It is said that she is in the early stages of the disease. She has been in the country twenty years.

The other case, that of Mrs. Becky Pender, 36, was reported by the physicians of the Orthopedic hospital. She came to this country in 1906, and is said to be in an advanced stage of the disease. She is the mother of seven children, the oldest 15 years and the youngest 9 months. Both women were removed to the isolated ward of the Philadelphia hospital and a quarantine was established at their homes.

ANNUAL MEETING

OF AMERICAN SPECIALTIES MANUFACTURERS' ASSN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The American Specialties Manufacturers' association, whose members make most of the package goods sold by grocers in this country, favors a national law compelling members to print on the outside of all packages the net weight or count. The report of the legislative committee to the members holding their annual convention here today advocated the passage of the Stevens bill, likely to be considered at the next session of congress, which proposes amendments to the national pure food and drugs act making such labeling of packages mandatory instead of optional.

MR. BROWN'S PROGRAM

The program for the song-festival by Albert Edmund Brown at Colonial hall next Wednesday is given below:

Reclining and aria from "The Seasons." "With Joy the Impatient Handman" Haydn "Down Among the Dead Men" Jacobite Song "Swallow's Song" Radecke "Annie Laurie" Old Scotch "Drink to Me Only" Old English Hungarian Melody (a) "Vienna the Tisza's Torrents" (b) "Through the Prairies Well" (c) "Had a Horse a Liner One None Ever Saw" (c) "Shepherd, See Thy Horse's Foaming Mane" Francis Korbay "Tom the Rhymer" Op. 135 "Sir Olat" Op. 2, No. 2 (Herder) Carl Loewe "Auf Wiedersehen" Max Bendix "Requiem" Sidney Homer "Pirate Song" Henry F. This is Mr. Brown's debut in Lowell. As the instructor of music at the normal school he has given several informal recitals and those who were fortunate enough to hear him at the normal school will be glad of this opportunity to hear him again.

BAND OF CANNIBALS

KILLED MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN AT MURUTAL

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 17.—News of the murder of a Canadian explorer, and the probable loss of his expedition in a hurricane off the Bismarck archipelago was brought by the steamer Marana, which arrived on Wednesday from Australia.

Capt. Broophter and a party of four whites and 20 natives left Babul to explore the northwest of Friedrich Wilhelmshafen. Coming down the coast Capt. Broophter and another European went ashore to explore a river. They were in a small boat when set upon by natives. Capt. Broophter was fatally wounded by a poisoned arrow. His companion escaped on a floating log and reached the coast to find that his schooner had disappeared. It is feared that the vessel foundered in a storm and that all hands were lost.

The Marana also had the news of a massacre by New Guinea cannibals, who, early in October, took advantage of the absence of warriors and wiped out the village of Murutal, killing men, women and children. A government punitive expedition was sent after the raiding blacks, who had eaten a number of their victims. Many of the Kanuma tribesmen were arrested and brought to Paus to be tried for murder.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM CAN'T BEAR AN UGLY WAITER

PALMER INDICTMENT

Yesterday Afternoon's Session
 Lawyer Whipple and District Attorney Higgins were in conference with Judge McLaughlin practically all yesterday afternoon. They went into session in the judge's room at 2:10 o'clock and did not leave there until five o'clock. The subject matter of the conference could only be surmised by the newspaper men. When it had concluded Mr. Whipple, first, and District Attorney Higgins, a moment later, were approached by newspaper men in search of information.

The trial was engaged in adjourning the court until this morning at the moment, and as soon as that duty had been performed Mr. Whipple returned to the bench and addressed Judge McLaughlin. Mr. Whipple had put on his overcoat, and was, apparently, prepared to leave the courthouse. Mr. Whipple said to his Honor that since the court had been adjourned some of the newspaper men had asked him what the conference was about, and that he told them that so far as he was concerned he had no objection to any and all the evidence presented to the court being made public through the press.

Mr. Whipple had a moment or two before called Dist. Atty. Higgins to his side, while speaking to the reporters, and it was after they had talked a short time that Mr. Whipple approached Judge McLaughlin.

A request for information to Judge McLaughlin from the newspapermen was answered through a court official to the effect that his Honor could not discuss any case which passed before him, save only as to what had transpired in open court, and following this both Mr. Whipple and District Attorney Higgins, saying that the rules of court were law to them, declined finally to discuss the purpose of the conference.

May Have to Do With Records

The general impression in the courtroom while the conference was in progress was that it had to do with the admission of the records of the grand jury as evidence.

Several of the grand jurors have testified that they never voted on an indictment on which Palmer was subsequently tried and convicted. Others of the grand jury, and among them Geo. H. Sweetnam, its foreman, have testified that such a vote was formally put and carried without opposition in the grand jury room.

When Witnesses Told About His Attacks on Others

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 17.—Members of the family of Bertram Spencer are giving him not only their moral support but such benefit as may come to him from their testimony on the stand in the effort which his counsel are making to prove that he was insane when he fired the revolver shot which ended the life of Miss Martha Blackstone in this city. The government intimate history of her family and death in Spencer's trial in the superior criminal court here contends that Spencer's mind was clear at the time and that he was guilty of a brutal murder after entering the house with the purpose of robbery. Yesterday the defense, and's mother, Mrs. W. L. Spencer of Lebanon, Conn., laid bare much of the

PAY FOR MILITIA

MEMBERS WILL HAVE TO ATTEND 45 DRILLS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Evidently in anticipation of the passage of the proposed law providing pay for members of the organized militia, the militia division of the war department has requested military commanders to provide some form of duty roster with a view to keeping a complete record of the attendance at drills of the militiamen. The men are now required to have twenty-four drills a year but the proposed bill under which they were to receive pay for the time spent in learning soldiering provides that they receive 25 per cent. of the pay of a regular enlisted man on the condition that they attend 45 drills.

WHY WET SHAMPOOS ARE INJURIOUS TO HAIR

(Guide to Beauty)

"Avoid wet shampoos, if you would have soft, lustrous hair and plenty of it. More or less 'free' alkali in shampoo mixtures robs the scalp of its necessary oil, and this, in a measure, causes hair to grow dull, brittle and unmanageable."

"The dry shampoo is rapidly gaining favor because of its cleansing and invigorating effect on both hair and scalp. If 4 ounces either of orris root or corn meal and 4 ounces of theriac are mixed together and a tablespoonful sprinkled over the scalp, then brushed well through and out of the hair, all traces of dust and dandruff will be removed, and the hair will take on a silken sheen and richness of color impossible by any other method."

A REVIEW OF THE BIG LEAGUE SEASON

THE baseball season of 1911 furnished many more than the usual share of surprises in the major leagues. In a great many cases the dopestors picked the winners of the two pennants, but their judgment in sizing up the chances of the runners-up went sadly awry. Perhaps in no season in recent years were as many surprises sprung as in the campaign of 1911.

Early in the spring nearly all the leading baseball writers of the country were asked to give their opinions as to how the pennant races would end. The majority of the lot picked the Athletics to repeat their 1910 triumphs, so it must be confessed that the Blackmen hardly can be classed among the surprises. A number of the scribes picked the Giants to win in the National league, though the Cubs had a strong bunch of adherents. Even the Pirates and Reds were picked as winners, but who ever gave the Phillies or Cardinals a thought?

In sizing up the National league race the critics figured only two teams to be in the running—New York and Chicago—with Cincinnati their most dangerous competitor.

In the season's surprises the St. Louis Cardinals undoubtedly are entitled to first honors. It is true the Rajahs took a big tumble in the latter part of the season and finished the year with an average of .503, one game better than in even break, but the fact remains that the Cardinals finished with an average almost 100 points better than in 1910, when they wound up the campaign in seventh place with an average of .412.

Early last spring few critics picked the Rajahs to finish as high as sixth. The majority conceding them seventh place, while several others thought they would sit snugly in the cellar. This team at one time actually threatened to win the National league pennant, and was a factor in the race for almost three-quarters of the distance.

Bresnahan's injury and Sallee's fall from grace put the Rajahs out of the running, and then Rogers began trying out new material. Intent on starting next year with a team of championship caliber. This policy eliminated the Cardinals' chances of finishing in the first division, but it will undoubtedly prove to be beneficial to Bresnahan in molding together a winning team for 1912.

The second best bet in the surprise line was Doolin's Phillies, who finished fourth in 1910. Few critics would find a place in the first division for the Quakers, as they believed Cincinnati and Pittsburgh would occupy the berths beneath the Giants and Cubs.

Only a few Philadelphia optimists could see the Phillies in third place, and they also were picked to finish as low as seventh.

In looking over the season's records it will be seen that the Phillies played some of the strongest ball in the National league. The team early in the campaign showed such unexpected strength that it began to assume a comfortable lead. Every one knows the story of how the Phillies were put out of the running. First they lost Jack Titus, their right fielder, who was foolish enough to break a leg in sliding into the home plate.

The team hustled along without Titus until it lost the big gun in its attack—Sherwood Nottingham Magee. Magee got puffed at a decision by Umpire Finerman, and the rest is history. Even with Magee and Titus out and substitutes in left and right field, the Phillies continued to remain in the running.

Then came the biggest blow of all. "Reddy" Doolin, the team's manager and one of the best catchers in the game, broke his leg in St. Louis. That sounded the death knell to Quaker chances. Doolin's loss hurt the club more than the combined loss of Magee and Titus.

It was the work of Alexander which really started the Phillies on their first sprint in April. Plucked from the New York State league for $750, this youngster made a better record than Mathewson and won more games than any other pitcher in the National league, his final showing being twenty-eight victories and thirteen defeats. Chalmers was another big factor in keeping the Quakers in the race.

Outside of the pitchers, the Quakers had a strong, snappy team, which played a flashy article of ball. They had a collection of hard hitters, Fred Luderus being another one of the "unknowns" to rise to stardom. It is the general opinion that had it not been for the injuries the Quakers sustained and Magee's assault on Finerman, the club would have been in the fight to the finish. Next to the Giants, the Phillies loom up as the strongest contender for the 1912 pennant.

As the Cardinals and Phillies were the big surprises of the National league, the Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Superbas were the disappointments. Cincinnati has been accustomed to a loser, and Redland fans are reputed to be the most grumpy brand in existence. Is there any wonder? Since Cincinnati has been on the National league map the city has never sported a championship aggregation.

Cincinnati fans had been fooled many times, but when they were told they had a championship contender this season they swallowed it, hook, line and sinker. Not only in Cincinnati did the Reds look good, but the critics all over the circuit were showering praises on them. Fate, however, was cruel to Clark Griffith. His team was a loser from the start.

Brooklyn fans also were disappointed at the oor showing made by their team, though not as much as their Cincinnati brethren. It was believed that Dahlen had whipped together a team capable of making a good fight for the first division, but the men failed to live up to expectations. Their average was a little higher this year than last, .427 to .416, but they dropped a peg instead of advancing in the standing.

One of the main reasons for the failure of the Superbas to better themselves was the breakdown of George Bell, considered one of the most valuable members of the team in the accidents early in the year, and for a long time in midseason Barger was useless.

In the American league there were not as many surprises or disappointments as in the National. The Highlanders undoubtedly were the biggest disappointment of the year in the American league. The causes for their failure have been discussed a good many times.

Cleveland furnished the biggest surprise by finishing in third place, when at one time the team looked to be doomed for seventh. The Naps started off badly, the Browns trimming them two games in succession. They gradually became worse until Manager McGuire threw up the sponge in disgust. George Stovall then was appointed manager for the reason that no other man was available.

Yean Gregg and Joe Jackson were big factors in the success of the Forest City team. Gregg was the Alexander of the American league. He was better known than the Phillies' crack New York state recruit, but his first year in fast company stamped him as being a marvel. Nothing need be said about Joe Jackson. Any man who can hit over .400 in his first full year on a major league club does not need any introduction. There is only one ball player in the game to whom Joe need take off his hat. He is Ty Cobb, and Ty is the greatest ball player that ever lived, say many fine judges.

The Detroitis sprang a big surprise early in the year, when they reeled off their brilliant string of victories and threatened to make the American league race a walkover. The team had not been considered much in the light of a contender, as most critics thought the Highlanders would be the only team that would make trouble for the White Elephants. It was predicted that the Detroitis had been together too long and would fall apart. This part of the prediction came true in the second half of the campaign, when the Tigers developed several weak spots that will have to be remedied before they can again hope to land the Dan Johnson trophy.

Washington was another disappointment. As in Cincinnati, the Capital City fans are used to second division teams, but just to see how it feels they would like to see their team above the 500 mark. McAllester's men showed vast improvement in 1910, and the fans looked for them to make trouble this season. As usual, they were disappointed, as the team finished with a lower average than in 1910. Its average in 1910 was .437 against .416 in 1911.

The winning of a second world's championship by the Athletics proves conclusively that the one secret of success in baseball is the wallop. The team that can hit the ball the hardest will always be the winner in the long run. Strategic work on the bases and "inside baseball" in general is an interesting study in its way, and it often keeps a team up in the race, but without the good healthy wallops that drive runs home in clusters no ball club can win a majority of seven games in a world's series. All the inside stuff in the world can be shattered by a healthy wallop delivered at an unexpected moment.

In the series just closed, which was, perhaps, the most interesting of any played since the Giants and Athletics first met under the present agreement in 1905, the Athletics proved conclusively that they are better batters than the Giants. That is why they won. Good pitching can sometimes offset heavy hitting for awhile, but sooner or later the natural wallop will come into its own. In this series it was expected that Mathewson and Marquard would be able to hold the Athletics down for as many as four games, but we forgot to reckon that at the same time Bender, Coombs and Plank would be able to hold the Giant batters down to the same ratio.

Mathewson pitched two beautiful games, and Connie Mack says that he should have won them both. He got by with the first one, but in the second the team could not hit behind him, and he was driven to defeat. In his third game Mathewson showed the effects of his first two efforts, and he was rapped sharply throughout the game. Marquard's inexperience was against him in both his starts, and he could not come up to expectations.

Before the fight started it was common knowledge that the Athletics were made up of heavy hitters. Six of them had hit over .300 for the season.

It is a hobby of McGraw that figures never go wrong. He has always maintained that the man who has the best average is the best hitter. The heavy hitting of the Athletics for awhile was attributed to the supposed fact that they were battling a livelier ball than the Giants, but that was not true. The manufacturers declare that the balls used in the American and National leagues are exactly the same.

McGraw realized what he was up against, but he had hoped that the Athletics would find strange pitching too hard for them and would not hit up to their regular form. On an average they didn't, but the Giants, who also had to face strange pitching, fell further below their hitting average than did the Athletics. Right there is the story of the Giants' defeat. They could not hit the ball as well as the Athletics. The hitting always tells.

In other words, the Giants were forced to meet a superior ball club. Three days before the final defeat came they realized it. McGraw, Robinson and Latham, old timers in the business, knew that the Athletics pitchers would have to weaken materially or the Giants would have to be favored with a streak of luck to win out.

They did all they could to keep the men spurred on, but the stronger club finally came into its own.

It is fortunate for the game that no strike or accident marred the playing of the series. The games were all clean and clear cut. In only one game was there any protest at the umpiring. Connolly's work in the second game at the Polo grounds was severely criticized by players and fans, but that is the only contest in which the umpiring could have changed the result one way or the other.

Good Quarterbacks Are Numerous This Season

THE two leading quarterbacks of the season are Sprackling of Brown and Howe of Yale, and while Howe has been resting Sprackling again threatens to be what he was last year, the best all around quarterback of the year. No better general than Howe, he is a more versatile performer and his all around playing shone against Penn recently. The mud prevented him from doing any open field running, but he drove and handled his team in fine style and was accurate and successful with the forward pass. His forward passing was the best seen in Philadelphia this year.

Another quarterback who continues to do exceptional work is Butler of Cornell. He and Howe and Sprackling are the best field goal kickers in the east. Four times this year Butler has kicked field goals twice in one game. He has helped Cornell to twenty-four points just that way. He kicked two goals from the field against Allegheny, two against Colgate, two against Washington and Jefferson and two against Oberlin. All twelve of Cornell's points against Colgate and Washington and Jefferson were due to Butler's field goals. These are the days of the one man asset.

In the west the leading field generals are McMillan, Suller of Illinois, Moll of Wisconsin, Gill of Indiana and Capron of Minnesota.

FOOTBALL LONG AGO.

As far back as 1583 the question of brutality was under discussion. The following is an extract from "Anatomie of Abuse," by Philip Stubbes, printed in London in 1583:

"For as concerning football play, I protest unto you it may rather be called a friendly kinde of fight than a play or recreation; a bloody and murdering practice, than a folowly sports or pastime. For dooth not every one lye in wait for his adversarie, seeking to overthrow him and to pitch him on his nose, though it be upon hard stones? In ditch or dale, in valley or hill, or what place soever it be, he careth not, so he have him down. And he that can serve the most in this fushion he is counted the only felow and who but he? So by this means sometime their legs, sometime their armes, sometime one part thrust out of joint, sometime an other, sometime the noses gush out with blood, sometime their eyes start out and sometime hurt in one place, sometime in an other.

"But whosoever scapeeth away the best goeth not scotfree, but is either sore wounded, cruised and bruised, so as he dyeth of it or els scapeeth very hardly. And no maervail, for they have the sleight to meet one betwixt two, to dashe him against the hart with their elbows, to lift him under the shut ribbes with their gripped fists and with their knees to catch him upon the hip and to pelt him on his neck with a hundred such murdering devices and hereof groweth envie, malice, rancour, choler, hatred, displeasure, quarrel, picking, murder, homicide and great effusion of blood as experience daily teacheth."

Does This Get Your Goat?

Or Does It Appeal to You as the Real Dope?

To get one's goat is the most widely used expression of the present day perhaps. A great many persons who make use of it have not the slightest idea of its derivation, although they perfectly understand its meaning. It comes from the language of the race track. Certain highly nervous horses walk their stalls continually and in consequence go to the post all worn out. The great effort of a trainer is to cure a stall walker if one is under his care. To do this some animal is generally put in the stall with the horse to furnish the thoroughbred a companion. The animal most frequently used for this purpose is a goat; hence when the goat is taken away from the horse the latter suffers from all his old nervousness again. To get a man's goat, therefore, means to put him into a highly worried frame of mind.

GREAT THINGS EXPECTED OF CATCHER HENRY

IN the opinion of some of the best judges of ball players the Washington club has in John Henry the making of one of the greatest catchers of recent years. The Amherst boy demonstrated his ability to play first early in the season, but he did develop enough with the stick to hold down his position. However, a good catcher need not deliver so much in the hitting line, and that is where Henry will shine some day. George McBride is a very conservative individual. He never talks for effect, but when he says something it is worth listening to. George was watching Henry work out a pitcher one day, when he remarked: "There is a young fellow who is going to make a great catcher. He caught a bunch of games for us on the last western trip, and he showed us all that he has wonderful ability. Of course he is not ripe yet. You can't expect a fellow to jump in from a college team and make good in fast company right off the jump, but Henry has pretty near done that. Wait until he gets a chance to catch regularly after awhile, and you will see a real catching find."

ANOTHER BASEBALL TALE.

Here's a little tale for that very brave man who stands up in the grand stand, catches a stinging foul from the bat, looks around for his friends' applause and then sits down—curses himself because he allowed his hands to burn so much. The Red Sox were playing the Napslanders in Cleveland and Tris Speaker fouled one into the stands. An athletic chap ducked like a scared rabbit and let the ball go over his head into some fool's outstretched hands. Who was the man who ducked? "Chief" Zimmer, for many years the best backstop in the National league, the man touted as his greatest battery mate by "Uncle Cy" Young. Now, if Zimmer ducked and was unashamed, why can't you?

FAMOUS YACHT MAY SAIL AGAIN.

The famous old yacht America, winner of the royal yacht squadron cup at Cowes, Aug. 22, 1851, now called the America's cup, is to be moved soon from her moorings at Chelsea bridge, Boston, to the Summer street bridge. She probably will be placed in commission again by her owner, Representative Under Ames, grandson of General Benjamin F. Butler, who bought her after the civil war and raced her.

Actual Playing Time of Football Is Very Short

HERE is an entertaining item to those interested in football: Last fall a Harvard man tried a most interesting experiment during the Harvard-Yale football game to ascertain how much time was used in actual playing, and his figures are astonishing. He confined his experiment to one period, but was extremely painstaking and had a man to assist him. He used a stop watch, starting it each play with the snapping of the ball by the centers and stopping it at the blowing of the referee's whistle. He repeated this process through every play of the official fifteen minute period and found that the players were in actual motion, struggling and fighting in offense and defense only three minutes and twenty seconds.

If the time of actual playing in this period was a fair average, the duration of physical exertion in the four periods approximated fifteen minutes. Much less time than it takes to win and lose a Harvard-Yale boat race. Moreover, besides the partial lull between plays, there are three breathing periods of actual rest of twenty-one minutes.

No doubt the personal contact of man against man or man accounts for the "using up" of players in football, but the sustained supreme effort of the oarsman is of longer duration. There is no lull for him until he has exerted himself to his utmost for twenty or more minutes.

Nobody who was ever connected with rowing is inclined to deny that it is as grueling a form of sport as was ever known. At the end of almost every hard race several men collapse from exhaustion, while half the men on the losing team usually burst out sobbing like children—solely from physical playout. At the end of a rowing contest a man is more completely "pumped out" than after any other form of game or sport.

It is amazing, though, that there are only fifteen minutes of actual play in a big football game. An offhand guess would have nearly doubled those figures. In few games is the exercise as continuous as it is in football. In baseball the thread of the story is usually moving forward most of the time, but few players are doing anything. The pitcher has a pretty steady job, but even then it is a case of throw, rest, throw, rest, and so on. Just how much time the average pitcher does fritter away is well demonstrated when a slow pitcher is on duty. The catcher has a steady job, too, but look at the outfielders. About all they have to do is to pull grass and eat it.

Even less strenuous is the work of the men on the bench while their side is at bat. If the stop watch were put on the average player during the time that he was actually in motion making plays and even counting the time he was at bat, it would not be found to total very high. How much more action could be put into a game was shown by the last game of last season when the world's speed record was broken.

Basketball is a pretty continuous sort of a game, but even that contest is well broken up by trials for foul goals and the like.

Southern Pitchers Hard to Hit

"Any player who can hit .250 in the Southern league can hit better than that in a major league," says Bill Lindsay, the Cleveland shortstop from New Orleans. "Zack Wheat never hit better than .240 for Mobile, but he hit like a house afire with Brooklyn. "Jake Daubert hit .260 with Nashville and has done better than that with Brooklyn. Joe Jackson had an unusually good year in the Southern last season and hit .257. He hit more than that in the American league. "Good pitching makes it harder to hit in the Southern than any other league. The hot weather keeps the pitchers' arms in good shape."

25,000 AT OLYMPICS.

The Stockholm (Sweden) stadium, now in course of erection for the Olympic games in 1912, will seat 25,000. The track will be four laps to the mile.

Wants All Students to Row

Coach Jim Ten Eyck of Syracuse university is anxious to have all the students in the college learn to handle an oar. "Rowing is the greatest athletic exercise there is for a man," says Coach Ten Eyck. "There is a fascination about it which grows with each day in the shell. Where this benefits me is that I may find some men who are good enough to make the crews who would not report if they thought they were coming out for the crew. They can come into the rowing room and work out just as they would on the gymnasium floor."

KAISER TO GIVE YACHT PRIZES.

The German emperor has signified his intention of again presenting prizes to the British royal yacht squadron for competition at that club's regatta at Cowes in August, 1912. The kaiser and his sons are among the most enthusiastic yachtsmen of the German empire.

NAVY WILL HAVE TO IMPROVE IN ORDER TO DEFEAT ARMY

By TOMMY CLARK.
THERE is no doubt that if the Navy expects to win from the Army this year it will have to bolster its attack considerably. At present it has few plays which could be depended on to gain ground against an eleven anywhere near its equal playing strength. Dalton is the mainstay of the offense, and in practically all their preliminary games the Seafarers have depended on his great line plunging to make their distance.

That is all right in a game in which the Navy practically outclasses its opponent in almost every department, but as soon as it strikes a team which is not below it in general all round strength it will be found that Dalton will not be as effective. That much was shown against Princeton recently. Although the Orange and Black had only one man backing up the line, it did not really need him as only one Navy play got beyond the line of scrimmage.

The great power of the Army team this year precludes any such idea as that the Navy will win the annual contest this year with a much varied attack. No matter with what precision the midshipmen play, there is little likelihood that they will be able to gain much ground against the Army by using such tactics as those it has so far used against the smaller elevens.

Of course it is to be considered that the Navy is not supposed to be as far advanced as the other teams, but it must be remembered that this game with West Point this year, comes a week earlier than last. Besides, it is questionable if it is wise for a team to wait until a week before a game to develop its plays, as under such conditions they cannot be worked with as great accuracy as they could had they been given to the team early in the season. Every eleven ought to have its attack covered sufficiently to keep the opposing eleven guessing as to what is coming off any way and have such plays that if one part of the defense weakens to strengthen another the weakened part could not be made the object of the attack.

VESSELS IN DISTRESS

Marine Accident Season Started
Early off Chatham This Year

CHATHAM, Nov. 17.—Three vessels were sighted flying signals of distress off Monomoy Point at dawn today. One of them was ten miles off shore, a second was anchored off Great Point Rip with two men lashed in the rigging. A third was taken in tow by the revenue cutter Aqueduct at 7 a. m. for Hyannis. The revenue cutter Chesapeake was asked to render aid.

The marine accident season began early on Nantucket Shoals this year for yesterday morning a little two-master was sighted well down toward Great Point, Nantucket, making frantic signals for assistance.

The Monomoy Point life-saving crew started off in their big surfboat an hour later but so stiff was the gale on the shoals that at dark last night the crew was still some distance from the schooner.

In the meantime the revenue cutter Aqueduct, which was cruising to the westward of Woods Hole, was notified by wireless through the Newport naval station of the need of her assistance and headed round at all speed for Nantucket. The Aqueduct reached the schooner at dark and found her to be the M. M. Clifton. By that time the life-savers had boarded her and as soon as it was light the anchor was hove up and a start made for either Hyannis or Vineyard Haven.

It appeared that the night had been a still one on the shoals for the life-savers on both Monomoy Point and Great Point sighted two vessels in distress in addition to the Clifton.

The one sighted by the Chesapeake life-savers on Great Point seemed hard and fast on Great Point Rip and the keeper of the light-house on the point reported that there were two men lashed in the rigging and that the sea was almost smothering the vessel. The Chesapeake crew launched their boat but it was an hour before they cleared the line of breakers into which they were tumbled half a dozen times. At 8 a. m. they were on their way to the wreck but so fearful were the seas and the whirl of the tide over the rocks that an hour later they were still a mile away from the vessel and seemed to be making no headway. The schooner sighted off Pollock Rip did not appear to be in such a serious condition as the other two, although she was anchored ten miles off shore and was being well battered by the seas.

The Monomoy Point life-savers had stayed aboard the Clifton so that the next nearest life-saving station was either the Monomoy or the Chatham. Both stations hauled their surfboats onto the beach and at 9 a. m. stood ready to start for the scene.

The northwest gale, which began Wednesday morning, was still much in evidence today and there was very high choppy seas, making this point in either direction.

The Clifton was making a return trip to Bangor from New Bedford and was without a cargo.

During the forenoon several fishermen ranged up alongside the schooner or off Pollock Rip, and at 10 a. m. when a steam trawler anchored within hailing distance the distress signals were hauled down.

The gale at that time showed no signs of moderating.

RESCUED FROM HELPLESS BOAT

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 17.—A story of being rescued from a helpless powerboat by life-savers after suffering from extreme cold was related by Frank Raymond when he arrived here today with Alexander Stevenson and Albert Thomas. The three men went out in a powerboat yesterday morning. When some distance off shore the engine became disabled. The powerboat life-savers saw their predicament and put out in a lifeboat. The men had been tossed about in a heavy sea until they were seven miles from land, being overtaken by the life-savers. Darkness had fallen when land was reached and the men and life-savers were exhausted by the cold.

THE EDDY WILL CASE

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 17.—The adjourned hearing on the plaintiff's demurrer in the action of Dr. Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy vs. Hon. Henry Baker, executor of the last will of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the trustees of the Christian Science church, went on before Judge Aldrich in the United States circuit court today, the forenoon being occupied with a discussion of an interlocutory motion presented by the defense that the argument be confined to the standing of the plaintiff in the case, the other questions to be held in abeyance until the right of the plaintiff is determined by the court.

TWO INJURED

AUTO HURLED ACROSS A STREET
IN WALTHAM

WALTHAM, Nov. 17.—Two automobiles, one being operated, it is said, at a high rate of speed, came together at 9.30 last night at the corner of High and Newton streets in this city and the operators of both cars were injured.

William C. Chandler of 137 Alder street, this city, is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and several lacerations on the head, face and body. He is being attended at his home by Dr. Charles P. Brock.

Robert Stearns, chauffeur for Walter H. Henderson of Weyland, sustained several cuts and lacerations and was removed to his employer's residence, where he is under the care of a physician. Stearns was on his way to the Newtonville station to meet the train from New York which is due at 9.35, on which were Mr. and Mrs. Henderson.

Chandler was in an old touring car which he uses in his laundry business, was driving down High street and was just crossing Newton street when the Henderson car came along at a rate of 30 miles an hour, according to Patrolman John F. Edmunds, who saw the accident.

Just as Chandler's automobile started across Newton street on High street the Henderson car crashed into it, hitting the car on the side. The Chandler automobile was hurled 25 feet across the street, and it landed in a mass of twisted and bent iron and splintered wood upon the lawn of R. S. Ellis. It was a complete and worthless wreck.

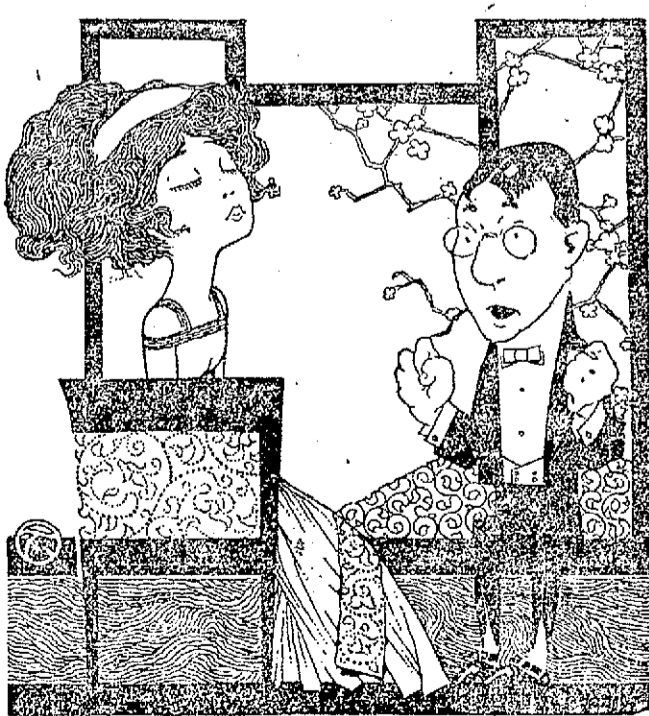

Chandler was thrown out of the car and landed upon his head on the road. He was dazed for a moment. Stearns was thrown out and he landed sprawling upon the hard ground.

frequently complained of pains in his head and was very nervous. Today it was expected that Spencer's father would take the stand. Since he was a witness for the defense, the crowd which again filled the courtroom before the proceedings of the day began expected that he would corroborate the evidence and admit that he had frequently punished his child with excessive severity. It was understood that the defense planned to complete the examination of Spencer's relatives by the noon adjournment and to put on the stand this afternoon the first of his alienists who will endeavor to show that Spencer was insane at the time of the murder. The defense probably will be able to rest tomorrow afternoon.

Spencer's Sister Testifies

The lawyers for the defense decided to put on several relatives and persons who had known Spencer, before calling the defendant's father. The first to take the stand today was Spencer's mother, who lives in a small house in Springfield. She told of several times when she had seen her brother in a rage. Once when she and her husband were with Spencer and his wife at Spencer's home. Spencer asked his wife's grandfather, Mr. Krallig, who owned the house, for the key to the front door. After getting the key, he went outside to get it and Spencer became angry and threatened to throw his wife's grandfather into the river. The others present prevented him from attacking Mr. Krallig. Spencer shouted for several minutes, attracting a crowd of neighbors to the Ernest Lattimer of Salen, Conn., testified that when he was living in the Spencer family about 13 years ago and working for the defendant's father he saw Bertram's body covered with marks. He did not know what had caused them.

After leaving Mount Hermon school and going to live with G. J. Oakes of Bernardstown for a few weeks, Spencer was melancholy and at times had a wild look, according to the testimony of Mr. Oakes. That Spencer's grandfather, William L. Spencer, was insane for some time previous to his death, as testified by several witnesses yesterday, was reiterated by Robert Gordon of Niantic, Conn.

Deposition Was Read

Attorney Stapleton for the defense read a deposition from Mrs. Henrietta Post of Newington, Conn., 85 years old. In this Mrs. Post said that about 20 years ago when she was caring for Mrs. Spencer and Bertram was about nine years old, Bertram's father one day called him out in the woodshed, saying he was going to lick the boy for some offense. When Bertram came in he told the deponent that his father had placed him on the chopping block and threatened to chop his head off.

Other depositions were offered by the defense, but as the district attorney wished to examine them before deciding whether to object to their introduction they were postponed until later.

Spencer's father-in-law, Herman Amburge of West Springfield, was the next witness. He said he had opposed his daughter's marriage to Spencer. One day Spencer called at the house and wanted to take his daughter away. Mr. Amburge denounced and Spencer then declared he would remove the girl by force. When witness said he would not permit this, Spencer became angry and threatened to kill Mr. Amburge.

berg, witness said he started out with the intention of threatening Spencer but that Spencer, who looked the donor and Spencer went away. The marriage took place within a year after this and afterwards Spencer became reconciled to witness, who obtained a job for him in this store. He said that Spencer often had trouble with the other clerks and once shied a hotchpot at a clerk. At another time witness found that Spencer had locked himself in the store. The proprietor, he was in lowering race and remained there for half an hour, becoming somewhat calmer when he came out.

When Spencer worked in a department store in Hartford, Conn., about 12 years ago, according to the next witness, Henry Richards, a buyer in the store, he once chased a cash boy with a hammer in his hand. A witness named Tim and a girl named Mary told the boy, Frank Killiam, also employed in the store, in charge of the department where Spencer worked, said that Spencer one day threw a hammer at a cash boy who had merely spoken to him. When witnesses warned him to be more careful, Spencer flew into a rage. One day when Spencer was told to stop smoking, he told a witness his mother was very good but that his father was a brute.

Here the defendant sobbed loudly. Bercus was then taken.

SUIT AGAINST SHOE MACHINERY CO.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—In the circuit court today Judge Colt named January 3 as the date for the hearing of the demurrers filed by the defendants in the government suit against the United Shoe Machinery Co., which is charged with restraining trade in violation of the Sherman act.

The defendants, who were indicted by the federal grand jury, are President Winslow, Elmer Howe, Edward Hurd, James J. Storrow and J. P. Brown of Boston and William Barbour of New York.

The demurrers attack the constitutionality of the Sherman act as applying to companies doing an inter-state business in articles patented by the United States government.

A FOUR TENEMENT HOUSE AND ABOUT 2100 SQUARE FEET OF LAND AT 41 CROSS STREET.

On the above date at the premises, regardless of the weather or conditions, I shall offer for sale a four tenement house, to the highest bidder. The sale will be absolute and I must be content with the price obtained. The house comprises four small tenements of four rooms each, they are in good repair and have the best of sewerage and water services. The tenants have lived there a long time and are a class that always pay rent promptly. My advanced years is my only reason for disposing of this property as it is always rented at a steady rental of $360 a year and I am sure it will make a grand investment to the purchaser. This is an excellent chance for some man of moderate means, where he could have his own tenement and the income of three others: it is in a fine location, being the second property on Cross street from Suffolk; it is very convenient to schools and churches and within ten minutes' walk to many large industries. If you are looking for a solid investment, it will pay you to look at this property up.

Terms: $300 must be paid to the auctioneer, as soon as struck off; other terms at sale. Make all inquiries at the office of the auctioneer.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 17.—The wage controversy between the Canadian Pacific R. R. Co. and the railroading freight handlers' union here was amicably adjusted, at a conference held in this city today. The men, who formerly received 17 cents an hour, asked for an increase to 25 cents on hour. An agreement of 21 cents an hour was reached at today's conference.

THE Double Breasted Greatcoat with full belt is the one big overcoat hit of the season.

Our Greateats are big, roomy garments, with large collars, are slightly gathered at the waist, and with a great sweep to the skirts.

At $25.00 we show this week a splendid lot of Greatcoats in fairy back, soft face fabrics, gray and brown shades, that will go out quickly. They're corking good values.

The Stein-Bloch Greatcoat of Worrumblo chinchilla is the most luxurious overcoat we know anything about. It's made of live wool, with worsted body linings and satin shoulders, is as warm and more healthful than a fur coat, with twice the style and character. $50.00 is the usual retail price--and the coats are worth it. Our price is $40.00.

At $15, $17.50 and $20 there's a splendid choice of finely tailored long coats with adjustable collars that lay down or button up about the neck and fit correctly at either adjustment.

Come in and see them—they're worth a look.
